THE OAKS

THE trumpets of the sunrise have not blown,
And in the stillness of the dawn
these trees,
Jeweled by dew and shadow mysteries,
Are waiting, waiting silent and alone.
These trees are old, so old they do not know
How many suns and sunsets have they seen
Between the lacework of a leafy screen—
They only know that suns will come and go...

We walk along the pathways of this glade
Beneath old trees where silences increase
Long hour by hour, while all the forest waits.
We do not speak at all, we are afraid
Of silence, and of grandeur, and of peace,
We do not know these things, we are initiates.

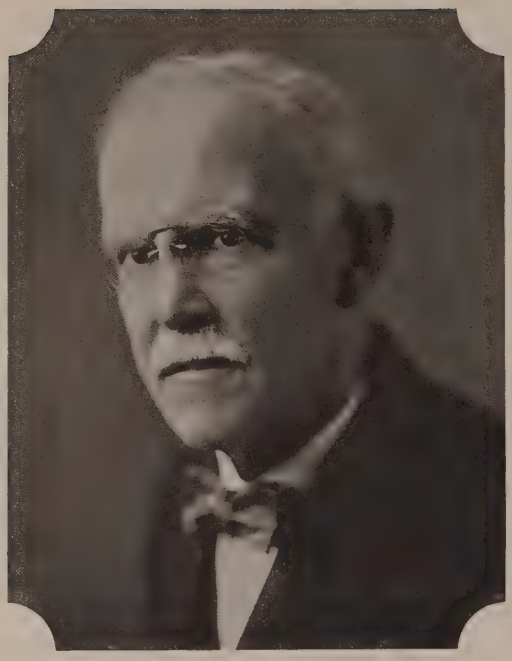
FACULTY ADMINISTRATION

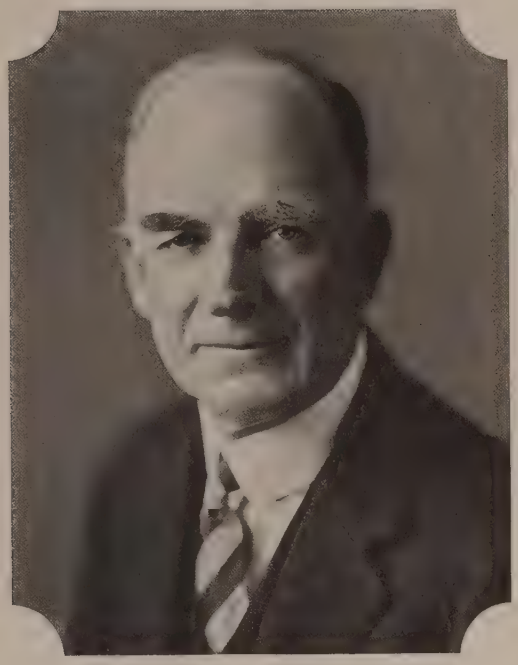


FROM THE PRESIDENT EMERITUS

MY reminiscences often revert to the long-ago days when the University of California was a comparatively small and struggling institution. The students and faculty were constantly and earnestly striving to make it a bigger and finer seat of learning. There were no massive imposing edifices to stimulate and increase the incentive for learning; the divers activities were in an embryonic stage; the library was inadequate and wholely incomparable to the lofty building we now behold. The great advancements prevalent on every side are highly significant and inspiring; in fact, they are a glorious revelation. They disclose what time, effort, and an ever present faith and loyalty can accomplish. That intangible something, frequently designated as California spirit, has reigned supreme from the first. Such phenomenal strides would have never been attained without it.

Along with the beautiful symbols of learning, the students have moved ever onward and upward, steadfastly looking forward to unfathomed wealths composed of noble men and women. These young people came to the University as potential citizens. They have developed to the utmost; they exemplify nobility of spirit, mind, and body, all that is beautiful and good in humanity. Our country's ultimate prosperity is in their hands.

To the men and women who are leaving us so soon: Carry with you the high standards and ideals that have been your close companions; put your worthy magnanimous sentiments into your daily deeds. There is ample material in this rich old world of ours if you will only search for it. At times it may carry you far afield, but ultimately you will be the victors. Keep looking forward, casting aside the irrelevant things you meet, and firmly grasping those that are worth while. Let Lincoln's immortal words be ever with you: "I am not bound to win but I am bound to be true."



FROM THE PRESIDENT

BLUE AND GOLD appears for each class at an interesting stage in the class history. No other year can be so full of engagements as the final year; no other year so happy as the Senior year. It comes but once in each lifetime. How shall it be divided as to study, campus activity, social life, and reflection upon the meaning of it all?

The year now rushing to a close has been one of quiet accomplishment throughout the University. Real study and reflection, real teaching and research, demand tranquillity of environment during many hours of the day and many days of the week, and there has been commendable co-operation in working toward and maintaining this condition. In this connection, however, the President regrets that progress in behalf of the dormitories has been slow.

The athletic events of this year in Berkeley have given rare pleasure to many tens of thousands of Californians. It is safe to say that the major games in the Memorial Stadium have never been equaled earlier or elsewhere in attractiveness of surroundings, nor surpassed in their manly sportsmanlike qualities. Then, too, the accompaniments of scholarship have been right.

The Class of '25 has completed its responsibilities for student life and activity. The world has always paid special honor to the successful general and the successful admiral; but the Good Book says, "He that ruleth his spirit is greater than he that taketh a city." The consequences of ruling one's self, with help, in case of need, from the government officials of his own choosing, are especially fine.

I am confidently expecting the BLUE AND GOLD of this year to be a treasured volume to which the members of the Class of '25 will frequently refer through the decades ahead.

REGENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY

THE government of the University of California is entrusted to a corporation styled the Regents of the University of California, composed of the Governor, the Lieutenant-Governor, the Speaker of the Assembly, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the President of the State Agricultural Society, the President of the Mechanics' Institute of San Francisco, the President of the Alumni Association, and the President of the University, as members ex officio, and sixteen other regents appointed by the Governor and approved by the Senate. To this corporation the State has committed the administration of the University, including management of the finances, care of the property, appointment of teachers, and determination of the internal organization in all particulars not fixed by law.

The Academic Senate, composed of the President, Deans, Directors, Recorder, Librarian, and all professors and instructors of more than two years' service, supervises the courses of instruction and conditions of graduation and admission, subject to the approval of the Board of Regents.

Standing committees of the Board of Regents are appointed each year, each committee under the direction of a chairman who has the supervision of a particular phase of administration, such as Engineering, Finance, or Endowments.

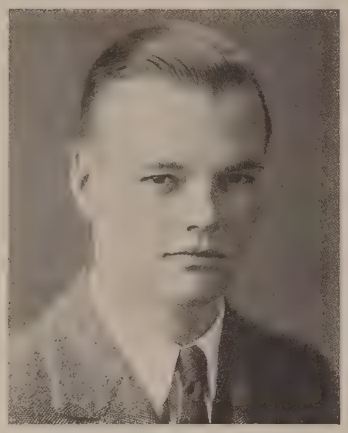
STUDENT ADMINISTRATION

THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

ADMINISTRATION of student activities at the University of California has been successfully carried on during the past year by the Associated Students along well-defined lines of endeavor. This organization, at first an experiment in self-government, has been perfected and expanded by repeated successes and occasional failures until now it represents a finished instrument of student government. The way that it has developed and grown in strength in its comparatively short life is nothing short of miraculous.

The constantly increasing complexity of the multifarious campus interests and activities in social, athletic, and political fields necessitates changes from time to time in administration. These changes make the campus problems especially hard to cope with. When it is remembered that the time of the student officials is limited, and thus necessarily curtails the amount of time they can give to their duties, and that they are assisted by only a few paid and permanent officials, one can readily perceive and appreciate the difficulty of student government.



A. C. Beyer, President A. S. U. C.

Yet when the problem of providing adequate quarters for the Varsity crew arose, the system of the Associated Students promptly and efficiently took action, and quietly but swiftly erected a new, much-needed crew shed and made such other expenditures as were necessary to give this branch of athletics a well-earned opportunity to develop. This action in securing new crew sheds was one of the most noteworthy that the Associated Students successfully put across. California has long been suffering defeats at the hands of the Washington shell men, but the Associated Students have made it possible for the Bear oarsmen to have the necessary start for a victorious season.

Traditional affairs, such as Home-coming Week, Charter Day, Associated Students' elections, meetings and rallies, have been arranged and superintended with a remarkable degree of success. The expenditures of money involved in these functions make it essential that the organization of the Associated Students rest on a firm financial foundation. The reports of the officers intrusted with this task demonstrate the soundness of the fiscal policy pursued.

It is impossible in this brief space to enumerate in detail the exceedingly intricate self-government organization of the Associated Students. The work which has been assigned to each unit, such as the Student Affairs Committee, the Rally Committee, and the Graduate Manager's office, is explained elsewhere. It must suffice for the present to state that the ease and efficiency with which each operates often blind one to the fact that a tremendous amount of labor, time, and executive ability has been combined by the students elected to the various offices. The decisions of the Executive Committee, which represents the nucleus of the organization, upon perplexing problems have met with the approval, in practically all cases, of the majority of the student body. Moreover, the President of the University has, in the past, been quite willing to give his consent to them.

While it has been possible to operate successfully under the constitution, which has recently been revised during the year 1924, several revolutionary changes must be made from time to time to meet the new needs which are constantly arising. These changes occur from year to year. They mark the progress of our organization, for it is due to the small steps that large, effective changes are made.

It is a glorious tribute, not only to the ingenuity and loyal co-operation of the students, but also to the conscientious spirit of the officers in the performance of their duties and in the interest shown in their work, that the Associated Student body has become one of the most vital elements in the harmonious functioning and progressive achievements of our campus life.

Thus we owe the whole working system of our campus student activities to our Associated Student body. It must be mentioned that they are the means through which is strengthened and furthered the Honor Spirit, that institution which has become the foundation of our campus life, and the typical Californian Spirit. The officers of the student body should be congratulated for their conscientious work which has done much in the way of furthering the welfare of the students at large.

The Deputations Bureau is a new organization on the campus this semester. Its purpose is to bring before high schools the ideals of the University. In this way it is hoped that entering Freshmen will be somewhat familiar with the organizations and activities of the campus.

In order to further this plan, the bureau has bought a number of copies of the Blue and Gold to be distributed among the larger schools. Speakers have also been sent to speak on such topics as the Honor Spirit and Welfare Work of the University.

This bureau is proving itself to be of ultimate importance and value to the University.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

CONSTITUTING the largest organization of its kind in the world, the California Alumni Association, under the direction of Robert E. Sibley, has made tremendous progress in the last two years. The members of the organization have been brought into direct contact with the University; and over five hundred of them are at present acting on subcommittees dealing with the many perplexing problems that arise. The Association, in connection with the Board of Regents, has maintained the Alumni Bureau of Employments, which is annually consulted by over twenty-three thousand students and alumni, four thousand three hundred and fifty having been placed in positions in the last two years. Twenty-six alumni centers, completely districting California, have been established; and over two hundred meetings have been held in over one hundred different cities of the United States, carrying the message of the University to thousands of graduates. Two Homecomings have been promoted in the last two years, and in the future, during the year that the Big Game occurs in Berkeley, a home-coming is to be arranged. This is to be a permanent bi-yearly event. Personal interest has been aroused in the University activities; the meetings of similar groups, such as engineers, cadet officers, and agriculture graduates, have been arranged; in addition to which the Association has supervised such functions as Charter Day dinners, Commencement Day luncheons, and alumni class reunions.

The California Alumni Association has promoted the raising of preliminary funds, the investigation of permanent financing and building of new dormitories, has instituted the keeping of addresses and records of thousands of alumni, has assisted in raising money for the Lannam fund, the Wreck Womble fund, and money for relief of Berkeley fire sufferers. Plans are being laid for the establishment of a permanent fund, resembling the Yale Alumni fund.

The aim of the Association is to concern itself eternally with all those University problems of intimate interest to the people of California, as seen through the eyes of the alumni—the welfare of their University, its aims and aspirations. This policy of concerning itself with these great University problems is proving itself to be more and more valuable to the University. That the undergraduates appreciate the fine work of the Association can be seen by the increasing number who are joining its ranks immediately upon graduation.

REGISTRATION OF THE ALUMNI ON THEIR RETURN

ALUMNI HOME-COMING

CALIFORNIA'S second Alumni Home-coming met with the genuine success which assures the future of one of the newest and most valuable of University traditions. More than a mere diversion from the worries of the outside world, or a chance to renew old friendships, Home-coming means to California's alumni an opportunity to see their Alma Mater at first hand, to realize what it is doing, and to carry back to their communities a true picture of our great University.

This year the attempt was made to bring back the alumni by tying up each individual to the organization or activity with which he or she was most vitally connected while in college. This personal appeal was largely responsible for the fact that the number of alumni who were here during the course of the three days was well over twenty thousand and greatly exceeded the number last year. Registration figures show that ever ten thousand returned to the Campus prior to the Big Game.

Thursday night the alumni were welcomed at a well-attended reception held in Stephens Union, at which Governor Richardson and President Campbell were the guests of honor. Friday morning a great gathering was held in the Greek Theatre. The late Walter Camp, whom the University was most fortunate to have as its official guest during Home-coming, spoke on "The True Ideals of Sportsmanship." Robert Sibley '03, manager of the Alumni Association, presided; Charles W. Merrill '91, president of the Association, welcomed the alumni; and Dean Hart represented President Campbell.

Most successful of all were the football dinners on Friday night. When five hundred and fifty plates were sold for the Men's banquet, the possibility of holding such a function on the Campus was clearly demonstrated. Charles Merrill acted as toastmaster, and throughout the evening the finest of spirit prevailed. The program and entertainment at the Women's banquet eclipsed, if anything, that at the Men's.

On Saturday, alumni luncheons were served at all the fraternity, sorority, and club houses, and in some cases difficulty was experienced in accommodating the numerous guests. The Big Game in the afternoon formed a fitting climax to one of the greatest Home-comings that will ever be held by the University.

Home-coming is of great value to both the students and the graduates in that it brings to them a closer relationship, and keeps aflame that famous fire known as "California Spirit," and as long as California turns out such citizens as she has been doing, the flame will be clear and bright. Graduates came from all over the United States, quite a number traveling across the continent from New York and Boston and many other Eastern cities, which shows that practically no distance is too great to cover for many of our alumni when they are returning to their Alma Mater.

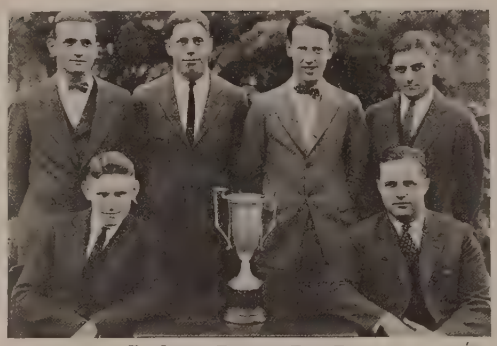
Center of Student Activity on the Farm



The Judging Team and Their Trophy

UNIVERSITY FARM

THE year Nineteen Twenty-five found the California Aggies with the lowest enrollment that has ever been known in the history of the Farm, but the student body, through its spirit and ceaseless effort, made up in quality where it lacked in quantity. In athletics, and many of the other activities, the students displayed a "Fighting California Spirit" that meant success to every undertaking in 1924-25.

The California Aggies are charter members in the Far West Conference. This new organization bands together in athletic relationship the University of Santa Clara, the University of Nevada, St. Mary's College, the College of the Pacific, Fresno State Teachers' College, and the California Aggies. Beginning next year these institutions will be given a chance to show what they can do in athletics, for they will compete in four major sports: football, basket ball, baseball, and track.

The Jitney Fair is the largest fete of the fall semester. The day is featured by booths, stunts, and exhibits by fraternities, dormitory clubs, and campus organizations, a show by the faculty, and a jitney dance given by the Block Letter Society. A large majority take part in the many stunts. The last fair was a huge success from every viewpoint and every one enjoyed himself immensely.

The biggest day of the Aggie year is Picnic Day, which is held in the spring semester. On this day we declare Open House and invite the public to view the institution and see the progress that has been made. The general public has always responded to the invitation, but this year from fifteen to twenty thousand people visited the University Farm. Some of the main events on the program were farm industry exhibits, a parade, student judging contests, athletic events, original features, and also dancing. This event lasts throughout the day and constitutes the final diversion of the spring semester.

The Farm

Davis Derby Day

North Dormitory Group

LAST October the Juniors set a precedent for future agricultural students on the Farm by holding a Junior Derby Day. Thus they are showing their true Californian Spirit by bringing to light some of the very old traditions which California has fostered in the past. Derby Day was observed by a very large majority and will probably prove to be a standing tradition. The purpose for wearing derbies, according to the Juniors, was to make Juniors felt at the University Farm.

For the first time in history the University of California sent a dairy judging team to the National Dairy Show to compete with teams from major agricultural colleges in the United States. The team consisted of four men, who judged both the dairy cattle and the dairy products. The Californian team placed seventh in all dairy breeds and second in butter, fifth in milk, fifth in cheese, and third in all dairy products. Naturally we were pleased with this showing, for it was made by California in competing with the best colleges in the United States.

Three judging teams representing the University of California demonstrated their ability against colleges of the Northwest at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition. The dairy cattle team and the dairy products placed fourth. The livestock-judging team came through in regular California style and placed first in the contest. They were the first team in sheep and cattle, second in hogs, and tied for fifth on horses. The team won the third leg and thereby won permanent possession of the cup awarded by the Guaranty and Loan Company of Portland, which goes every year to the team standing first in the judging of beef cattle.

The branch of the College of Agriculture at Davis at present is equipped to give the student a competent scientific education as well as a practical training. This advanced and modernized equipment has helped to make the public realize what a great institution this agricultural branch is and what it is doing to make farming pursuits more scientific and thus more efficient.

SOUTHERN BRANCH

THE Southern Branch of the University of California is looking to the future with eager eyes and hopes for a truly university career following the selection of the Westwood-Beverly Hills site, within the city limits of Los Angeles, as the future location for the new branch.

On Saturday night, March 21, the Board of Regents, meeting in San Francisco, decided by a unanimous vote for the southern site, thus according recognition to the tremendous educational impetus that has resulted in the overcrowded condition at the present site.

The decision was given only after many months of careful study, and represents the expert opinion of educational experts who have given much time and effort in weighing the advantages of the many different locations that were offered to the board.

Work on the buildings for the new site will be started as soon as bond issues can be provided for by the state legislature and voted upon by the people of the state of California. Surveying and the work of laying out the plans for the institution itself have already begun.

The decision to locate the branch in Los Angeles came after many deliberations in which the board considered the merits of the many sites that were offered by a number of municipalities of the state. It was finally decided to retain the branch in the southern metropolis because there is a great need for a metropolitan institution of higher learning, because it was also pointed out that ninety per cent of the students now attending the branch come there because it is a city college, a place where educational advantages are offered to large numbers at the smallest possible cost, a place where home environment may prevail while students are yet finishing their education, and a place where hours may be so arranged that persons compelled to work may be free to do so in the city during holidays and after classes in the afternoon.

In all, the Beverly Hills site was found to be the one site that had the greatest facilities for pleasing the greatest numbers. The advantages of a large city are assured by the closeness of Los Angeles, and yet it is sufficiently removed to insure intensified interest in college.

The attitude of the branch and the students themselves can be best given in the statement of Fred M. Jordan, '25, president of the Associated Students of the University of California, Southern Branch:

"Speaking for the great majority of our student body, I can safely say to the Board of Regents that we unanimously endorse the action taken last Saturday in choosing Westwood as the new site for the southern division of the State University.

"The site chosen is beautiful as regards natural scenic beauty, it being quite possible to see Catalina Island from the plateau where the buildings will be placed. Furthermore, it is practical as regards climate, acreage and transportation facilities.

"It has been intimated in certain quarters that the choice of the Regents will meet with opposition when it comes up for approval in the legislature. It is sincerely to be hoped that the whole of Southern California will unite to build what has always been desired here: a great state center of university education which not alone will rank with local or Pacific Coast institutions, but will take its place with universities of the world.

"To the building of just such an Alma Mater we should now turn all our efforts and dedicate all our loyalty. This is the great opportunity for the students of the Southern Branch to show how loyal they can be, and we expect to see a result that will be representative of the true spirit of our student body."

Dr. Ernest C. Moore, director, says: "Now the State University is the youngest of Socrates' children. It exists to incarnate his convictions that knowledge is the thing of supreme importance in the life of man. In the six years since this branch was started it has been the most conclusive possible demonstration that full and complete provision for the higher education of thousands of young people must be made here. A college that enrolls 5,627 students in the sixth year of its life has good reason for being and has plainly come to stay."

So in six short years the Southern Branch has almost come to equal its parent here; and now that it has a new site almost assured it, it and its students are working and dedicating themselves to the establishment of a greater university in the south. And they are to be congratulated for their efforts, which we hope will bring very soon the end toward which they are striving, that of attaining an equal enrollment to that of its parent.

Activities at the branch have assumed a leading part of campus life during the past year especially. As activities are one of the greatest factors denoting the life of a university, the growth of activities shows that the branch is becoming more and more a factor that must be considered when in competition. Fraternities and sororities are coming to the campus daily, indicating that such organizations recognize its standing, reputation, and place. With the the growth of such organizations we feel that a greater unity of action will result which will further concentrate the efforts of the student body toward activities for the good of the University. The atmosphere that is cultivated by organizations is one of friendship, and that is one of the things that help to make the year spent at the University worth while. Thus we feel that the development of activities and organizations on the campus of the branch portends a greater success to the efforts of the students.

In these next few years of a new and bigger start as a grown-up university, the students from the north, and the parent institution, extend all the good wishes for a success. We hope that they will succeed in building up the great educational center that they desire to build, and that they will also make a success at their activities.

COLLEGE OF DENTISTRY

Lloyd B. Tocher
President A.S. U. C., College of Dentistry

WITH another year coming to a close at the College of Dentistry, we find one more page filled with advancement and improvement. The school calendar for the past year has included numerous athletic, social, and class events.

The athletic season held many exciting encounters for the Dental teams. The high spots of the athletic season were the winnings by the Dental five. The team met the Varsity one-forty-five-pound team, and defeated them 19-13. The game was alive with tensity from the start to the final whistle. Both teams showed the results of training and effective coaching, and it was only during the last moments of play that the Dental College got the six-point lead which gained the game for them. Later in the season, the one-forty-five-pound Dental team played Stanford's team of the same weight. The final score stood as a decisive victory for the Affiliated College. This game may be characterized by speed, accuracy, and clean sportsmanship.

An annual event of the spring semester was Labor Day. This year Labor Day was devoted, in general, to painting and cleaning about the campus. Also a few final touches were made on the tennis and handball courts. Through this annual Labor Day the odd jobs of improvement about the campus are handled by the members of the student body.

The Brawl, another event of the year, included a tie-up, a wand race, and a tug-of-war. Much interest was centered in this "class battle," and with one year of experience to their credit, the Sophomores had little difficulty in winning the Brawl.

In summing up the social functions, the most important were the class dances which were given throughout the year. On the fourteenth of March, the Dental College Formal was held, and it was declared to be the most successful in years.

Aside from these activities, the Dental College has taken its place among the leading dental schools of the West as an educational unit. The instructors who are chosen for the College of Dentistry are only the best and most efficient. They devote their entire time to their work, and are thus able to furnish the students with the very best instruction attained through skill and experience.

COLLEGE OF MEDICINE

THE College of Medicine of the University of California requires three years of pre-medical work for admission, the entering class being limited to sixty students elected from qualified applicants on a basis of scholarship.

The course in the Medical School proper is five years, including one year as interne in an approved hospital. The University of California is one of eight Grade A medical schools in the United States requiring the interne year prior to the granting of the M. D. degree. The first year and a half of the course is given on the Berkeley campus. The remainder of the course is given at the Medical School on Parnassus Avenue in San Francisco, which, besides being one of the best medical schools in the country, is one of the most beautiful and is situated on top of one of the highest hills in the city, overlooking Golden Gate Park, the military reservation at the Presidio, San Francisco Bay, and the Pacific Ocean. Clinical instruction is given in the out-patient department in the Medical School building and in the 282-bed University Hospital adjoining.

The Associated Medical Student body of the University of California is composed of all students matriculated in the Medical School. Their executive committee, composed of a president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and a representative from each class, constitutes the governing body of the association and sits as a Students' Welfare Committee when occasion demands. The present officers are:

COLLEGE OF PHARMACY

J. M. Nagle
President of A. S. U. C., College of Pharmacy

CALIFORNIA College of Pharmacy, which is affiliated with the University of California, is now celebrating its fifty-third anniversary. Each year the College of Pharmacy adds a record of achievement and development to its already filled pages.

Most important among the records for the current year is the organization of the basket ball team. The award of merit for these players is the octagon "C". One of the achievements in the athletic schedule was the three-game series between the College of Dentistry and the College of Pharmacy. The Dental College won the series.

Efforts to develop a closer relationship between these two colleges have been very successful. Two joint rallies were held, and many members witnessed the spirit which was displayed at these gatherings. These rallies, one before the Big Game and the other before the U. C. vs. U. S. C. game, correlated a greater display of enthusiasm than had ever before been shown.

The student body has done much to form a closer co-operation between the University proper and the Affiliated Colleges. One of the factors in this is the source of news between the Daily Californian and the Affiliated Colleges.

With the ever-increasing student body and the spirit of the combined student bodies, not only the College of Pharmacy, but the Affiliated Colleges, as a whole, expect to do much in the future.

PRE-VACATION

She climbed to the top of Grizzly Peak
And looked across at the Bay;
The fog stretched friendly arms to her,
Long arms so soft and gray.
She thought of farewells to loving friends
She knew she soon must say;
While the setting sun by the Golden Gate
Unshackled a crystal ray
To brighten a moment the Berkeley Hills,
O'er which a soft mist lay.
She paused a moment on Grizzly Peak,
Then silently turned away
As the fog waved again and again good-by!
With long arms softly gray.

Are We Bees?

You make me wonder with a smile
Half cynic and half sad the while
At your content,
And ask, "Why is your spirit bound
To grovel thus upon the ground?
Was 't God's intent
That your proud soul should clip its wings
And live with lowly, common things?"

You answer that the Master Mind
Creates and to its fate will bind
By His decree
Each human soul, that we must give Him praise because He lets us live
Content, not free,
That His great wisdom wills to send
His toys to their predestined end.

But no, bethink you, are we bees
Born to be drones or queens? God sees
The final Day
But robs us not of that great Choice,
Freedom in which we all rejoice,
To choose our way,
To wallow in a noisesome sty
Or wing triumphant to the sky.

I do not think that God demands
The unwilling labor of our hands
In lowly deeds
When we have souls too proud and free
To blossom in the company
Of common weeds.
A king is not a king until
He wields the sceptre of his will.

RALLIES

SMOKER RALLIES

"Peeps" Kellam
Rally Chairman

HUNDREDS of alumni and thousands of California men participated in the annual Smoker Rally at Harmon Gymnasium preceding the Stanford-California game. A frenzied demonstration which shook old Harmon and fairly lifted the roof welcomed Andy Smith and his gridiron warriors.

The return of Californians of many years past for the Home-coming Celebration added to the thunder which vibrated in the air above the Berkeley Campus.

In a smoke-saturated room, John S. Stroud, captain of the 1912 Varsity, characterized the 1924 eleven as having the "greatest fighting heart of any football squad ever representing California; that spirit makes for victory and renders defeat impossible."

Straining his voice to carry above the tumultuous din, Andy Smith, head football coach, declared that the formation of a California football team which trampled upon its opposition despite the gloomy wailings of the journalistic dopesters was not due to his efforts but to the unconquerable spirit and fighting heart of the men themselves. He predicted that the team would be in tiptop condition for the classic event of the football season. After announcing the lineup, Coach Smith introduced "Babe" Horrell as the greatest captain in America.

Music was provided by "Bun" Hillicker's orchestra and by "Scotchy" Campbell, a talented singer.

Walter Christie presented the winners of the intramural sports contests with trophies. The veteran Bruin track coach then philosophized as only he can do, about the California team and the California spirit. No gathering of the masculine element of California would be complete without the "Grand Old Man of California." He seems to embody all that the words "California's fighting spirit" mean, and it is our sincere hope that the track men under his supervision are fired with the same flame.

The smoker rally, which is one of the finest of California's grand old traditions, occurs annually on the eve of the "Big Game." It is an event which thrills all of the undergraduates to the very core, for here great California athletes come to tell the men of the University of how it was in '98 or '09 or some other great year. A humorous and fitting story must be told before a speaker will be allowed to continue with his speech. Cigarettes are supplied by a leading tobacco dealer in enormous quantities, although in never too large quantities for the undergraduates. The women of the University hold a rally each year on the same night as the smoker rally, so that they, too, can be imbued with "California spirit." And we proved that the glory of California did not go up in smoke, for the dream of the Californians was no pipe.

The Firemen of California Spirit and Custodians of the Rallies

FIFTEEN thousand people heard Dean Frank H. Probert charge the 1928 class with the carrying out of California's ideals and traditions at the annual Freshman Rally, held in the Greek Theatre on September 25.

Engendered by a blazing fire, California spirit saturated the heavens in its first official reception of the "Babe" class. The annual yell contest was won by the Freshman Class, much to the disappointment of their elders. With the exception of the 1926 class the Sophomores had carried off honors in the vocal exercises for many years.

"Nibs" Price, assistant Varsity gridiron coach, and "Pesky" Sprott, Freshman football mentor, spoke about the football situation. Coach Price emphasized the handicap under which the Varsity was laboring due to the lack of seasoned material, but prophesied a successful season provided that one hundred per cent support was rendered the Bruins.

Yell Leader George Gaw

California has always been the proud parent of many successful campus orchestras. On this occasion the spectators were treated to some rare harmony provided by Horace Heidt's dance orchestra and the combined orchestras of "Hal" Gervin and "Bob" Beale. Gervin, a clever soft shoe dancer, entertained the audience with his pedal capers. Franklin Roberts of the Glee Club sang three baritone solos.

The Gambel brothers, who have been dubbed the "California Blue Blowers," played several jazz selections which fairly rocked the foundations of the Hearst edifice.

Yell Leader George Gaw directed the California cheers which interspersed the stunts. The first rally of the fall semester ended when "All Hail" arose from many energetic voices to remind the starry "Father" that his disciples were recharged with the ideals and traditions for which the Bears stand. These ideals and traditions represent that something for which our university stands, and it is only when our group is gathered around the bonfire at a rally that we realize in part the true meaning of them.

The Freshman Rally

AX RALLY

Martin Minty
Assistant Yell Leader

As the flames mounted higher within the Greek Theatre, ten thousand Californians gathered for the Annual Axe Rally on the evening of April 9 to pledge anew their support to the three Varsity teams. Massed before the blistering and roaring fire to celebrate the twenty-sixth anniversary of the capture of the Stanford Axe, the students gave a thundering welcome to the baseball, crew, and track squads, as they crossed the stage and took the seats reserved for them.

Burton A. King, custodian of the Axe for 1924, turned the famous and carefully guarded blade over to Frank D. Thatcher '26, the new guardian, with the message that the spirit of the Axe is in the heart of every man on the Varsity baseball squad.

Coach Andy Smith awarded the Percy Hall trophy to James A. Dixon '26, Varsity fullback, as being the most valuable man on an eleven made up of brilliant players.

The story ot the seizure of the Axe was graphically recounted by Dr. Paul Castleheim '00, who was one of the small band of beloved Californian raiders. The story of the "stolen Axe" is one which is ever dear to the heart of every loyal Californian, and is a story which never grows tiresome. Other speakers of the evening were Coaches "Walt" Christie, "Ky" Ebright, Carl Zamloch, "Rusty" Callow of the Washington crew, and Captain Lloyd Vallelly of the Wisconsin track team. The two visiting teams were guests at the rally and entertained with several of their songs and yells.

The orchestras of Girvin-Dueul and Horace Heidt '24 furnished music for the occasion, and a diversified program of entertainment was provided. Irving (Dutch) Neumiller '21, so well known to Californians, "Pete" Horner '26, a novelty skit by Thomas C. Quayle '25, Joseph P. Kelly '26, and Harold Rosenblum '26 were part of the program. The program was proclaimed by all to be one of the best in many years.

Following the singing of "All Hail" which closed the Twenty-sixth Axe Rally, Thatcher with a bodyguard of nearly a thousand Freshmen carried the Axe back to the bank, where it will be guarded for another year as the emblem of California's fight and spirit.

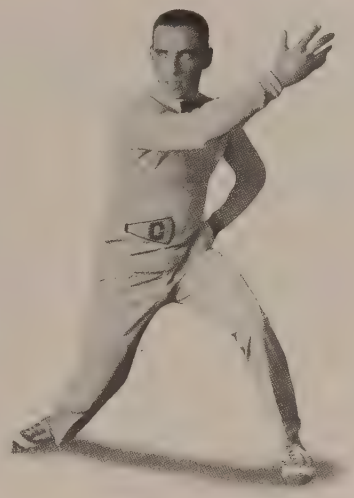
PAJAMARINO RALLY



HALL JACOBS, Assistant

THE intense heat of a roaring fire, rivaled only by the frenzied fervor of the many thousand pajama-clad Californians who urged their Varsity on to victory, characterized the annual Pajamarino Rally held in the Greek Theatre on November 13.

One of the largest crowds that ever witnessed a rally overflowed the Greek Theatre and left many late stragglers to view the spectacle from the tree tops and hillside.

A spontaneous uproar broke loose which lasted fully ten minutes when the California Varsity was led across the stage by Coach Andy Smith. Never before was California spirit pitched to any higher degree. In commenting upon the Washington game, which ended in a tie, "Andy" assured the crowds that it was heart-rending to have a victory turned into a tie in the last few minutes of play, but that inasmuch as the result seemed to do Washington a lot of good, and California no harm, there was nothing lost. In speaking of the Stanford game, the Bruin Coach pictured the Cards' eleven as a well-groomed machine and prophesied a battle to the finish. In conclusion, the California foot ball genius added that "California's fighting spirit is that 'something else' that wins for her against stronger opposition."

Stunts by the four classes, music by "Puss" Donahoo's and James Bachelder's orchestras and entertainment by Paul McCoy and William Murray made up the evening's entertainment. The class stunts are an annual feature of the Pajamarino Rally. The Senior Stunt, which was undoubtedly clever, pictured college life as distorted by the demon "Yellow Journal" and college life as it really exists. The rally was proclaimed by many to be the best in years. Though each year brings new stunts, the California spirit will always remain the same dauntless carefree thing that is portrayed only around rally bonfires.

YELLS AT A SEND-OFF RALLY

INFORMAL RALLIES

AS is usual during the "football" semester, California spirit was kept at its height by numerous informal rallies. The fact that the team was laboring under a handicap seemed to lend impetus to these traditional gatherings and much enthusiasm and spirit was displayed by the loyal Californian rooters. Before the "Big Game," Wheeler steps teemed with a multitude of enthusiastic and vociferous rooters. Several ten-minute rallies were held before classes during the day before the game. When the game was but a memory, another rally in the bleachers of California Field made it a lasting one. Even the women felt the atmosphere of excitement and held an impromptu rally of their own. These informal rallies, modest as to pretentions, but vainglorious in their ambition for California, are but a tradition which shall never be discarded.

It is in these informal rallies on Wheeler steps and in the bleachers that California's fighting spirit is kept alive. The splendid spirit shown at the games is the direct result of these numerous rallies that break the routine of the college day.

VICTORY RALLY AT "CAL" FIELD

"BABE" HORRELL GIVING A SEND-OFF ADDRESS

WASHINGTON SEND-OFF RALLY

THE only send-off rally of the year was held at the depot at First and University on the eve of November the fifth. The "Bruin Bears," hosts for the evening, before their departure for the north, entertained a large group of football enthusiasts at seven-thirty. Much enthusiasm was shown by the thousand football fans and rooters who followed the team to the station to wish them a last farewell before one of the hardest battles of the season.

The yell leaders pushed their way into the crowd and managed to lead in excellent fashion the already excited, loyal Californians. The speakers for the evening included a fine list of authorities on that subject predominant in our minds—"football." Among these were Andy Smith, Boles Rosenthal, Jimmy Dixon, Tut Imlay and Babe Horrell. It was only when the train pulled in that the real spirit of the crowd showed itself, and continued until every Bear had mounted the steps of the car, and the train was well out of hearing.

GAW AND MINNEY IN ACTION

California

Very old are your trees
And very old the ground
On which we tread
Unmindful.
And, California, you are old,
Oh, no one knows
How old you are;
Yet we, in our all wise way,
Say,
Eighteen Sixty-eight.

In dim Eden you began,
And all down the way
Point milestones
To the day
When you should rise
In splendor and in glory,
In beauty, beauty rare,
That shall not vanish.

Our fearless Fathers saw the light,
And shod in sandals indomitable,
Marched forth,
And found you here;
Found you consecrated at dawn
By the Sun's Red Haze
That broke o'er these selfsame hills
That smile down upon us now.
And they said,
"It is well.
Here our Minds, our Hearts, our Souls;
And those who follow
Shall carry these torches on and on."

The sense of my littleness is upon me,
O California,
And my soul cries out to you
When I walk within your Shrine.
I would sing three songs,
And my first song praise
And my second song praise
And my third song praise to you,
O California!

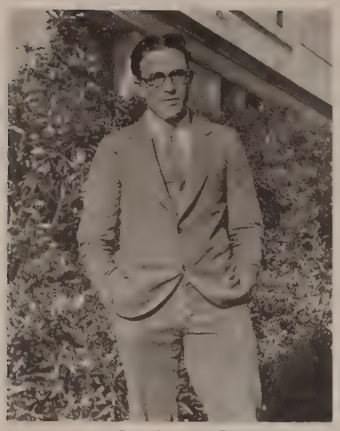
Activities

DRAMATICS



Robert Ross, Dramatics Director

STAFF OFFICERS

LITTLE THEATRE entered upon the fourth and best year of its activities with the season of 1924-25. Expansion in all fields of dramatics and co-operation between the students and the academic departments is a characteristic form of its development.

A new innovation which has proved very successful is the so-called "Little Theatre Forum." The purpose of the Forum is to further interest in the Little Theatre as well as a more developed criticism of dramatic productions through the group system. There are three officers at the head of the Forum. They are: Barton Yarborough, chairman; Conrad Kahn, assistant chairman; Christal Maston, secretary. This body meets every two weeks and at these meetings discussions are carried on concerning all phases of dramatics. A one-act play directed by one of the members and using the talent in the organization is also given at these meetings. "Ario de Capio," the first one-act play to be presented, was directed by Margaret Yeaman and proved very successful. A discussion of the play given at the former meeting is held at the meeting following. This method of producing plays before the entire body assists the players greatly by the constructive criticism which is offered.

Members of the dramatics department are certainly to be congratulated on the interest which they have created in campus dramatics, through their own enthusiasm and untiring efforts, and also through the efforts of their various staffs. Little Theatre can mean much to the campus and public, but it is only through the combined interest and patronage of both that the Little Theatre can attain the high goal it has set for itself.

LITTLE THEATER

"The Angel in the House"

THE Little Theatre Season opened with Philpott and Hastings' clever English comedy, "The Angel in the House," on September 12 and 13 in Wheeler Auditorium. This play, with its delightful English humor, showed Hyacinth Petavel, played by John Eldridge, to be truly "an angel in any house." Pauline Yesberg in the part of "Lady Sarel" finally succeeded in capturing Hyacinth for her own by "exuding warmth" with the aid of her flannel petticoat.

"THE ROMANTIC AGE"

"TO make bread sauce, take an onion, peel it, quarter it, and simmer it in milk." With these lines the romantic lovable little Melesande, played by Ruth Taft, became the practical young lady in the final curtain of A. A. Milne's play "The Romantic Age" presented October 3-4. Each character of the cast was admirably suited to the part portrayed. The part of "Gervase," portrayed by Bob Ross, was outstanding. Don Blanchard as "Gentleman Susan" did an excellent piece of character work.

The Other Side of Life

Being Advised

Don Blanchard and Erma Dusenberry in "Icebound"

"ICEBOUND"

STIFLING their natural emotions behind a mask of cold and severe austerity, the characters in Owen Davis' play "Icebound" represented vividly the lives of small-town folk of Northern Maine, whose faults and virtues are the direct outcome of their environment. This play received the Pulitzer prize for the best American play of 1922, and was one of the best productions that the Little Theatre has given.

The leading characters of "Jane" and "Ben" were taken by Erma Dusenberry and Donald Blanchard. Other members of the cast were Barton Yarborough, Lenore Everett, Mildred Heavey, Elinor Evans, and Melville Jacobs, Lester Rapheld, Egbert James.

The play opens with the Jordans waiting for their mother to die. Their thoughts are not on her death, but on the money which they know she will leave. "Jane," a second cousin, is made the sole heir. "Ben," the black sheep of the family, wanted by the police, returns at his mother's death. The play from this point on is one of remarkable character development.

"OUTWARD BOUND"

"OUTWARD BOUND," by Sutton Vane, the drama which deals with the psychological reaction of the human soul toward life after death, was given January 30-31 and February 6-7 and also February 13-14, as the first presentation of the Spring season. This play was given under the supervision of Miss Sarah Huntsman of the Public Speaking Department, and was the outcome of classroom work.

This play scored the greatest success so far had by the Little Theatre.

The proceeds of the performance of Friday night, February 13, were given to the Women's Faculty Club.

Important rôles were well taken by Robert Ross, Donald Blanchard, Conrad Kahn, Barton Yarborough, Lyman Henry, John Eldridge, Aphra West, Ohlee Hubbard, and Mildred Heavey.

The Court Sentence

"HER HUSBAND'S WIFE"

Conrad Kahn and Irma Dusenberry in "The Pigeon"

A NEW precedent in campus dramatics has been set. The Little Theatre on February 21 took "Her Husband's Wife," a whimsical farce by A. E. Thomas, to Antioch, where it was enthusiastically received. While in the town the members of the cast were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis, the principal of the Antioch High School and his wife, and of the Women's Club.

"Her Husband's Wife" was presented on the campus February 27-28 to crowded houses. The story of the play is that of a whimsical little hypochondriac, Irene, played by Mildred Sexsmith, who believes she is going to die and decides to pick her husband's next wife. How she proceeds in this arrangement, choosing one of their most dowdy friends, Miss Laden, played by Madeline Cornell, who turns out to be quite charming, and how she becomes jealous due to the clever maneuvering of Uncle John, played by Donald Blanchard, and Richard, played by Irving Hamilton; and how she decides to be her own husband's wife, all offered interesting situations. Robert Ross played the rôle of Stewart, the husband in question. Norah, the maid, was played by Charlotte Barnes.

"THE PIGEON"

HOW a trusting philanthropist may be plucked by persons he believes deserving, was the theme of the third presentation of the Little Theatre, which was "The Pigeon," by John Galsworthy. Three one-act prize-winning plays were to have been presented, but due to difficulties in staging them, John Galsworthy's play "The Pigeon" was substituted. It was given March 19 and 20.

Mr. Wellyn, played by Conrad Kahn, a kind-hearted old artist, is continually being plucked and preyed upon by social parasites. His daughter, Ann, played by Erma Dusenberry, tries to shield him, but to no avail. Finally, Christmas Eve brings a French vagabond, played by Robert Ross; a flower girl, portrayed by Oahlu Hubbard; and an ex-coachman, played by Lyman Henry, to be protected from the storm. In order to get rid of them the Wellyns are required to move. The "pigeon," however, cannot resist disclosing the new address and the "plucking" goes on in an endless cycle.

Others of the cast were Henry McFarland, Lynn Chaplin, Irving Hamilton, John Sandoval, William Young, and Leonard Lathrop.

Willard Giottinni as "Tom"

TREBLE CLEF OPERA, "PONG"

"WHAT is it you say when you take what you want in Mah Jongg?" So questioned Willard Giottinni in the part of "Tom" when he takes "dream girl" of the West Wind in the Treble Clef musical comedy, "Pong," which was presented October 17 in the Oakland Auditorium. The script of "Pong" was written by Jean Dupont, and the lyrics and music by Dorothy Gillespie. The story of the play was that of a young man who could not quite decide whether Barbara, played by Henriette Cornell, was the "girl of his dreams" or not. Li Po, the Chinese cook, protrayed by Ralph Teall, aids him in his decision by taking him on a trip to the "Four Winds." He travels to the North Wind, East Wind, and South Wind, only to return to the West Wind and his "dream girl."

The atmosphere of each wind was admirably given and held, due especially to the interesting costumes and settings which were designed by Stanley Quakenbush.

A special feature of the musical comedy was the very unusual type of chorus; the "Teddy Bear," the "Mah Jongg," and the Romance choruses were all most charming. The dancing of the choruses was directed by Dorothy Damianakes, Elizabeth Scoble, and Burdette Spencer. Mr. Burt St. John directed the production, and the musical director was Mr. Paul Steindorff.

"SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER"

Clever Scenes from the Comedy

"SHE Stoops to Conquer," the comedy by Oliver Goldsmith, was presented by the University Players' Club under the auspices of the Little Theatre, as the last production of the semester, on April 10th and 11th in Wheeler Auditorium. The play was the result of classroom work and was under the supervision of Professor Charles D. Von Newmeyer of the Public Speaking Department. Professor Von Newmeyer is an inspiring coach and receives wonderful results from those under his direction.

The story is that of a young man, Marlowe, who, mischievously misdirected by a country bumpkin, Tony Lumpkin, mistakes his future father-in-law's house for an inn. The resulting complications are numerous and interesting. As the outstanding trait of his nature is that of his ease when he is in the presence of servant girls, but embarrassment when he is with young ladies of his own social standing, the young lady of the house, Miss Hardcastle, portrays the part of a servant girl, and thus stoops to conquer the man she loves.

The cast of the play included Juanita Gates, Robert Ross, Barton Yarborough, Dorothy Gillespie, Helen Gray, Donald Blanchard, Arthur Thorsch, and Gossine Satterwhite. The play was remarkably well cast, and this fact along with the able supervision made the production a huge success.

MASK AND DAGGER

"THE Chester Mysteries" were presented under the auspices of the Little Theatre as the last plays of the fall season, December 4-5. It was without doubt the best and most interesting accomplishment of the season. The "Mysteries" were under the auspices of Professor C. D. Von Newmeyer of the Public Speaking Department.

The three plays presented in this "cycle" were "The Shepherds' Watch," "The Offering of the Shepherds," and "The Adoration of the Magi." These three representations succeeded each other quite easily, and one felt the fulfillment of the artistic beauty, simplicity, and rhythmic quality inherent in them.

The nave of the cathedral, with its nicely designed windows on either side, seemed a suitable background for "The Shepherds' Watch," created by Lois Wagg, Ethel King, and Stanley Quackenbush. It fitted in also with the wise men and their Nubian slaves bearing gifts to the infant Christ-child, and with the manger of Jesus.

Mary and Joseph were played by Florence and Stanley Quackenbush. Gossine Satterwhite played the part of Trowle. The Kings were portrayed by Sidney Ehrman, John Eldridge, and A. J. Farmer. Others in the cast of Shepherds, Priests, and Nubian slaves were Barton Yarborough, Henry McFarland, William Young, Harland Frederick, Harold Kirby, Harold Stump, and H. Keller.

JUNIOR CURTAIN RAISER

BRAINS and ambition triumphed over poverty and difference in social stations in the curtain raiser "Nugget Hunters, Inc.," written by Kenneth Priestley as the opening function for the 1926 Class Junior Day.

Barton Yarborough, as the "Young Man," would not be downcast when the "Young Lady," Madeline Cornell, turned away from him because of his lack of worldly goods. He formed a money-making company for supplying "Nuggets" to sororities, and, by his ambition and devotion, won the respect of the "Young Lady." She had been secretly helping the organization by sending men and girls as "nuggets," but now everyone was wearing brass. The Young Lady said that she still had no brass, so he rushed to get her the diamond, long saved. Thus like all heroes he finally got the object of his desire, which for him was the greatest nugget of all.

The curtain raiser was one of the cleverest presented in years and certainly dealt with a subject which interested the audience. The whole skit created a general good atmosphere for the Farce which followed.

JUNIOR FARCE

Ed. Duerr, B. Metzler, K. Priestley

"LADY Bug, Lady Bug," written by Brenton Metzler and Edwin Duerr, was the farce selected for the 1926 Junior Day. This two-and-a-half-act play involved many novel campus situations, and the element of mystery especially predominated. Nothing amuses a college audience quite as much as to see themselves caricatured in some form or another, and the fact that it was concerned with everything that makes college life interesting made it particularly enjoyable.

The plot centered around Don, played by Ellington Bruce, and Barbara, played by Burdette Spencer, who were desperately in love with each other. Lyman Henry, as Higginmaster, and Conrad Kahn, as Heroditus Aken, complicate matters considerably by framing up a story to eliminate Don from Barbara's favor. Don was too much of a successful rival to suit Higginmaster. The carrying out of fake personifications and breath-taking situations made the story an amusing one. The whole play seemed to revolve around the brilliant ideas of Theobald Axel Witherspoon, played with the greatest success by John Eldridge. Theobald, who never could think without a jelly bean in his mouth, was the most amusing character in the farce. All you had to do was to hand him a jelly bean and his mind would unravel any mystery and find some solution for any difficult situation. The dialogues between him and Sophia, played by Laura Straub, an ambitious college poetess, were especially funny. All the situations were cleared up when the "Man from Mars" was discovered to be Higginmaster.

GLEE CLUB ROAD SHOW

A BLACK-FACE interpretation of songs, and a dance monologue entitled "Songs More or Less" presented by "Chick" Cole, were the leading features of the Glee Club Road Show, given October 31 in Harmon Gymnasium.

The twelve acts which comprised the program were splendidly interpreted by the members of the Glee Club. The entire show was indeed a credit to "Brick" Morse, the famed director. The program consisted of:

"The Rehearsals," a burlesque on college dramatics, was given in the Memorial Room of Stephens Union on February 24. It was directed by Esther Bostleman.

A Scene from "The Frogs"

THE ENGLISH CLUB PLAY

THE annual English Club play was given on April 18th in the Greek Theatre. It was an excellent production, well directed by Professor Charles D. Newmeyer, of the Department of Public Speaking, a member of the English Club.

"The Frogs," by Aristophanes, is a typical classical Greek comedy. It has all the scintillating wit and humor that can possibly be crowded into one play. It is a laugh from start to finish. One does not realize that the classic writers had such a wonderful sense of humor until one sees a play of this type. It is distinctly different, and for that reason it pleased the campus public.

The story of "The Frogs" is that of Dionysus, a Greek poet, who, with his servant, Xanthius, goes to Hades to find the true Greek Poet. On their way to Hades, and while they are in Hades, they encounter any number of comical adventures and humorously trying situations. They meet Pluto and Æacus, as well as a number of other well-known historical characters. This fact makes the play especially interesting to witness. It is not often that such a production is received with much enthusiasm, but the idea of seeing a really funny Greek comedy aroused the curiosity of many people.

The costumes and settings for this unusual production were designed by Lois Wagg. The masques worn by Æacus and the high priests were designed by Stanley Quackenbush and executed by Ernest Baer.

Others on the production staff were Richard Clendenin, manager; Dorothy Damianakes, dancing director; Elma Auze, publicity director; Howard McLure, properties; and Dorothy Gillespie, the manager of the music for the chorus. These people are in a large way responsible for the success of the production. They have worked well together and their efforts have been well rewarded.

PARTHENEIA

"THREADS OF THE LOOM"

Dorothy Damianakes, Betty Scoble

"THREADS OF THE LOOM," written by Nellie Hatchell, was selected for the 1925 Partheneia. It was presented on April 15th and 16th, in Faculty Glade, which setting contributed to the general atmosphere of the production.

The plot centered around the threads of the loom which Life was weaving for the Maiden. Catherine Sweeney took the part of Life, and the Maiden was portrayed by Virginia Russ. The Maiden was at first frightened by the Dragon Fly, portrayed by Dorothy Damianakes, in her attempt to kill Life; then attracted for a time to Burdette Spencer, as Pan, who could not hold any maid's attention long; in turn she was fascinated by the God of Pleasure, Betty Scoble, and finally wooed and won by Love and Mary Daniels, as Youth.

These characters were assisted in portraying their rôles by groups of dancers. Pleasure was attended by a large retinue of followers consisting of Nubian slaves and a group of Bacchanalian Dancers, arrayed in Oriental costumes, and bearing baskets of spicy fruits, gifts, and jewels. The Shadows, in dark costumes, gave the effect of melancholy and dreariness in appropriate places throughout the pageant. The Satyrs and Nymphs, in light, filmy costumes of varied pastel shades, lent an elfish air to the scene; while the villagers chanted their stately chorus in prayer to the Sun God. The weavers weaving the threads of life, and the Maidens who attend the Maiden, completed the groups which added so much to the effectiveness of the pageant. These dancers were well trained for their parts by Mary Daniels, Dorothy Damianakes, Burdette Spencer, and Betty Scoble.

Nellie Hatchell, Mildred Anton

The University Orchestra, under the direction of Professor Alloo, played for the Partheneia this year. The orchestra was very fortunate in having such an able and untiring leader as Professor Alloo, and because of his appropriate selections and constant effort, exceptional talent was shown. Everyone present attributed a great deal of the success of the production to the excellent music.

The atmosphere of the play was typically Greek, simplicity being the keynote. This was carried out in the costumes, properties, and dancing. The colors, of which green, violet, and red predominated, blended well into the natural setting.

Due to the combined efforts of the director, Theodore Appia, and the manager, Mildred Anton, and the co-operation of every member of the cast, and committees, the 1925 Partheneia was put on with a minimum of confusion, and a maximum of smoothness, finish, and technique.

Because of the pleasant weather and the assurance of a worthwhile production a larger number of students and other interested spectators attended the fête both afternoons than usual. Everyone considered it a complete success.

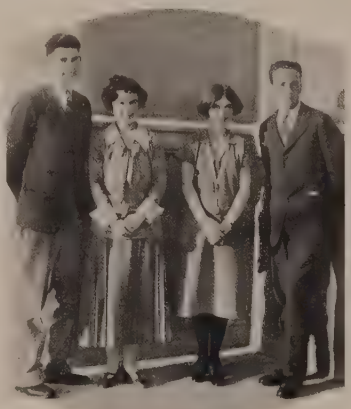
SENIOR EXTRAVAGANZA

"UNIVERSITIES INC.," by Joseph Q. Riznik, was selected for the 1925 Senior Extravaganza. It was one of the best Extravaganzas presented in a number of years and the enthusiasm of the '25 class and their splendid co-operation with both the author and the director, Mr. Frederick Carlyle, was very commendable.

The story of the play concerns a group of American students who, lured by the romance of European culture, seek education in France, Russia, and England, under the supervision of the "Universities Inc." bureau. But back to California the disillusioned students return, where culture combined with the climate and its attendant pleasures are not to be equaled.

The chorus of the production was quite unique and charming. The costuming of the Little Green Devils Chorus, the French co-eds, and the Russian co-eds was extremely attractive and novel.

An enormous cast of 201 Seniors was necessary for the production. The leading rôles were played by Edward A. Pelligrin as Tom, Juanita Gates as Cora, Hubert Kenny as Jimmy, Helene La Combe as Betty, Henry McFarland as the Doctor, Harold Ervin as the Janitor. Other parts were played by Albert Schlessinger, Alfred Payne, E. W. Hippard, Stanley Mattoon, Hugh Wright, Kathryn Sweeney, Rowell Mell, Ernest Baer, Frank Dempsey, Arthur Mathews, Lorraine Hjelke, William O'Connor, Carl Beyers, Jack Gompertz, Bruce Vazeille, Maurice Kearney, Hiram Cassidy, Audrey Treichler, Marian Winchester, Leila Jones, Mary Daniels, Louise Osborn, Janice Clark, Dorothy Damianakes, Thomas Sills, and a great number of others.



Leads in the Extravaganza

Congratulations are certainly due to David Forrest as manager of the production, to Irving Hamilton for composing the music, to Hal Dreiske's orchestra, and last but not least to Mr. Carlyle for his untiring effort in directing the production.

The Extravaganza was pronounced one of the most successful and clever that have ever been produced. There was certainly a lot of talent brought to the attention of the campus. It was only through the combined efforts of the whole cast and the many directors that the production gained the laurels that it so truly deserved.

DEBATES

THE DEBATING YEAR

THE season of 1924-25 set a standard of achievement which coming years will find most difficult to surpass, or even to equal. To no one door can credit for this record be laid, but certain individuals are perhaps responsible in great part for the unusual results of the year. The leadership of Martin C. Flaherty, Faculty Forensic Advisor, must be noted at the outset. The efficiency of the Forensics Council, the Forensics Manager, and the Forensics Commissioner, in carrying out the practical administration of the contests, has been greater than ever before. The support of the A. S. U. C., the student body, and the general public has been gratifying indeed, and has been no small factor in determining the success of the year's work.

The new attitude adopted toward debating has been a contribution of the past season which will be of permanent value. The old idea of debating as a formal argumentative contest, in which teams won victory or suffered defeat according to set and technical rules of judging, has given way to a less naïve attitude toward the activity of public discussion. The idea of formal victory has been replaced by the desire and the attempt of speakers to bring the audience to their personal view of the question, and in this, persuasive thundering argument has given way to the more entertaining and enjoyable use of wit, of elegance, of erudition, of logic. In the unusual intercollegiate debates presented during the season, this new attitude has been uppermost.

Even if distinctions could be claimed on no other grounds, the variety of debates presented during the last year would mark the year of 1924-25 as outstanding. The Political Debate on the eve of the national presidential election, with three speakers representing three universities seeking to convince audiences in three cities to support one of three of the major political candidates, was a unique feature. In a team debate upon the Supreme Court issue which had been a high light in the election campaign, the Berkeley audience was privileged to listen to a team which had journeyed from West Virginia to the Coast. The classic of the debating season was the Oxford Symposium, an event which will always be remembered by those who were so fortunate as to find a place in the crowded halls.

The effect of this remarkable series of contests has been to arouse unprecedented interest among the general public, and to win the support of the students to the activity.

THE POLITICAL DEBATES

CALIFORNIA — U. S. C. — STANFORD

A POLITICAL campaign of unusual heat and interest made its effects felt at the University in the fall of 1924. Active organizations were formed representing the Republican, Democratic, and Independent Progressive candidates, which held discussions, distributed literature and buttons, and sent campus speakers into the bay region. The climax of student participation came in the triangular intercollegiate debates held simultaneously at Berkeley, San Francisco, and Los Angeles on the night before the election.

COOLIDGE, DAVIS, or LA FOLLETTE? That was the question which the three universities attempted to decide for at least a portion of the people of the state. The teams consisted of three men, each supporting one of the candidates, and each appearing on a different platform. The California speaker for Coolidge at Berkeley was Richard M. Petty, '25, a member of the campus Republican Club. At Los Angeles, Raymond G. Stanbury, '25, chairman of the Democratic Club Speakers' Committee, supported the candidacy of Davis. At San Francisco, Bernard E. Witkin, '25, president of the La Follette Club, spoke for the independent candidate.

This debate was a unique extension of the triangular method, in that not only were there three universities competing, but that due to the nature of the subject, all three institutions were represented on the same platform at the same time. The issues of the campaign gave added zest to the encounter, and the novel spectacle was offered the audience of two opponents agreeing wholly with each other in one breath in a common attack on the third, and in the next breath strongly attacking each other on a different issue. The timeliness of the discussion, and the fact that all the speakers were strong partisans, contributed to the public interest, which was very marked. It was felt that a decision by judges would be valueless and inappropriate, and instead straw votes were taken, before and after the speeches. Questions from the audience followed the speeches, and the debaters were called out again and again to explain, to answer, and to retort. Many of the queries were of a humorous character, and the frequent witty replies of the speakers drew cheers from the delighted auditors. In general, the ballots indicated a popular sentiment for Coolidge.

THE OXFORD SYMPOSIUM

THERE is no English-speaking university with the past, the prestige, or the traditions of Oxford. This greatest of English universities to us Californians, with half the world between, has been half unreal, a place different and apart from our own. We had heard of the Oxford Union; we had heard of the great speakers that it had produced; and we imagined an oratory that partook of the miraculous, something beyond us as ordinary beings. The unlooked-for sometimes happens. We have listened to three men from Oxford speak upon the same platform with three men of California, and those of us who were so fortunate as to gain admittance to the crowded halls will always remember the California-Oxford Symposium as the most interesting and most entertaining exhibition of speaking ever held upon the California campus. Here we had the opportunity to compare the Oxford speakers upon the platform with the Oxford speakers of our imaginings, and we found not the expected oratorical marvels, but three charming young men whose very real power and charm depended not upon unusual qualities but upon the ordinary qualities of pleasing manner, wide knowledge, and scintillating wit.

Bernard E. Witkin

The question for the evening's discussion was the same as that which the visitors had discussed in most of their talks through the country: "Resolved, That this house go on record as opposing the principle of Prohibition." The affair was not a contest, it was not a debate, but as the word Symposium indicated, it was a discussion of the subject with no teams, and no decision, each man speaking in defense of his own views. Oxford was represented by M. Christopher Hollis, one-time president of the Oxford Union; Malcolm MacDonald, son of the Labor Premier of Great Britain; and J. D. Woodruff, former member of the British diplomatic service. The California men were Harold F. Cherniss '25, Raymond G. Stanbury '25, and Bernard E. Witkin '25. The three Oxford speakers were opposed to Prohibition as were Cherniss and Witkin of California.

THE OXFORD SYMPOSIUM—Continued

The Oxford speeches can best be characterized by the informal type of debating which they represented. This is opposed to the more formal type of the Americans. The Oxford men got all of their points over by the use of humor. They did not use statistics; in fact, they laughed at our use of them. They have a peculiar way of "laughing" with the audience. They have no rules in Oxford as regards keeping directly to discussion of the question. Malcolm MacDonald was a very interesting personage and his particular charm was in the use of humor throughout his speech.

The other Oxford men brought out the ridiculous form of prohibition which the Americans are tolerating. They did this by comparing life in America with life in England, where one can get a glass of wine. They brought forward the fact that one seldom sees an Englishman in a drunken condition, and they showed that Americans were the ones who usually were not able to know when they had had enough to drink. This they accredited to the fact that Englishmen know how to drink while Americans do not.

The one Californian who upheld the idea of prohibition was Stanberry. His speech was very matter of fact, and he used statistics effectively. Because of the fact that Stanberry was the only man who supported prohibition, the "Symposium," as it was titled, was one-sided. The other speakers endeavored to ridicule the idea of prohibition.

MacDonald Delivering His Address

Cherniss of California painted a fantastic picture which was indeed interesting. His choice of words for his type of speech was excellent. Witkin, the other California speaker, tore down the principles of prohibition, and attempted to show how it had affected the United States.

Hollis was the first speaker on the Oxford team, and he quieted the house at once, and during his entire address the audience was fascinated by his easy flow of speech. Woodruff was the final speaker of the evening. He was perhaps more serious than either of the other two. He had more points in his speech, but even his delivery was broken by bits of humor.

This is the first time that Oxford has ever been the guest of California in debate. One of the largest crowds ever in Wheeler Auditorium listened to the debate. California had another world brought to her view, and she can indeed be glad to have entertained such men as MacDonald, Woodruff, and Hollis.

CALIFORNIA-WEST VIRGINIA

LESS than three weeks after the Oxford debate, the California campus was invaded for the first time in years by representatives of an Eastern institution. Three men from the University of West Virginia, defending one side of a single question, after traveling across the country debating a number of universities, met California on February 9, 1925, in Wheeler Auditorium.

The question was one which had been the object of tremendous interest during the presidential campaign, the matter of the Supreme Court's power of review over acts of Congress. The actual wording was: "Resolved, That the Constitution should be so amended as to give Congress power to overrule, by a two-thirds vote, decisions of the Supreme Court which declare acts of Congress unconstitutional." The West Virginia team, Hugo F. Blumenberg, Robert T. Donley, and Harry L. Snyder, upheld the affirmative.

The debate was opened on the negative for California by Charles S. Cressaty '26. Richard M. Petty '25 spoke second, and White McGee '25 closed the debate for California. Professor William Y. Elliott, of the Department of Political Science, presided over the contest, in which no decision was rendered.

WOMEN'S DEBATES

A REVIVAL in women's debating has been another feature of an outstanding forensic year. This has been due partly to the generally increased interest in debating as an activity, but more especially as the result of the energetic activity of Miss Bonaro Wilkinson '25, Women's Debating Manager, and Miss Grace Dietz, of the Public Speaking Department. The three intercollegiate contests were unique in that they dealt with subjects of general cultural interest.

A debate with the Southern Branch of the University, held at Berkeley in the fall, upon the question, "Resolved, That Defense Day should be discontinued," resulted in a victory for California. The team, speaking in favor of the proposition, was composed of Ruth Clouse '27, Mary Agnes McMahon '27, and Bonaro Wilkinson '25. A return debate at Los Angeles took place late in the spring, with the speakers discussing the proposition, "Resolved, That a four-year Liberal Arts Course in American Universities is without value." Helen Duprey '25 and Elizabeth Ovsey '26 were California's representatives, supporting the negative.

Inaugurating what may prove to be a traditional debate, the California women met with a Stanford women's team in Wheeler Auditorium in the last of the three contests. Ruth Clouse '27 and Madeleine Lackmann '27 spoke on the negative of the question, "Resolved, That the school of thought typified by H. L. Mencken is a dangerous element in American life."

This activity has received more support from the women than ever before, and its development is being watched with interest.

U. C. MEDAL DEBATE

THE U. C. Medal Debate, similar to the Joffre except that those who have previously appeared on the intercollegiate platform for California are excluded, was held this year on the general subject, "Higher Education in America." Out of approximately thirty aspirants for the Medal, the following men survived the first tryouts and were chosen to constitute the team: Charles L. Barnard '25, Samuel H. Berry '26, Gerald F. Bridges '26, Robert D. Tobey '26, William L. McGinness '26, and Alvin E. Weinberger '26.

Weinberger of Congress was awarded the Medal in the final contest. He spoke on the negative of the question, "Resolved, That the growing tendency toward vocationalism in American higher education is to be deplored." Original thought, and marked ability in the use of voice and gesture, were the outstanding characteristics of the winner's address.

INTERSOCIETY DEBATES

The intersociety schedule of the year was enlivened by a number of discussions of current interest and of a highly controversial nature. Over four hundred people, a record crowd for such a contest, attended the "Case O" debate, where Senate and Centuriata argued on the University Library censorship of literary works. Federal suppression of the Ku Klux Klan received the attention of Parliament and Congress. In the final debate of the fall semester, Congress met Centuriata on the question of governmental regulation of the public press. The victory of Congress gave her the intersociety championship.

The historic semiannual Congress-Senate debate was concerned with the outlawry of war, the question being, "Resolved, That the United States should ratify the League of Nations' Arbitration Protocol." Congress, successfully supporting the affirmative, was represented by William L. McGinness '26, Alvin E. Weinberger '26, and Charles S. Cressaty '26. The Senate speakers were Howard R. Elms '26, Robert D. Tobey '26, and John F. Harrell '25.

Joffre Medal

JOFFRE MEDAL DEBATE

THE highest honor to which California and Stanford debaters aspire is the award of the coveted Joffre Medal. Since 1896, when the admiration of Baron de Coubertin for these two universities led him to establish a fund which makes the award perpetual, the Joffre Debate, formerly known as the Carnot, has been the contest which brings out the best men of both institutions. Coming as it does in April, it closes the debating season with what is usually considered to be the most effective speaking of the year.

The Joffre Debate has been called "America's Foremost Speaking Contest." It is, without question, one of the most difficult extemporaneous speaking tests ever devised. In February, a general subject, dealing with the politics of France, is selected, and two months later, on two hours' notice, the debaters argue individually on a specific question chosen from that subject. This way of choosing and informing the contestants of their subject necessitates their studying an entire topic very thoroughly so as not to be caught on any little detail of the subject on which they may be required to discourse at the last minute. From this it may be seen that keen rivalry and interest are developed among the speakers in delving into the many and varied problems which their general topic presents. The honor that attends the winning of this debate serves as a great incentive for the contestants to deliver their talks to the very best of their ability. The good quality of the individual speeches makes the Joffre Debate the most interesting debate of the year. All six men defend their own convictions, and the award is made to the best speaker instead of to the successful team.

H. F. Cherniss

The California representatives for the 1925 contest were Harold F. Cherniss '25, Raymond G. Stanbury '25, and Bernard E. Witkin '25. The Stanford speakers were Robert Lewis, John Duniway, Victor Harding. It took place at Stanford on April 15th, and the number of people who attended this event showed the great interest that it drew from the followers of debating.

FRESHMAN DEBATING

THE Class of 1928 was represented in debates during the year by twelve speakers, appearing in four contests. Opening the schedule in the fall, Edwin L. Mayall and R. Lamar Jackson debated Lowell High School, champions of the San Francisco High School Debating League, on the subject of the abolition of fraternities and sororities in American universities. The California speakers upheld the negative.

The three other contests were held in the spring. Eleanor Chamberlain and Dorothy Hill met the representatives of Girls' High School, San Francisco, in the third annual debate with the California Freshmen. "Resolved, That all high schools should be made co-educational," was the question, the California women taking the affirmative, and the Girls' High speakers upholding their own system.

Against Mills College in a dual debate, a mixed team represented the Freshmen on the question, "Resolved, That the trustees of a state university are justified in exercising some measure of control over the opinions of its professors." The California speakers were John Reid, Ruth Halliday, Clarisse Friedlander, and Dorothy Hill.

The outstanding Freshman debate of the year was the traditional dual with Stanford. The question "Resolved, That Congress should legislate to suppress the Ku Klux Klan," was argued for the affirmative at Stanford by John F. Mudge, Eleanor Noteware, and Edwin L. Mayall, closer. The speakers for the negative were Alvin L. Langfield, R. Lamar Jackson, and George P. Moncharsh, closer. The question was designed to draw out the convictions of the speakers, and those who heard the contests at Berkeley and at Palo Alto were treated to a capable and thoroughgoing presentation of both sides of the case. The judges' decisions in each case went to the Stanford teams.

In addition to this series of outside contests, the Freshman Debating Society held regular meetings on Wednesday evenings, devoted to instruction and practice in speaking. The work of the society and the teams was carried on with the aid of B. E. Witkin '25, Freshman debating adviser. David Goldshur was chosen to act as Freshman debating manager. These men performed their particular duties well and efficiently, as is evidenced by the success that the teams have had. The men who have participated in the debates in this their Freshman year have gained much valuable experience that will be of great benefit to them if they continue on along this line.

A. S. U. C. Orchestra

ORCHESTRA

THE orchestra is one of the most representative and outstanding groups on our campus. This is partly due to the fact that only those persons who have musical ability are eligible for membership; thus membership in the orchestra is eagerly sought because of the opportunity it offers for an early musical training. Credit is also given for participation in this activity.

Musical accompaniments for the Parthenia were played by the orchestra this year and, due to the musical selections, exceptional talent was displayed. A great deal of this recent progress is due to the untiring efforts of Professor Alloo, who is director of the orchestra. The hard work of composing and selecting suitable compositions for the orchestra falls to Professor Alloo. Based on the facts that the orchestra has made much progress in the past and is steadily improving, we may safely prophesy that the future can hold nothing but success for it.

MILITARY

Colonel Nance

RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

THE Military Department of the University of California was organized upon accepting a grant of land from the United States Government under the provisions of a law passed in 1862. Since 1873, except for brief intervals, the Military Department has been under the charge of officers of the United States Army.

Military instruction has been compulsory for able-bodied male undergraduates for at least two years. The advanced course also includes two years and one summer camp.

Every year the War Department inspects the R. O. T. C. units throughout the United States and designates forty-four institutions as "Distinguished Colleges." The University of California has been awarded this honor since 1914, a record equaled by only one other university and excelled by none.

Five per cent of the graduating class of the R. O. T. C. are designated honor graduates by the War Department, upon recommendation of the officers in charge at the University. These men are eligible for commissions as second lieutenants in the Regular Army without mental examination. Since its establishment one hundred and ninety-one men from the University Cadets have been commissioned in the Regular Army, of whom one hundred and forty-six are still in service.

Pursuant to the National Defense Act of 1916, the Infantry Unit of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps was organized in 1917. Since then an Air Service Unit, a Coast Artillery Unit, and an Ordnance Unit have been established. In August, 1924, nineteen hundred and ninety-eight students were enrolled in all the units of the R. O. T. C.

The Infantry Unit is organized as a Regiment consisting of a Headquarters Company, Service Company with Band, Howitzer Company and three battalions.

The Air Service Unit includes instruction in "Ground Work." The Air Service Laboratory is equipped with an airplane and a wide assortment of aircraft engines and other material.

The Coast Artillery Unit is organized into a Battalion of four batteries: besides Coast Defense fire-control apparatus in the laboratory, this unit is equipped with an eight-inch Howitzer, a 155-mm. gun, and an anti-aircraft cannon mounted on a truck.

The Ordnance Unit functions in a laboratory equipped with the various apparatus required for instruction in the manufacture of material.

Major Kelly

One example of the splendid work that the R. O. T. C. has accomplished is shown in the record of the University during the World War. In that war there were four thousand thirty-seven students, including thirty-six women, and one hundred and twenty-one members of the faculty. These include one Brigadier General and two Rear Admirals. Forty-four per cent of the students and eighty-five per cent of the faculty were commissioned officers. Ninety-eight men and one woman gave their lives in that great struggle, thus showing that the early training that one receives in college is of value and that in case of great need that which is strongest and best in one is brought forward. If the R. O. T. C. accomplished nothing more than this, the organization would be of value, but it makes "men" of those who never felt responsibility before this, and in this regard it is of great value to college training.

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

Chairman Social Committee

ACTIVITIES OF THE WOMEN STUDENTS

WOMEN'S activities for this year have been under the direction of the Women's Executive Committee, under Gertrude Turner, '25, vice president of the A. S. U. C., and Nancy Upp, '25, Women's Welfare representative. Social activities were under the direction of Ethel Trask, '25, as chairman of the Social Committee. Friday afternoon teas were held at Stephens' Union. The purpose of these teas was to give each woman a chance to become better acquainted and spread the spirit of friendship. At each tea a definite program was given, during the fall semester two of the most important teas were the Grenwich Village and the Chinese tea. The social committee during the last year served tea daily at noon to women students in Stephens' Union.

The traditional Women's Football rally was held the night just before the Big Game, at the base of the Campanile. Each class presented a stunt, the big feature being a mock football game. During the fall semester the "Broom Stick Brawl" was given at Hollowe'en time for women students.

Two teas were gived by Mrs. W. W. Campbell at the President's home for Senior Advisors and their freshmen. These teas were given to the freshmen women so they might have an opportunity of meeting Mrs. Campbell, and to become better acquainted. At the beginning of the fall and spring semesters a reception was given to welcome freshmen women. At the reception during the fall, activities were introduced to the freshmen by the "Blue Book Blue" stunt, out of this blue book came each activity and women were asked to sign up for activities in this book.

The Women's Rooms Committee with Agnes Hoffman, '26, as chairman, was instrumental in installing a checking system in the Library and Stephens' Union, besides the great advantage of an ink fountain in the Library. The Citizenship Committee which was a new department, was disbanded this last semester.

The point system is now under the direction of the Personnel Committee. Bessie Wilkens, '25, had charge of it during the fall semester and Ruth McCormick, '25, in the spring semester. This system, which has been adopted by many other colleges, is now being tried out on this campus. It consists, fundamentally, of the regulation of the number of activities in which a person may participate. By this means it is hoped that the scholarship of students working in activities will be raised.

A house presidents' dinner was held on November 5, 1924, in the Grey Room of Stephens' Union, for presidents of boarding houses, sororities, and house clubs. At this dinner many campus questions were discussed and many beneficial solutions to these were offered, which were to be seriously considered. This dinner was of inestimable value in that it enabled the presidents of the various organizations present to become better acquainted.

THE INTERCOLLEGIATE CONFERENCE

THE Middle Western Intercollegiate Conference was held at the University of Missouri in April, 1924. At this Middle Western Conference, Gertrude Turner '25 was the California delegate. All topics relative to college women and student government were discussed.

A National Convention was held at the University of Ohio in April, 1925. Nancy Upp '25 and Gertrude Turner '25 represented California. Topics concerning Group System, Pan-Hellenic, Honor Spirit, Honor Societies, and Student Advisory System were discussed. Through these intersectional meetings many of the ideas which are being used in some colleges and are new to others in another section of the country are discussed in detail, so that the representatives receive invaluable suggestions. Many of the newer organizations have resulted from ideas brought forth at previous meetings.

THE GROUP SYSTEM

THE Women's Group System, an organization of non-organized women, was introduced on this campus last fall, and is under the direction of Helen Gaynor '25. It was highly recommended to Gertrude Turner '25 by the University of Illinois, which institution has had a group system for four years. It has proved very successful there, and as nearly as possible their method of organization has been followed here.

Berkeley was divided into large areas and within these were grouped the smaller units of twenty or thirty girls. An organizer was then appointed to each of these groups to call the first meetings and act as temporary chairman. The organizer explained the purpose and the meaning of the Group System as well as its organization.

The aim of the group system is to better acquaint girls not in organizations and aid them in activities.

Women's Group System

THE WOMEN'S COUNCIL

ALL questions of interest to women students are brought to the biweekly meeting of Women's Council. This is the only group of women organized under the A. S. U. C. which has a representative from every women's organization. Women's Council is primarily a group of women meeting together for the purpose of discussing various problems on the campus.

Helen Lavers '25 and Annette Faulkner '25 served as chairmen of the council during the year. Various chairmen of campus activities have been speakers at different meetings.

Discussion was held on the problem of poor attendance at University meetings. One meeting was given over to Maude Russell, who spoke of her work in China, in the interest of the Y. W. C. A. drive. Two or three meetings were spent discussing some points of A. S. U. C. constitutional provision, and it is only through these discussions that the finer points of the constitutional organization are brought before the campus at large.

THE STUDENT ADVISORY SYSTEM

THE Student Advisory System is under the direction of Marjory Bridge '25 and thirty Junior and Senior women as captains. These captains have teams of about ten Juniors and Seniors, and it is this group of three hundred women who act as student advisors for the entering Freshmen in August. Last August there were about eleven hundred Freshmen given advisors. The duties of the advisors were to assist the Dean of Women's office in approving the living conditions of the Freshmen, and also show their Freshmen the campus and acquaint them with Californian traditions.

The Freshmen are also taken to the Freshmen Reception the afternoon of registration day, and to any other social function given for them. Mrs. Campbell gave a tea for the Freshmen in the President's House. Later in the semester the captains had team parties for their Freshmen, and there was a big advisory party in the form of a basket supper in Stephens Union. The main idea was that the advisors were to get their Freshmen into activities and to introduce them to people on the campus.

The organization for the spring semester was smaller and is composed of ten Junior captains, who have teams of twelve girls. They took care of about one hundred and eighty-five Freshmen. Ten scholarship rings were given to Freshman women for fall semester and five for the spring semester.

PRYTANEAN FÊTE

"A NIGHT IN SEVILLE" characterized this year's presentation of the annual fête given by the Prytanean Honor Society in Harmon Gymnasium. It represented a Spanish scene in a Moorish courtyard. The prevailing Spanish theme was carried out in the Moorish arches and buildings erected in the gymnasium, and also in the costumes, which ranged from the styles worn by the Castilian ladies to those of peasants, gypsies, and toreadors, thus creating an effective atmosphere.

The restaurant represented a tavern in Spain. Tamales and pretzels, which are known to be favorite dishes of the Spaniards, were served. All the crowds were attracted to the theatre booth at the end of Harmon Gymnasium, where Spanish entertainers danced and sang native songs. Several of the well-known campus actors appeared at the Prytanean Fête theatre. Those participating were Virginia Treadwell, Donald Blanchard, Robert Ross, Dorothy Damianakes, Burdette Spencer, Elizabeth Scoble, and Mildred Wright.

At the fortune-telling booths, Spanish gypsies told fortunes by cards, palmistry, and character reading, which proved to be one of the biggest attractions. Soft drinks were sold by the peasants at the refreshment counters, and cigarette girls sold whistles, caps, confetti and other favors. The music for dancing was furnished by Girvin Deuel's orchestra.

A distinguished feature of the fête was that of the elaborate decoration, which made the fête one of the most beautiful ever held. The coloring was exquisite, relying on the bright hues loved by the Spaniards, and carried out to make a very effective color scheme. The decorations were especially wonderful in that they completely covered every inattractive detail of Harmon Gymnasium and gave a very realistic atmosphere to the affair.

The spirit of Spain was predominant in every nook. It created the impression of beauty and romance, which helped to make it a great success. The Spanish decorations and costuming, which were designed by the women students of the University, were among the most effective ever used for a Prytanean Fête, according to a statement made by Mrs. Charlotte M. Angell, '22, general chairman of the fête. The funds raised by the fête went toward the support of the Prytanean Honor Society loan fund.

Due to the members of the fête executive committee, of which Margaret Rowe, '25, is president, this year's Prytanean Fête was a very great success. The executive committee consisted of Bernice Baker, Martha Ballard, Katherine Boole, Marguerite Brooks, Mildred Brown, Ada Burrell, Florence Carter, Cornelia Clark, Janice Clark, Audrey Cockrell, Madeline Cornell, Miriam Cullins, Georgina Gerlinger, Isabel Jackson, Margaret Larson, Helen Lavers, Marjorie Lewin, Frances March, Christal Maston, Dorothy Mills, Florence Nichols, Laura Pratt, Madeline Putman, Dora Richards, Edith Ross, Vale Smith, Lydia Tessiere, Donnie-Bell Thurmond, Helen Westgate, Dorothy Whally, Frances Wheeler, Margaret Yeaman, Anne Zimmerman.

A Broader View

When sines and cosines lull the brain
To coma, and you strive in vain
To masticate the foreign sounds
Your language master stern expounds,
When lofty learning's stately halls
Seem prisons for ambition's thralls,
Desert them and, in things mundane,
Find truer inspiration then.

'Tis sweet relief to note the flight
Of co-eds togged in colors bright,
To feel the cooling ocean breeze,
To hear its whisper in the trees.
The grandeur of the verdant hills
One's soul with high ideals fills,
And nature's very vastness then
Will draw you to your fellow men.

Seek out your fellows. Grasp the hand
Of men and women both. Expand!
Forget sophistic wiles of sex,
Which only muddle and perplex.
Forget the barriers of wealth
And poverty. Let mutual wealth
Be that of kindness, service too.
Be bigger! Find a broader view!

Drink heartily at nature's rill,
At friendship's fountain drink your fill,
And let fraternal feeling steep
The ego from your mental heap.
Resume your studies. Class and hall
Will then no longer bore nor pall.
Desire for service will replace
False ambition's artifice.

THE PUBLICATIONS COUNCIL

Russel C. Lockhart
Publications Manager

COMPLETING its fifth semester of existence the Publications Council has created for itself a distinct sphere of influence among the various campus publications of the student body. Created primarily as a means of elevating the journalistic standards, from both the editorial and managerial standpoints of the student publications, the council has become a practical instrument for good.

Representative of every campus paper and magazine, the council has been able to attack the problems common to them all. An open forum, where changes in editorial policies or in managerial methods may be thoroughly discussed before being adopted, has become a constant safeguard against radicalism and fly-by-night schemes.

With the aid of a graduate publications manager, the council has been able to cope successfully with the advertising problem. The growth in number and size of the student journals in the past few years has presented a situation in the solicitation of advertising that has been nothing if not perplexing. Formerly, it was the custom of the student managers of the campus periodicals to work with little or no degree of co-operation in their canvassing of patronage from the local merchants. The council has practically eliminated these cutthroat methods, and has built up a co-ordination of solicitation that has gone a long way toward solving the problem.

The council also protects the benefactors of student magazines in another important way. Only with its appoval can advertising be solicited for programs, game lineups, or other sporadic publications, which all tend to reduce the surplus set aside for legitimate journals.

Presided over by a chairman who is elected by the members of the council themselves, the body is composed of twenty-one members, sixteen of whom have voting powers. Through the chairman, who also is a member of the executive committee of the Associated Students, the council has a direct voice in transmitting its messages to the governmental agency of the A. S. U. C.

Aside from these necessary duties in which the Publications Council officiates, it also must approve all appointments made on the publications. From this council the approved appointments are sent to the executive committee, who also vote upon them. This system has been found to work very efficiently in that it serves as another check upon the persons appointed, and as all of these publications are on an equal basis the justification of this council is found in the fairness with which it operates.

THE DAILY CALIFORNIAN

DEDICATED to the highest ideals of journalism, the Daily Californian can look back upon two highly successful semesters. Successful in that it has truthfully mirrored college life, and has attempted to broaden and enrich the minds of its readers. From its news columns to its editorial page the same purpose has been dominant throughout—to make the Daily Californian a leader among college newspapers in its exemplification of the best ethics of the profession—and this end has been successfully accomplished.

The growth of the paper in size and in circulation has been of the steady, healthy variety. From its inception, over fifty years ago, as the College Echo to the present eight-column newspaper, the Daily Californian has made a tremendous advance. Yet that growth measured in years has been of the slow yet unswerving kind which has gone hand in hand with the progress of the University. Year by year the University has increased in size and greatness, and the Daily Californian has kept pace with all such advances and improvements in college life.

During no single period of its existence, however, has our paper displayed so rapid an advance as in the past two years. With the removal of the Daily Californian office to the handsome new quarters in Stephens Union was wrought a metamorphosis in the journal itself. Old, inefficient methods were supplanted by new systems copied from the great metropolitan dailies. But most important of all was the abandoning of old ideas which had made the Daily Californian a publicity sheet for campus activities. In stepping forth into new and advanced fields, the paper had dropped its swaddling clothes for the more mature garments of advanced journalism.

The Daily Californian has a threefold mission in this new conception of its relation to the University campus. As presented in an invaluable little book composed by two editors of the paper, Martha H. Ballard and William D. Spencer, the threefold purpose of the Daily Californian is as follows: "It must present a complete and accurate chronicle of the news of the University and its associated activities. It must give its readers an adequate account of the more important affairs of the world beyond the campus gates: it must strive each day to present a brief but complete summary of city, state, national, and world news. It must support, loyally and consistently, through its editorial columns, all worthy activities of the student body, and at all times exemplify faithful devotion to the best interests of the University, the state, and the nation."

Through the medium of the United News Service the Daily Californian now tells of the principal events which are attracting the world at large. A wire editor trained to cull the murder and slander stories from the stream of news that daily comes bubbling along presents a running picture to student readers of the significant happenings of the day.

With its other departments displaying news of sports, of art and literature, the Daily Californian comes near to being a well-balanced college newspaper. Realizing that it is the voice of ten thousand students collectively and not of any one group, the paper fashions its columns for the benefit of the majority, which includes both the athlete and the foreign-born student.

In its editorial columns, the Daily Californian has attempted to support the traditions of the University which have stood the test of the time as being worthwhile. As the official organ of student government, it has championed those ideals which have enabled the associated body to rule itself.

Although not a money-making enterprise, the paper, nevertheless, is on a sound financial basis through the efforts of the managerial staff. Ads coming from all parts of the country are displayed in the Daily Californian, and attest the energetic efforts of the student managers. Business depressions on occasions limit the Californian to a four-page paper, yet more often during the week six and eight pages greet the eye of the student. Co-operation of the two staffs has greatly aided the Daily Californian in attaining its best journalistic purposes.

One only has to see the line every morning waiting to get the Daily Californian to realize the popularity, success, and definite need for the daily publication.

THE BLUE AND GOLD

WITH the change of this publication from the jurisdiction of the Junior Class to that of the Associated Students have come other changes in the Blue and Gold of far more obvious character in this fifty-second volume of the annual.

Perhaps the most evident and pleasing change has been the publication of the book without the financial assistance of advertisers and the attendant disagreeable features of the advertising copy scattered amidst lines of joshes and jokes more appropriate to the Josh Section itself.

Again, under the editorship of Paul V. Roach, '25, a Senior, as succeeding editors will be, a man of two years' experience, steps to the editorial chair in place of those previous editors who have in the past had but a single year of experience before appointment to the editorship. And so it is with the manager. The advantages are manifest.

As a complete record of the college year, the Blue and Gold goes to press to be bound and filed with fifty-one other volumes of similar character though of smaller size. In this issue it has been deemed wise to increase once more the size of the book to its present dimensions in order to facilitate the arrangements of its pages. Though it may seem in some ways unfortunate to destroy the uniformity of the library of the annuals of fifty years' duration, the enlarged edition of last year has proved to be better adapted to ease of handling both for the editors and for its readers. It is found of even greater ease in this volume and others of similar size and nature to arrange pages, pictures, and sections in more harmonious and rhythmical style.

It was unfortunate, in the eyes of the editors and the staff of this volume, that the plans for a section of note in other college annuals were thwarted in the embryo. The Arts Crafts Guild prizes for the best college year books have been awarded in the past to institutions which have included among the usual sections artistically arranged Beauty Sections. It would of course be nonsensical to say that a beauty section is the sole criterion of virtue in such tomes, but the judging staff of the Arts Crafts Guild has seen the advantages of such, and has so expressed its judgments on various occasions. In lieu of such a section, nipped in the bud by the action of the Executive Committee of the Associated Students, the editors have incorporated a section which might come under the category of the beauty of action. "Californians" have been chosen by a staff as near totally impersonal as a student group could possibly be. It has chosen the most outstanding persons in the activities of the student body and has set them forth in photograph and name without comment, a recognition which may well be deemed worthy by those who have served and have thus been chosen.

It seems that this year for the Blue and Gold has been one of change and departure from the old standards while the transition from Junior Class authority to Associated Students' authority has occurred. Yet the usual contents of such a year book are retained and amplified as any such record of the college year inevitably must be to set forth fully the activities and events of such a growing institution as the University of California. Founded in the year 1874, the Blue and Gold has grown from a forty-eight-page edition to its present size and compass, expanding with the expansion of student activities. It has ever, as now, listed the activities of the various classes and individuals, teams and organizations. Societies, fraternities, and sororities still have their places. Joshes are directed as nearly as possible to the confines of campus life and environment. Perhaps more mild than in 1908 the revamped comic on the really seriously considered problem of alcohol may yet be found. The section has been increased to double the proportions of last year, and an attempt at greater centralization has been made. Snapshots, of course, are in many cases naturally ridiculous and with an eye guided on the path of the ludicrous the Snapshot Section may prove to be on a par with the Josh Section itself and certainly will be of far greater human interest value to the students themselves.

Again, due to changes in the plan of organization of the staff and the financial support of purchases and assessments alone, the very considerable burden of managers of previous years has been greatly relieved. With Marian G. Winchester, '25, as manager of the book, the managerial staff has had as its main duty the securing of four thousand odd reservations and sales in order to meet the expenses drawn up in the budget approved by the Executive Committee. With let contracts amounting to $32,000, the manager reports a small profit to the Associated Students.

Two thousand dollars of the money made by this year's Blue and Gold will go to the Junior Class as a gift. The remaining money will go to the Associated Students, a custom which will be followed by classes in years to come. Previously the amount left over was divided between the editor, the manager, and the class. The new system will bring forth a book which is the result of honest labor and not the result of a mercenary enterprise.

THE PELICAN

OFFERING a new incentive and holding up higher ideals of humor, the installment of Hammer and Coffin, national College Humorous Journalism Society, has changed the esprit de corps of the staff of the Old Bird and has watched over the flights of the bird since the month of November of last year.

Shaken into being at Stanford on the day of the earthquake in 1906, Hammer and Coffin has spread to nearly all the colleges and universities west of the Rockies and has assumed control of the college comics in most of these institutions, in many cases owning the magazines themselves. At California the ordinary course of the society is, of necessity, stopped because of the present system of the management of publications, which is under the direction of the Associated Students.

Under the able direction of Dean R. Avery, '25, editor, and Jack S. Cook, '26, art editor, the appearance of the magazine has been appreciably changed. With the swing of rhythmically arranged pages and the varied styles of contributing artists, the staff has added the note of pleasing pulsation to its already large stock of risibilities.

From the "Back Number" to the "Alumni Number" Arnold Tschudy, '25, manager, has met with the full measure of financial success which is the ultimate aim and desire of each manager of a publication. But the success of the magazine for the past year was attained only through the combined efforts of the editor, manager, and staff.

THE COMMERCIA

THE COMMERCIA, an organ of the Commerce Association, has closed a remarkably successful year Although only five years old, it has done much to bring the college student in closer relationship with the business man and to unite interest in the activities of the College of Commerce. Men of national prominence in commercial activities, as well as college students, have come to recognize in it a means of expression and advancement of current and sound economical ideas advanced by the most eminent authorities in their respective fields.

This year the women's staff has been thoroughly organized. At the Southern Branch, efficient editorial and managerial staffs have been organized. Faculty and student interest has been stimulated by the establishment of a complete section devoted to their affairs.

Under the direction of Arthur P. Mathews, '25, and Harry A. March, '25, editors of the fall and spring semesters, respectively, the quality of the articles and the general make-up of the magazine have been improved. Chrysanthus Phelan, '25, manager, has given his individual effort to increase the size and circulation of the magazine. Both the editor and the manager have been assisted by an able and hard-working staff, and it has been only through the combined efforts of these that the publication has succeeded.

THE OCCIDENT

WITH the beginning of the fall semester 1924, the Occident cut out most of its advertising. By so doing more effort has been expended toward the stories, poems, essays, and editorials. Wherever college literary magazines are discussed the Occident is always mentioned as one of the outstanding literary magazines in the field. Because the men and women on the Occident are able to give their undivided time to the editorial, the magazine has made rapid progress and will continue to do so in the future.

The Occident stimulates the efforts of students interested in literary work and gives them a means whereby they may place their work before the student public.

The custom of offering two monthly prizes for the best short story, essay, prose piece, or poem was continued this year with a great deal of success. The prizes have stimulated competitive effort among the students and have brought out the best talent.

The verse number was the first of its kind for several years and was highly praised.

No little credit should go to Vernon K. Patterson, '25, editor, and Lewis H. Russell, '26, for the success of this year's Occident.

THE CALIFORNIA COUNTRYMAN

FROM the date of its founding in 1913, the California Countryman has made rapid progress until now it has come to be looked upon as one of the leading college agricultural journals.

The aim of the Countryman is to provide a medium of exchange of information, to share advantages of scientific research and study of modern methods with farmers who have no connection with the University. By these means the Countryman has bridged the gap between the college student and the farmer.

The magazine is contributed to by the faculty, alumni, and prominent agricultural writers, as well as by students in agriculture. This gives the reader a variety of articles ranging from the most practical down to the theoretical. The department devoted to alumni news has served as a connecting link between the student and the graduate.

Under the leadership of Lloyd D. Fisher, '25, editor, and Haskell T. Oliver, '25, manager, the size of the magazine and the wealth of information in the articles of the Countryman have been increased.

There is certainly a definite need for such a publication as the Countryman on the campus. It has been of unlimited value to the students in the College of Agriculture. These same students will benefit by it in years to come when they are not so near to the University and its advantages.

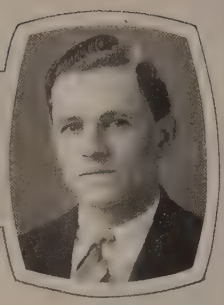
CALIFORNIA LAW REVIEW



THE CALIFORNIA LAW REVIEW

PUBLISHED bimonthly by the faculty and students of the School of Jurisprudence, the California Law Review has taken its place among the leading law school journals of the country. Its contents are of a professional nature and include articles by members of the bar whose names are nationally known.

By a system of student comment on the most important current cases, the magazine serves as a clearing house for legal ideas. Problems of peculiar interest to California and the far Western states are treated at length in the Law Review.

That the magazine is of practical importance has been attested by the constantly increasing circulation of its numbers among members of the legal profession and among schools of jurisprudence. Contributed to by members of the faculty, as well as by practicing lawyers, and by students, the California Law Review is of interest to all of them.

Student membership on the staff of the Law Review is based on ability to write and on scholarship in the Law School. The working out of the legal problems and the notes thereon constitutes invaluable training for the embryo lawyers.

Professor A. M. Kidd is editor-in-chief; Charles E. Finney, student editor; B. D. Barr, business manager; and Rosamond Parma, secretary.

THE CALIFORNIA ENGINEER

"FROM little acorns . . ." So The California Engineer has grown until its size is outranked by few university engineering journals in the country.

Of a non-technical nature, the Engineer has attempted to place before its readers a contemporary history of the engineering colleges, their work, the problems of the engineer today in the world at large, and an outline of the works of the faculty and alumni of the engineering colleges. The journal has been confined to terms of a general rather than a technical nature, in the belief that the campus reading public, though desiring to know the rudiments of engineering projects and problems, still has not the time nor the inclination to read through articles full of unfamiliar terminology. The editorial matter has been materially improved through the contributions of the deans and professors of the engineering colleges during the past year.

Among the most common criticisms of the students of engineering seems to be that lack of all but technical training that is of necessity garnered during the four years of campus life. And the editorials of the Engineer have been largely devoted to a revision of this condition in stressing the value of student activities to engineering students, an aim well worth while and admirably executed.

CALIFORNIA MONTHLY

THE CALIFORNIA ALUMNI MONTHLY

As an interpreter and an organ of expression of the significance of the University of California in terms of the lives of its graduates; as a medium of information of the activities of alumni and a record of service and achievement on the part of Californians in the world at large, the California Monthly has a somewhat colossal task to meet in the limited confines of its pages. Rather successfully has this task been met under the guidance of Deborah Hathaway Calkins '14, as Managing Editor, and A. S. Furth '24, as Assistant Editor. How successfully may be indicated by the number of magazines and journals that have quoted the Monthly in all sections of this country, in England and on the Continent as well. A few words with the Editor in this regard leaves us convinced that the year has been a complete success.

This is one of the chief means by which the alumni of the University are able to keep in contact with the activities of the campus. It is also their only way of keeping posted on the life of other members of the alumni.

Several changes in the make-up and the departments of the magazine have recently been made, and most conspicuous among these is the change from the small, glazed paper cover to the enlarged, mottled, buff cover with new insets of original drawings pertaining to California subjects printed each month. In short, from the prosaic, a step forward.

To conclude (with a bow to the undergraduate vanity) a much greater space has been devoted to undergraduate affairs, seemingly demanded by the alumni themselves. As the Californian, The Pelican, The Blue and Gold have grown with the University, so has the alumni publication until now it is a book of fifty or more pages monthly. But most commendable is—not growth, but progress.

This monthly started as a small publication but its circulation has doubled many times with the increase in the number of alumni. This spirit that is backing it, is one of which to be proud and must be kept alive, since it means so much to the success of the activities of the University.

The spirit of the University is shown in this publication, although it is published off the campus. This shows that the spirit of the students is still alive even though they are alumni, and are separated from the campus, their hopes and thoughts are still with California.

THE PUBLICITY BUREAU

SINCE its establishment as a recognized Associated Students' activity four years ago, the Publicity Bureau has grown and expanded its scope of activity in gathering and disseminating news to the press until at present it is considered one of the most efficient press bureaus on the Pacific Coast. The bureau received recognition as a news-gathering source by the University administration during the 1925 spring semester when the University News Bureau and the Associated Students' Bureau merged into one organization known as the University News Bureau. By this merger, all University news of both the Associated Students and an academic nature is gathered and released exclusively by student staffs. The student staffs not only release news to some 200 newspapers throughout California and the United States, but also have charge of the publishing of programs for athletic events and general relations with the press. Two staffs handle the bureau work, the men's staff and the women's staff, both divided into sub-staffs.

Activities

Too soon is daylight sinking in the West,
And now one must lay down the friendship threads
Woven by time, into a pattern strong
That will hold, until they are bare shreds,
Friendships that sprung from labor for a cause,
Young hands that shaped it with the will to win;
The while acquaintances were made that last,
Memories on which to dwell when years grow thin

The firelight is warm—it glows as though
It reads my thoughts—sweet dreams of years ago.

For some, after the tedious hours of toil
Have spent, though purpose won, have more to win
And, like the rainbow, treasure at the end,
Have treasure stored, and finally begin
More often near the close of life's long day,
To find at last that rest and peace which comes
When one has done his best, and done it well,
To dreams saved through the years at last succumbs.

The firelight glows, and makes the walls glint red
And now the dream-cloud passes o'er my head.

The Californian Section is a new section of the Blue and Gold. Seven men have been selected by an impartial committee to have their pictures placed in this section. Each man represents the height of one activity. The committee selected one man for dramatics, one for publications, one for athletics, one for a representative of the A. S. U. C., one for scholarship and other activities, one for forensics, and one for a typical "all-around" Californian. Each of these representatives has proved himself an outstanding success in the eyes of the campus in the field which he represents. These men have, in four years, shown what a true Californian can mean and be.

PRELIMINARY SEASON

DEFEATING the Junior Class team after two hard-fought games, the Freshman football squad emerged from the 1924 interclass gridiron fracas with championship honors and the well-earned reputation of being as powerful a group of football men as a first-year class has boasted in several seasons.

The Junior eleven were strong contenders for the championship, and after their winnings over the Senior and Sophomore teams, looked good for the title, but the power and reserve strength of the Freshmen proved too much for them.

The playing was prolonged this year because of the ruling that Freshmen could not start their season until the Varsity did, on September 15. A rearranged schedule resulted, with the Juniors meeting the Seniors in the first game. It was in this game that the Junior eleven first showed its strength, defeating the 1925 representatives by the large score of 33-7.

The 1925 team was impressive in its winning, and entered the next game with the Sophomores, heavy favorites.

The Junior defeat of the Sophomores was as thorough as the earlier victory over the Seniors. A 34-0 score was the best indication of the relative strength of the two teams.

The Freshmen and Juniors battled to a 0-0 tie in the first game of the title play. The 1928 squad threatened its opponent's goal three times, but was unable to put over the necessary score.

In the second game, the Freshmen won 7-6, after being scored on early in the second quarter. A versatile drive and timely penalties gave the Juniors the ball deep in the Freshman territory at the end of the first quarter, and at the beginning of the second quarter the 1926 eleven scored a touchdown. They failed to convert, and a few plays later the 1928 team scored and kicked the goal, giving them the game.

One of the most interesting features of the preliminary season is watching high-school material develop on the Freshman squad and picking from that squad the men who will later represent the California Varsity. "Pesky" Sprott and "Fat" Latham certainly deserve a lot of credit for the Freshman turnout.

More interest was shown in the preliminary season than usual because California's streak of luck was supposed to be at a finish, and everyone was anxious to know what the Freshman squad was going to produce.

SANTA CLARA GAME

INEXPERIENCED and hampered by injuries the 1924 Varsity made only a fair showing in the first game of the season, with Santa Clara on September 27 in the Memorial Stadium. The 13-7 score was satisfactory to Coach Andy Smith, however, because it kept the California slate clean.

The Saints drew first blood when Storm, Santa Clara end, recovered a California fumble and ran 55 yards for a touchdown.

In the second quarter, however, California held the Santa Clara attack and pushed the ball toward the Mission goal. Santa Clara got the ball on a fumble and punted to the center of the field.

Some well-executed plays again put the Bears within striking distance. Dixon scored the touchdown. The attempt to kick the goal failed.

In the second half the Missionites failed to gain and were forced to kick. Dixon scored from the five-yard line. Carlson kicked the goal.

Early season indications were that California was to suffer a bad year, and in this game it was apparent that Smith would be content with small scores, as long as California kept on the top side of the count.

ST. MARY'S GAME

A MORE experienced and better-trained team than that which defeated Santa Clara met the St. Mary's eleven on October 4, and administered a 17-7 defeat to the Oakland collegians. California scored in the first period as a result of a ragged kick by St. Mary's. Dixon received the ball on the next play and ran thirty yards for a touchdown. Carlson converted.

During the next quarter the Saints made a touchdown. The goal was kicked, tying the score. Snook Mell recovered a St. Mary's fumble, giving California a chance to score again. After three ineffective punches at the line, Dixon kicked a field goal.

At the opening of the second half, California started another drive. After working the ball down the field twice, California scored when Imlay went across, on a wide end run. The goal was kicked.

Dixon, Imlay, Young, Sargent, and Horrell displayed the style of game which accorded them respect in football circles later. Though these were the spectacular players of the game, it was the unified efforts of the entire team that brought a well-deserved victory.

POMONA COLLEGE GAME

A LIGHT, but willing Pomona team proved no match for the California eleven in the third game of the season. The game, which was played on October 11, resulted in a 28-0 win for the Bears. During the first quarter only did California look weak. After this period, the Blue and Gold team seemed to gain strength, and completely outclassed the Sagehens.

As in both the previous games, California showed a weakness in forward passes, and in the first quarter and again in the second the visitors worked the ball to within the California five-yard line, only to lose it on downs.

Brown, Young, and Schaffnit scored for California, Young being responsible for two of the touchdowns. Carlson converted all four of the touchdowns. Captain "Babe" Horrell and "Tut" Imlay were the outstanding lights of the game, but the teamwork was commendable throughout the entire game. Coach Andy Smith was well satisfied with the showing that the team made in this pre-conference game, despite the fact that Pomona did not offer them an opportunity to show the real power behind the machine.

OLYMPIC CLUB GAME

CALIFORNIA forecasted its own game for the 1924 season when it sent the strong Olympic Club team down to defeat in the last pre-conference game of the schedule.

The Olympians drew first blood when King, the Winged "O" tackle, drop-kicked from the 20-yard line early in the first quarter.

A second-half drive by California pushed the ball into the Olympic Club territory, but the Clubmen stiffened enough to prevent a touchdown. Carlson drop-kicked from the 20-yard line, tying the score.

Then with the score 3-3 and with three minutes left to play, Dixon, who had been kept out of the game because of injuries, came on to the field, and after two fakes, hurled the ball 30 yards across the field to Imlay, who crossed the line for the only touchdown of the game. Both teams played hard, clean ball, and there was little penalizing on either squad. Previous to the game the Bears were conceded slight chance to win, but the strength of the O. C. team had been underestimated, and it was only through the Dixon-Imlay pass that California finally gained the hard-fought victory.

WASHINGTON STATE GAME

GIVEN an edge, though slight, in pre-game dope, California surpassed all expectations and completely outclassed W. S. C. by a score of 27-7 on October 25 in the Memorial Stadium.

The first quarter was a kicking duel throughout, W. S. C. gaining on the exchange of kicks. A perfect defense prevented them from scoring, however, and an attempted field goal went wild.

Washington State's lone score came as the result of a fumble by Griffin, who replaced Brown. This score did not worry the spectators, however.

California's scores came in the second and third quarters. After working the ball down the field in the second period, Imlay's try for a field goal failed and W. S. C. got the ball. In the return attack, Sweet of the Cougars fumbled, and Young raced 24 yards for a touchdown. Young made the final touchdown after he and Imlay had worked the ball down from the 40-yard line. Carlson converted two of the three times. The entire Bruin line functioned excellently in this game, each man doing his part to make the team work as a unit. This team play is gradually being worked around and shows added improvement with each game. By the time the U. S. C. game has rolled around it will have reached perfection.

U. S. C. GAME

A FIGHTING, brainy California Bear upset all dope in one of the best games of the season, and defeated the strong U.S.C. team 7-0 on November 1 in the Memorial Stadium. After a hectic week of rumors of war over the question of players' eligibility the two teams entered the game surcharged with energy. California kept the ball in the Trojan territory throughout the game. Only once did the visitors threaten, and then they got no farther than the 15-yard line.

It was scientific football, played on the so-called "Smith system," that won for California. The deceptive attack of the Blue and Gold eleven, coupled with the machine-like playing of the entire team, proved a barrier.

California played a kicking game, utilizing the quick kick to a good advantage. At the end of the first quarter, California was in a good position to score from the field, but Carlson's attempted goal was blocked. In the closing minutes of this period, however, Imlay received the U. S. C. punt on his own 45-yard line and ran it back to the U. S. C. 25-yard line. The quarter ended with the ball deep in the Trojan territory.

California scored in the next period when, on a fake pass, Dixon skirted the right end for a touchdown. Carlson converted and the scoring for the day ended.

The way the California line stood up against the Trojan attack attested the good work of the California coaches. The forward wall consistently outcharged their opponents, and it was the continual rushing of Anderson, the Trojan kicker, that prevented that player from making his usual spectacular gains from punt formation.

The entire California team functioned as a unit, and further respect was accorded Coach Andy Smith by the Western gridiron world for the way he had brought his green team around until it looked and worked like a veteran aggregation. This struggle proved to the loyal California supporters that the following game with Stanford would be a game well worth witnessing, and that if the Bears played the same caliber of football they might as well be called the "victors." California's fighting captain, "Babe" Horrell, was very troublesome to his opponents in the way with which he broke up their pet plays. Everyone looked forward to what he would do in the Stanford game.

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON

TYING the score in the last five minutes of play with a well-executed series of passes, the University of Washington prevented California from scoring what seemed to be a sure win in one of the hardest-fought games ever played in the Pacific Northwest. California, playing Washington in Seattle on November 8, had seemingly cinched the game, when the Husky gridders cut loose with an aerial attack which resulted in the tying touchdown and goal.

California played a different game than was expected. It was Washington, not the Bears, that played a kicking game, and California did the heavy work of carrying the ball. An accident to Dixon, the mainspring of California's open attack, forced Coach Smith to change his tactics, and the Bears' touchdown was earned by straight football. The ball was on Washington's 23-yard line, and Jabs, cracking the line for consistent gains, pushed the ball over for a touchdown. Carlson converted, and the scoring in one of the greatest games of the season ended. Considering that the game was played in a sea of mud, a condition unnatural to the California players, the Bears made a remarkable showing, and Andy Smith's only comment on the game was "It was a hard battle, mates."

NEVADA

IN the last contest before the Big Game, Coach Andy Smith's gridiron team "steam-rolled" Nevada under a 27-0 score. California displayed the same high caliber of play against "Charley" Erb's charges that brought them through the season undefeated. California did not score until the end of the second quarter. A kicking duel between Harrison, of Nevada, and Dixon kept the ball well in the center of the field during the first quarter. In the second quarter, California received the ball on the Nevada 40-yard line, and Imlay scampered across for a touchdown.

"Al" Young made the next score in the third quarter on a line plunge. Dixon, soon after, tore off a 51-yard run for another touchdown. Griffin made the final score after a drive from the center of the field. Only once did Carlson fail to convert. This game demonstrated California's readiness for the Big Game. California certainly did her part in an effort to make certain that last year's episode would not be repeated. The main drawing card for this year's game was the memory of the 0-0 score of the previous year, and every California rooter promised himself that the team would not lack support, and their hopes were ably realized.

STANFORD

THE largest crowd that ever witnessed an athletic encounter in the West watched Stanford in the last ten minutes of play score two touchdowns and tie the score in the annual Big Game, played on November 22 in the California Stadium.

California lived up to its reputation of being a second-half team by entering the second half with the score 6-0 against it, and running up a comfortable lead in a comparatively short time.

In the second quarter, the Redshirts opened with a varied attack bringing the ball to the Bruin 12-yard line. Stanford was forced to kick, and Cuddeback placed a perfect field goal, giving his team a three-point lead.

Cuddeback doubled this later on in the same period when he booted one over from the 45-yard line. The Cardinals had just previously been kept from scoring by the hard playing of the California team.

STANFORD—Continued

California started off the second half with a bang. Imlay took the pigskin on a pass from Dixon and raced 47 yards, being downed nine yards from the Cardinal goal. Griffin, substituting for Young, put the ball over. California took the lead when Carlson converted.

In the fourth quarter, California scored again on a pass from Dixon to Imlay. Carlson kicked goal, and Dixon and Imlay, sore and battered, were taken from the game. The Bruins scored again when, by successive line bucks, Griffin took it over for the last California score. Carlson failed to convert.

With the score 20-6 against them, Stanford started throwing long forward passes which were successful. Two touchdowns were scored, and both goals kicked, tying the score. The ball passed through the posts as the gun ended the game.

It was only when the last notes of the two college hymns faded away with the sunset that the stunned crowd realized that the long-awaited game had come to a final close. It will be remembered as the game of a lifetime, and as the crowd slowly filed from the stadium they seemed unable to realize that the ball was no longer in action.

Second, and Only 3 to Go

Determined to Win for California

PENN GAME

A CALIFORNIA victory over the University of Pennsylvania eleven, one of the East's strongest teams, brought to a close California's fifth victorious year on the gridiron. This East-West struggle, between two undefeated and representative teams, played in the California Memorial Stadium New Year's Day, ended in a score of 14-0 in California's favor.

A crowd of about sixty thousand people saw the California Bears completely outclass the Pennsylvania Quakers. In every department of the game the Blue and Gold eleven proved superior to that of Pennsylvania, and only once in the entire contest did the visitors seriously threaten the Bruin goal line.

It was in the second quarter that Pennsylvania's greatest opportunity came. A series of successful passes, accompanied by several wide end runs, brought the ball within striking distance. With the pigskin on California's four-yard line and with four downs to score in, the Red and Blue team was unable to make the touchdown.

PENN GAME—Continued

The first Bruin touchdown came early in the game when, after a drive from the middle of the field, "Al" Young, California fullback, went through the supposedly impregnable Quaker line for a touchdown. Carlson converted. The second score came in a similar manner. "Bert" Griffin was substituted for Young in the second half, and with ten yards to go for a touchdown, he tore through McGinley, Pennsylvania's All-American tackle, for another score. Carlson again converted.

Kreuse, Captain MacRae, and McGinley were Pennsylvania's best players. Had Kreuse been in the game in the second half, Pennsylvania might have scored, as he was the only man who could penetrate the California line. The entire Blue and Gold eleven played as one man, and brought to a close a wonderful and entirely satisfactory season.

Pennsylvania is to be congratulated on her playing and sportsmanship, and it is hoped that California will always be as successful in her post-season games as she was this year, in picking teams of the same calibre.

The California Reserves

GOOFS

CALIFORNIA'S Reserves, or, as they are better known, the "Goofs," under the tutelage of Coaches "Hoggie" Evans and "Don" Newmeyer, provided the 1924 Varsity with hard competition in practice scrimmages throughout the season. Although defeated by the Stanford Reserves in the last game of the season, they were successful in every other game played.

Among the teams the Bruin Reserves met and defeated were service teams representing Fort Scott and the U. S. S. Tennessee, Mare Island Hospital Corps, and the U. S. S. California. The game with Stanford was lost by a score of 6-0, the "Greys" putting over two place-kicks.

The real task of the "Goofs" was in the practice scrimmages against the Varsity. Among the men who helped provide the Blue and Gold eleven with strong competition were Captain Chapman, West, Willi, Gregory, Pracht, Gross, York, and a number of other reliable players.

Coach "Pesky" Sprott

THE FRESHMAN SEASON

HEAD Coach "Pesky" Sprott and Assistant Coaches "Fat" Latham, "Stew" Beam, and "Mac" Kelly took over a large group of gridiron aspirants at the end of the interclass series, and after a rigorous training period in which the fundamentals of the system of play taught at California were impressed upon them, developed a strong Freshman football squad.

The 1928 eleven, although defeated by Stanford, was a well-rounded aggregation. The men making up the squad were rangier and heavier than the average first-year player, and "Andy" Smith expects to draw some capable Varsity material from the ranks of the 1928 team.

A series of mishaps, injuries, and question of eligibility kept the squad from developing its full strength until just before the U. S. C. game. Notwithstanding this fact, the Bruin Cubs had little trouble running up large scores in the preliminary games.

Sprott's charges first won the interclass gridiron title by defeating the Juniors in the second game for the championship. The first game ended in a deadlock, and the second was won by only a one-touchdown margin. The next team to meet the 1928 eleven was the Modesto Junior College squad. The Freshmen had little trouble downing them, running up a score of 54-0. Practically every player on the squad had an opportunity to show his wares in this game. Even though the result was a one-sided score, it was a well-fought game throughout, showing the squad's capability in spite of its earlier defeat.

Following the game the Freshmen defeated Napa High School 34-0, St. Mary's Reserves 20-13, and Modesto High School 27-0, and with these few victories standing to their credit, they proved that they were ready to enter games with U. S. C. and Stanford in the best of condition There is no reason why the season should not be considered a successful one, as we look back over it, considering the training that the squad had and the support which backed it.

Judging by the steady improvement made during the season, great expectations are held for the squad in the coming seasons when they will be expected to uphold the present good record held by the varsity.

The Freshman Football Squad

CAL.-U. S. C. FROSH GAME

THE 1928 gridiron combination was at the height of its strength at the time of the U. S. C.-California Freshman game, November 1, in Los Angeles. Although weakened by the ineligibility of several first-string players, the Bruin Cubs displayed their best teamwork in this game.

The California Freshmen entered the game on the short end of the betting, but hard fighting and constant hounding of the ball gave them the edge. A touchdown by Perrin and the point gained by the kick after the touchdown were the only scores of the game. Perrin's touchdown came as a result of a forty-yard run, in which he eluded the entire Trojan secondary defense.

The Southern Californians threatened the Bruin goal in the fourth quarter. A series of passes carried the ball to the California 4-yard line, but here the California defense strengthened and the Trojan Babes were unable to put across the necessary touchdown.

Captain Fred Coltrin

The outstanding player of the game was "Flash" Perrin. This elusive halfback went into the game as a substitute for "Brick" Marcus, who was out with a broken wrist, but by his performance against the Southerners he earned himself a permanent first-string position. "Bunny" Maurice, "Dinty" Evans, Captain Fred Coltrin, and "Charley" Harvey put up good games for the Blue and Gold squad, while Drury, Orsatti, Elliot, Boren, and Edwards played well for the U. S. C. Babes.

This defeat of the Trojans was the high-point of the season, for in the following week the California yearlings began to suffer a series of injuries that left the team in a crippled condition for the Stanford game, which they entered the favorites by a slight margin. But physical injuries could never play havoc with the Frosh team, because of the morale and spirit which is made a part of the rigid Freshman training. This early training later manifests itself in the "fight" which is very typical of Andy Smith's Varsity. The team is to be grateful for having such a man as Head Coach "Pesky" Sprott as leader in its early training.

The Freshmen Work Their Way Toward U. S. C. Goal

THE STANFORD-CALIFORNIA FRESHMAN GAME

ENTERING the "Little Big Game" the favorites, the California 1928 football squad surprised even the most pessimistic California fans by losing to the Cardinal Babes by a score of 16-0. The game was played November 8 in the Stanford Stadium.

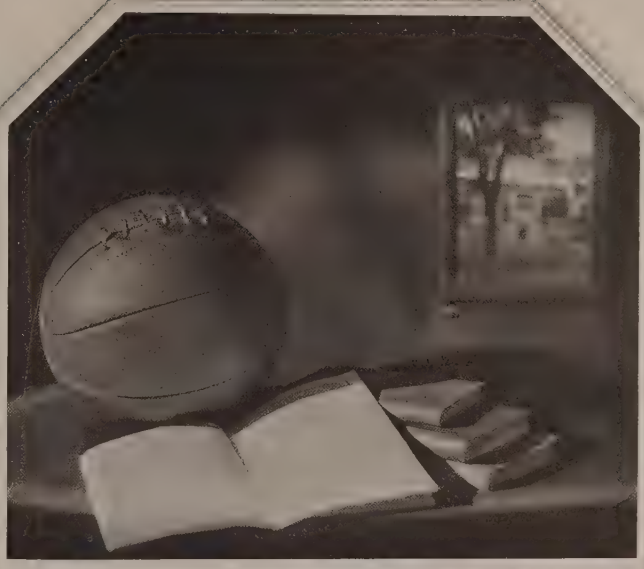
Notwithstanding the fact that the Blue and Gold Freshmen were rated, previous to the affair, as the slightly stronger eleven, the Stanford first-year team outplayed them in every department of the game. The Stanford scores came as a result of following the ball, and the defensive strength of the Redshirts surpassed that of California. Twice the Blue and Gold team forced its way to within a few feet of the goal line, only to be stopped in its rush goalward by the Stanford team.

Stanford's first score came as a result of a fumble by Perrin. Murphy, quarterback of the Cardinal team, picked up the ball and ran fifty-five yards for a touchdown. California then buckled down to business and forced the ball to the Stanford 6-yard line, but was held for downs. After the Cardinals had punted out of danger, the Bruin Babes started another drive for a touchdown, which was stopped this time on the Stanford 9-yard line. With this, California's chances to score were over, for at no other time in the game did they threaten the Stanford goal line.

Zweiner, Captain Coltrin, Perrin, Bancroft, Lausten, and Fitz were California's best players in this contest. "Brick" Marcus, halfback, who had been out of the game because of injuries all season, was put in in the second half, but was unable to show his usual brilliancy against the Redshirts.

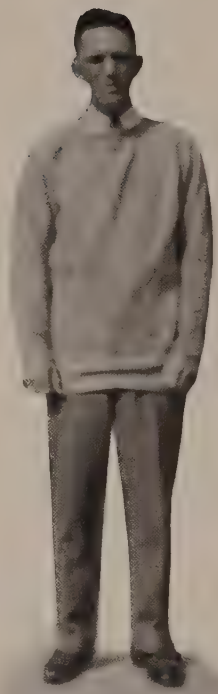
This year's team was a very fine collection of individual players, who worked well together, as was shown in the University of Southern California Freshman game, and others previous to that date, but on the day of the Stanford tilt the Freshmen had an off day and could not get going. The members of the team, however, have not missed their last chance at the Cardinals, for they will have a better chance than ever next year, and the two years succeeding, of meeting practically the same team which proved so disastrous to them this year. Next year they will have a chance as members of the Varsity football team to succeed in doing that which they were expected to do this past season and only failed in performing on account of bad breaks.

The Stanford Freshmen deserve a great deal of credit in accomplishing a victory in the face of strong odds. They were doped to lose this game because they were beaten by the University of Southern California Freshmen, who in turn were beaten by the Bear Freshmen. For Stanford, Hill, Millage, Altaffer, Captain Robesky, and Dennis were the outstanding players.



BASKET BALL

"NIBS" PRICE



PRICE AT WORK

"NIBS" PRICE was selected, in the face of much criticism, to succeed Earl Wight as Varsity basket ball coach.

If ever a coach had a tough problem on his hands, Nibs had it now. There was a laxity in material, and there were other great obstacles in the path of success. Nibs, however, met them all squarely, and went to work with the determination that is characteristic of him.

The result was the development of another Pacific Coast Conference championship team, and incidentally one of the gamest that ever represented the Blue and Gold.

At the time of his appointment it was remarked by many that Nibs didn't know much about basket ball. It was his strategy, however, that won the championship, and caused a change in such opinions.

THE VARSITY SQUAD

HAROLD BELASCO, who captained the Varsity basket ball team through a victorious season, is one of the hardest-fighting guards ever seen on the Pacific Coast. His fast floor work, together with his accurate passing and wonderful shooting from the center of the court, made him a player who would be a valuable asset to any college team.

Aside from his ability as a player, Belasco possesses the necessary personality for leadership, and this, along with the fine example he set on the court, served to help instill in his team-mates that wonderful spirit which makes a team invincible.

Benton Holmes, selected by his team-mates to lead next year's Varsity, is a fine example of a typical California athlete. He is possessed of brain and brawn, which, combined with California's well-known spirit, made him one of the cleverest and most elusive forwards seen in these parts for quite a while. In the basket ball games played this year, Benny demonstrated his ability as a good player by seeming to be all over the court at once and constantly following the ball.

PRELIMINARY SEASON

SOON after the fall football season was over, "Nibs" Price took over the duties of Varsity basket ball coach and went to work with the squad of aspirants that turned out for the fall training season. During the Christmas holidays, Price retained a squad of twenty men in order to get them into fighting condition for the coming season.

Three days before the University opened for the spring term, on Friday, January 9, the Bruin Varsity met its first competition and was defeated at the hands of the Olympic Club. The game was rather a ragged affair, with the score seesawing back and forth, until the final minutes, when the Winged "O" penetrated the Bruin defense and took the game with a 27-23 score.

In these early season games, "Nibs" was concentrating all his efforts to build up a strong defense, feeling sure that the best offense is a strong defense. This almost airtight defense was displayed in the second game of the season when the Golden Bear handed the St. Ignatius quintet a 21-11 beating. Jorgenson got his first chance to show his wares in this game when he substituted for Holmes at forward.

The following Saturday, January 17, the Bruin quintet met and defeated the California Aggies in Harmon Gymnasium by a score of 26-10. Here again the strong defense of the California team was displayed. The second Bear team started the battle off and succeeded in more than holding its own against the mystified Aggies, and when the first string went in, in the second half, they ran away with the game.

On January 24, the Blue and Gold team met the Saint Mary's five in the Oakland Auditorium and succeeded in handing them a 24-23 defeat. This game was the best contest of the season and in it the Bruin team showed that it was built of the stuff that wins. The Saints started off with a dazzling attack and in a short time had run up a large lead over the Bears. The California team seemed lost, and was unable to solve the mystery of the fast offense of the Oakland team. By the time the first half was over, the Bruins were burried under a 15-5 score. During the rest period, "Nibs" told his men what to do, and in the second half they came back and did it. Fighting their way from behind in the last two minutes of the fray, the California team came through with a win. Robie's timely shot just before the final gun gave them the game with a one-point margin. The clever shooting of Benny Holmes and the fast floor-work of Captain Sammy Lader were the features of the California victory.

The team proved that it had the support of the student body when at the end of the game the California rooters fairly lifted the roof from the Auditorium with their applause of the teamwork.

The next team to fall before the attack of the Golden Bear was Santa Clara. On January 27, California met the Broncos in Harmon Gymnasium, and sent them back to their haunts with a 23-13 drubbing. The Bruin team seemed perfectly recovered from its relapse of the week-end before when it had barely beaten the Saints. The quintet that took the floor against the Broncos looked like a different outfit entirely. California took the lead at the start and the outcome of the contest was never in doubt. The airtight defense was in good working order once again, and the Santa Clara team never got started.

In its two-game series with the Nevada Wolf Pack, the California team showed once again its remarkable power to come back—the power that brands it as one of the hardest-fighting and gamest teams that ever wore the Blue and Gold for California. Having lost the first game to Nevada by a 28-27 score on January 30, the Bruins turned the tables the next night, defeating the Sage-Brushers 28-21. Both games were played in Harmon Gymnasium. In the first game, California outplayed Nevada throughout. The Bruin forwards had possession of the ball most of the time, while the guards kept the Nevada forwards far from the basket. It was the almost miraculous shooting of the Nevada men, who continually dropped in long shots from weird angles, that gave them the victory. For the Wolf Pack's victory in this first game, most of the credit goes to Friend, their six-foot-seven center, who succeeded in hanging up eleven tallies. It is certainly noteworthy that the following evening Friend was not allowed a single basket by the California team, which organized itself into a close defense.

At the start of the second game, the Wolf Pack quickly ran up a 7 to 0 lead, and things pointed to another victory for the invaders. This was very discouraging, as Stanford had given the Nevada team two beatings. But the Bruin team was master of even this situation and came up to lead at half time 18-9, and finally to win with a score of 28-21. In the second game, Belasco was the center of the Bruin scoring combination with sixteen points to his credit. The excellent work of Fechter at standing guard was another deciding feature of the game.

Three days before the start of the Stanford Conference series the Bruin team met the Southern Branch five in Harmon Gymnasium, handing their lighter southern cousins a 33-24 defeat. California took the lead early and maintained it throughout the game. By this time, the Bears' offense was working smoothly. The passing game had been worked up to perfection, and showed up well in this last preliminary game. Once again Belasco was the high man of the game with eleven points to his credit.

Well trained as the Bear aggregation was, it could have done little without the support of the students. The following that the team gained after a few games, proved that the squad would not need to worry about rooters. The team played a fine calibre of basket ball, and it is to be remembered for its clean sportsmanship.

STANFORD SERIES

As the time drew near for the Stanford series, the California hoop squad was regarded by all as having at best an outside chance to win. The first game took place February 7 on the Stanford Pavilion court, and Coach Price's quintet completely reversed the expected order of things.

Outplaying the heavier, slower Stanford five in every department of the game, the Bruins came out on the long end of a 17-13 score. At half time Stanford trailed 10-5. Harold Belasco was high-point man with eight points, and Captain Ladar's floor work was an important reason for the team's winning.

A week later the two teams met on the Oakland Auditorium court, and the capacity crowd was treated to one of the most exciting games ever played between the two universities. An extra period was necessary to determine the winner, the score being tied at 18-18 at the end of the second half. California was behind 9-5 at the end of the first half, but had tied the score with a spectacular rally in the second half. Baskets by Watson and Belasco cinched the game for the Bruins in the extra five-minute period.

The Blue and Gold squad was the favorite in the third game, which was played on February 21 at Palo Alto, but Stanford came through for a last-minute win with the score of 16-15. California led at half time by the score of 8-5, but Coach Kerr sent in a last-minute sophomore combination that wrested a victory our of certain defeat. The Bears were handicapped by the loss of Captain Ladar, but Jorgenson played well in his place. Stanford was unable to get a field goal during the first half, because of the strong California defense.

On February 28 the two teams met on the Oakland Auditorium court for the fourth game of the series. The game was one of strategy and skill, and the superior coaching ability of "Nibs" Price was the factor that gave California another win, which resulted in the series. A second Bruin team started the game, and at a critical moment the first five was shot into the fray. The first half ended with California ahead with a score of 10-6, and Stanford again failed to make a field goal. With but a few minutes to go, the score was tied at 14-14, and the vast crowd was on its feet in an uproar. Watson sunk a free throw and then Harold Belasco shot what proved to be the winning basket. A few seconds before the game ended Price, of Stanford, sunk a long goal, but the Bruins had won, with the close score of 17-16. The crowd seemed unable to realize that the final gun had closed the game and also had given California the series.

The Squad Arrives in Oregon

NORTHERN CONFERENCE GAME

HAVING laid claim to the championship of the southern division of the Pacific Coast Conference by virtue of defeating the hopes of the Stanford Red, the Bruins became the representatives of the south against the north in the play-off for the Conference title. The winners of the north were the Oregon Aggies, who acquired the honors after a brilliant season of victory.

The Bears boarded the Shasta Limited on the evening of March 10, bound for Corvallis, where they were scheduled to meet their opponents in a three-game series. A day or so before their departure it was learned that Benny Holmes, one of the main cogs in Coach Price's machine, would be unable to play in the series, due to a weak heart. This, coupled with other injuries to various men on the squad, put the Blue and Gold hopes at a low ebb, but they carried with them the idea to bring home the bacon or die in the attempt. The former was accomplished, and they returned to Berkeley a week later wearing the title of Pacific Coast Conference champions for 1925.

Things started poorly for the southern invaders when they took the count in the first contest by the score of 32 to 25. California's "territorial defense" failed to prove effective against the Aggies. Red Ridings and Speed Stoddard were left uncovered a great deal of the time, and each made the best of such opportunity by accounting for sixteen and fourteen points respectively. Coach Price shifted his players about several times in an attempt to find the right combination, but to no avail. The Blue and Gold trailed 16 to 11 at half time, and fought hard throughout but were unable to overtake the Aggies' lead.

Entering the second game doped to lose, the Bears sprung a big surprise on everyone and swamped their rivals to the tune of 32 to 17. The style of game played by California was different from that of the night before. Instead of a territorial defense, Price had changed his tactics to the "man-to-man" form. The result was that Ridings, the star performer of the previous night, went scoreless, due to the clever guarding of acting Captain Harold Belasco, and the Beavers seemed helpless without his aid. Jorgenson and Higgins focused their eyes on the basket and did a lot of good work towards piling up the Bruin score.

The final game was a battle royal. California played the same type of game that they had played the previous evening, and it again proved the undoing of the Aggies. At half time the score stood 15 to 15. The home team forged into the lead early in the second period when Ridings registered his first field goal of the evening. It was not for long, however, as the Bears started on a rampage and ended up with a total of 33, while the best the Beavers could do was to make two more points, bringing their total up to 19. Belasco, Higgins, and Jorgenson again starred for the Blue and Gold. Higgins scoring for the evening's work amounted to fifteen points.

A great deal of the credit for the victories in the last two contests is due to Coach "Nibs" Price, whose strategy it was that was responsible in a large way for the Bruin comeback. At the beginning of the season there were many obstacles in the path of success, but "Nibs" met all these squarely and went to work with that determination which is so characteristic of him.

FRESHMAN BASKET BALL

COACH JOHN TALT'S call for Freshman basket ball practice in the late fall received the proper backing of the first-year class and between fifty and sixty athletes responded. Workouts were held over a period of three weeks in order to segregate the material, so that by the end of the fall training season a squad of fifteen men composed the nucleus from which to select the first five.

Practice was resumed again on January 5 with the series against the Stanford yearlings as the season's goal-object. It was not long, however, before hard luck began to play havoc with the Bruin Babes. Three promising men were lost due to ineligibility, and an injury to Bancroft, another promising player, prevented him from keeping on with the game.

The Freshman quintet went through a most successful preliminary season. They succeeded in winning all of their contests, which were played mainly with various high school fives of the bay region, in conclusive style.

On February 13, the first contest with the Stanford Freshmen was played in Harmon Gymnasium. It proved to be "Friday, the thirteenth" in every sense of the word for California, as just prior to the game Jim Dougery was ruled ineligible. Dougery was perhaps the most outstanding player on the team, and with the announcement of his ineligibility Blue and Gold stock dropped a few points.

The Cardinal Babes proved themselves superior in the opener and walked home with a 32 to 23 victory. The Cubs seemed nervous and upset during the entire game. Their passing, which had been of high calibre during the greater part of the season, was very ragged, and was largely responsible for their poor showing.

In the second contest, played the following week at Palo Alto, the Cubs showed considerable improvement, but they were again forced to bow to the superior play of the first-year men from the Farm. The final score of this game was 24 to 18. California started strongly and ran up a seven-point lead early, but the Cardinals soon got under way and at half time were leading by a score of 15-8. Good shooting on the part of Hurff, at forward, in the second half brought the score to 17-16, and it looked as though the Blue and Gold might win. The Stanfordites, however, were not to be outdone and put on a final spurt towards the end that cinched the victory. The loss of this contest gave the series to the Cardinal Freshmen.

Although the loss of the Stanford series marred an otherwise successful season, the Cub team developed several men who should make good in their future years of Varsity competition. Dougery, Hurff, Rucker, and Peterson are all capable players who will doubtless improve greatly with more experience.

The following players were awarded their Freshman numerals: Walton, Hurff, Peterson, Beckwith, Bradley, Rucker, and Carmichael.

TRACK

Coach Walter Christie

WALTER CHRISTIE, recognized as one of the outstanding track and field coaches in the country, has coached more than a generation of California track athletes and during this time has produced many successful teams. His biggest success was achieved when he produced teams in 1921, 1922, and 1923 which won the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet for the three consecutive times. As a reward for his efforts and success he was made head coach of the American field team which went to the Olympic Games in 1924, and which returned victorious. In spite of his wonderful success and the ever increasing demands for his services, he has always found time to help every aspiring athlete who comes to him for aid, no matter how obscure he may be, and this spirit of helpfulness added to his keen sense of humor has made him the best-liked track coach in the country.

The Varsity Track Squad

BUD BECKER, captain of this year's Varsity track team, is one of the best hurdlers ever produced in this part of the country. This was foretold in high school, where he was a star in every meet which he entered and never failed to place well. In his Freshman year he took second place in both the low and high hurdles from the Cardinal Freshmen. Last year Becker took the only place in the 120 high hurdles for the Bears in the Big Meet against Stanford.

Aside from his prowess on the track, Bud possesses all the necessary qualities for leadership, and his wonderful California spirit along with his fine character makes him a true son of California. This was his last year at the University, and he skippered the Varsity through a very successful season in which he was the main cog.

PRELIMINARY SEASON

AFTER the stinging defeat at the hands of Stanford last season, California track aspirants were unusually anxious to defeat Stanford in 1925, and also win the I. C. A. A. A. A. cup another time. At the sign-up rally held on February 4, 115 Varsity men and 65 Freshmen attended. Colonel George Edwards, one of California's oldest and most zealous boosters, addressed the candidates and predicted that the Bear trackmen would have a hard season ahead of them, and also be handicapped by rain which would make the track slushy, and actual work on it impossible. It is needless to say that his predictions were true, but the team, in spite of these hindrances, fast rounded into shape and showed up so well in the preliminary events that very high hopes were held for a victorious season. Another setback occurred in starting practice when it was decided to change California Oval from a cinder to a faster clay track.

In the interclass meet the Juniors outclassed their competitors by taking eleven firsts out of fourteen, and thereby winning the meet by a good margin. The interclass served as a means for Walter Christie to uncover new material for the Varsity, and on this score new possibilities were not lacking. Johnson, a transfer from the University of Southern California, who possessed a wonderful stride and a great amount of speed, easily won the 440 and the finish of the relay for the Juniors. Another man who was very instrumental in helping the Juniors take the meet was Gerken, who was a transfer from Modesto Junior College. This giant turned in a first in the shot put, making an extraordinarily long heave for so early in the season. A newcomer from Washington and Jefferson University, Alderette by name, and also a Junior, turned in a first in the 220 low hurdles to the fast time of 25 3-10. This time was about the best that had been made this season in that event, and he may be expected to turn in points in his event for California in all of the succeeding meets. A valuable addition to the relay team, and the 440, was found in Crane, a transfer from the Southern Branch of the University of California.

Aside from these new finds, Coach Walter Christie still had the nucleus from last year's team on which to build his team for 1925. Among the most noteworthy of these was Captain Bud Becker, who was the Bears' mainstay in both hurdle events last year. Barber showed in the interclass that he had increased his speed over that of last year in both the 100- and 220-yard dashes by taking both those events in fast time. Among the others that may be expected to hold up California's past record are: Ross and Schwobeda in the mile, Dunn and Jensen in the two-mile, Hampton in the high jump, Boyden and Chase in the 880, Carey and Francis in the discus, Hill, Garner, and Upson in the pole vault, Bondshu in the broad jump, and Dodson in the javelin. With all these fine track and field men the Bears may look forward to a very successful year filled with victory.

OLYMPIC CLUB MEET

CALIFORNIA surprised many track followers, and caused considerable worry down on the Farm, by defeating the Olympic Club 91 to 40, on March 21. The Winged "O" were conceded to have an exceptionally strong team, but "Walt "Christie's Bears had everything their own way from the beginning, despite the short time the men had been in training.

Jim Barber came through in the 100 and 220, winning from Hale, former Stanford star. Barber is developing into one of the greatest sprinters seen at California for some time. Jack Merchant and Paul Boran, both former members of Christie's championship I. C. A. A. A. teams, were defeated by Elmer Bondshu in the broad jump. Bondshu's winning jump was twenty-two feet eleven inches. Gerkin, a transfer from Modesto Junior College, placed in the shot put and discus. In the pole vault Garner and Upson tied for first with a Winged "O" man at twelve feet. The relay was the most sensational race of the day. "Racehorse" Cochran of the Olympic Club defeated Johnson in the 440-yard dash, while Johnson came back in the relay and beat Cochran to the tape by a few feet.

Since Stanford beat the Olympic club by practically the same score, it was foretold that the Big Meet would be unusually interesting, and cause varied speculations as to the outcome in track circles.

POMONA-REDLANDS MEET

THE Golden Bear made his annual invasion into southern California on March 28, defeating Pomona College and the University of Redlands 95 to 35. The day was entirely California's, but the southern athletes pushed the visitors in almost every event. Several upsets added zest to the affair. Crane and Aggeler beat out Johnson in the quarter mile, Ross winning from Schwobeda in the mile and Boydon winning from Chase in the half-mile.

California won eleven first places and tied for one, while Pomona won two and tied for another. Exceptional times were made in the shorter races. A fast track and close competition resulted in Barber turning in the times of 9 4/5 and 21 2/5 seconds in the century and furlong, respectively. Fred Garner, after tying at 12 feet with his team-mates, Upson and Hill, for first in the pole vault, cleared 13 feet 1/2 inch in an exhibition jump. Hill went to 12 feet 9 inches. Another sensational highlight in the meet took place when Fox of California made a beautiful sprint at the end of the two mile to win from Snyder of Pomona.

The decisive victory for California in this meet and in the previous Olympic Club meet showed that the Bears have a very strong team and have every reason to look forward to a successful season.

WISCONSIN-SOUTHERN CAL. MEET

THE crucial test of Christie's squad came on April 11, in the triangular meet with Wisconsin and southern California all-stars from Redlands, Pomona, and Occidental. Wisconsin was somewhat handicapped since this was their first outdoor appearance, and greatly surprised the spectators by leading the meet during the first four events. At the final count, California nearly equaled the combined score of her opponents, when she amassed a total of 65 points, the Wisconsin Badgers 39½ and the All-Stars 29½. The track was quite heavy due to rains throughout the preceding week and prevented any records being established. In spite of this fact, the meet was a very interesting one. As a triangle meet, it was something out of the ordinary, and California's victory over the Wisconsin and southern California stars proved that she had not lost her prowess in the track world.

McAndrews, Badger sprinter and broad jumper, was individual star of the meet, taking first in the 100-yard dash from Barber in 9.9. This was the best time set on the Pacific Coast to date and was exceptionally good considering the condition of the track. Barber ran a beautiful race in the 220-yard dash, barely nosing out McAndrews. McAndrews also placed second to Elmer Bondshu in the broad jump.

Les Schwobeda won the two mile in great style trailing the Wisconsin men for seven laps and coming to the lead with a wonderful sprint in the last two hundred yards for an easy first. Les is only a Sophomore and is coming through in great style.

Hampton defeated the champion of the Big Ten in the high jump clearing the bar at sixfeet two and seven-eighths inches. Hampton is a consistent first-place man in his event, and is only a Sophomore.

Alderette, a transfer from Washington and Jefferson, came to the front when he defeated Maxwell of Pomona, the champion hurdler of the Pacific Coast, in the 220-yard low hurdles. Captain Bud Becker placing third, and in the high hurdles, Becker pressed Maxwell for a close second.

California won eight first places out of a possible fifteen, Wisconsin four, and All-Stars three, showing that California has one of the best track teams in the country. The outstanding performers of the day for California were Barber, Alderette, Becker, Hampton, Gerkin, Garner, Hill and Schwobeda.

This meet proved conclusively that California had a very strong team and would have no trouble in the Stanford meet of making a fine showing. The results of this meet were looked upon as a criterion of the Varsity's strength, and those loyal California supporters who were present were not disappointed.

CALIFORNIA-STANFORD MEET

CALIFORNIA met Stanford in the annual track classic in the Stanford Stadium on April 18th. Stanford prior to the meet was the favorite, and carried out this threat by winning by the small margin of 66½ points to California's 64½.

Stanford, doped to win in the mile, took both first and second places, leaving Ross of California to place third. The time for this event was 4.26½.

The 100-yard dash also went through as expected, with Barber of California taking first in 10.1 and Stanford placing second with Hartranft. The third place was hotly contested and resulted in a tie between Gaspet and Campbell, both of Stanford. This seemed to brighten California's hopes; and the 440 proved another aid in evening scores. California's man, Johnson, placed second, led by Miller of Stanford. Storey took third. The time in the event was 49.2.

Leistner was the easy winner in the record-breaking time of 14.9 in the 120 high hurdles, lowering by 1/5 of a second the previous record of 15.1 for meets between California and Stanford. Captain "Bud" Becker placed second in good form in the high hurdles, followed closely by Al Regan of California.

The sport dope was slightly upset on the two-mile run. California took first, second, and third places in the event, thus gaining nine points on Stanford. Stevenson beat Schwobeda for first place. One of the most tense moments of the meet occurred as Charles, the Stanford star two-miler, passed Peckham on the final sprint. Peckham brought all his strength into play and crossed the line an instant before Charles, thus gaining all three places for California. Stevenson ran a pretty race and easily forced Schwobeda to take second. Besides taking all places in the two-mile California also broke the California-Stanford record, which was 9.47 1/5, held by Dorr of California. Stevenson ran it in 9.43 1/10.

Again the 880 sport dope was upset and Boyden of California placed first, while Richardson, a Stanford man, took second place. Smith, also a wearer of the Cardinal, came in third. Another California-Stanford record was broken in this event by Boyden. The previous 880 record of 1.54 3/5, held by Bonnett of Stanford, was reduced to 1.54 1/10.

Barber, a Bruin man, took first place in the 220-yard dash in the fast time of 21.4. This event could best be characterized by the speed. Each man was in excellent condition and ran in good form. Gasper and Campbell, Stanford tracksters, grabbed the second and third places.

California also took first in the shot put. Gerkin, one of Walt Christie's best men, tossed the shot 48 feet 1/8 inch, beating out Hartranft, Stanford's intercollegiate champion, by 1/4 of an inch. Hoffman, another of Stanford's tracksters, placed third.

The low hurdles went to Stanford in the fast time of 14 flat. This was within 1/10 of a second of the California-Stanford record. Captain Becker took second to Leistner, with Dole of Stanford placing third.

True to dope, Dodson won the javelin, with a throw of 188 feet 9 inches. Evers and Shipkey took 4 points for Stanford with second and third places.

Barber Breaking the Tape in the 100-Yard Dash

Hampton, the California favorite, was beaten by his old rival, Work of Stanford, in the high jump. Work jumped 6 feet 1 3/4 inches, while Hampton tied Muhs of Stanford for second.

The pole vault was practically a clean sweep for California. Hill tied Upson for first at 12 feet, while Garner and Mathews were tied for third, giving California 8 1/2 points.

McRae of Stanford surprised by beating Bondshu of California in the board jump by a leap of 23 feet 2 3/4 inches. Meeks of Stanford took third place.

Another surprise of the day was Dana Carey's throw of 140 feet 5 1/8 inches in the discus. Again Hartranft, the intercollegiate champion, was forced into second place, with Francis of California taking third.

The score prior to the relay was 64½ points to 61½ in California's favor. Barber, the first California relay man, gave Aggeler a 2-yard lead. This was steadily increased until Richardson, the third Stanford runner, passed Boyden. This gave Miller, the new Stanford quarter-mile champion, too big a lead for Johnson to overcome, although the latter forced Miller to the limit and gave the crowds the thrill of the day as they raced breast to breast toward the finish. By winning the relay, Stanford emerged victorious by the scant margin of two bitterly contested points.

California, due to the excellent and patient coaching of Walter Christie, produced a track squad which at the beginning of the season was supposed to have little if any material. Christie trained the men on his squad and worked with them untiringly until in this meet California's men reproduced all of the ability that he had instilled in them. One of California's ablest coaches, during his past years he has produced many winning teams. This meet not only showed that Christie is a true Californian but it proved again that he could make a valuable squad out of untried material.

Under the supervision of Coach Christie, such men as Barber, Gerkin, Carey, Stevenson, Schwobeda, and Boyden have been found capable of surpassing all expectations in the track world. California was able to force Stanford to the limit and held the lead until the last event of the meet, the relay.

Although at the beginning of the season California was doped to lose because of lack of material, the team had one fine factor in Captain Al Becker. He has entered his last meet for California, and after three years of training and work on the squad, he had the honor of leading the Blue and Gold men in one of the best meets in several years. Becker did some excellent work in the Stanford-California meet by taking second place in both the low and high hurdles. Perhaps the most necessary things for a team are a good coach and an excellent captain, so in this regard California was particularly fortunate this year because she had both of these essentials.

One of the disappointments for California was the fact that Art Alderette, who had spent two years in preparation and training, was declared ineligible on the eve of the meet. Alderette's best event was the low hurdles and he was a strong contender for honors. Had Alderette been able to run, California's score might have been more than Stanford's.

From the starting gun till the finish of the relay, the thirty-second annual track meet was by far the most thrilling and interesting witnessed in years. California might well be proud of these men who trained and ran and came so close to winning this hotly contested meet.

OLD CALIFORNIA FIELD

CALIFORNIA FIELD, athletic battle ground of days gone by, and scene of a multitude of vivid recollections, has passed into history. Where once the towering bleachers stood, and men labored day after day, and year after year, to maintain the sports supremacy of the University, Hearst Hall, a huge gymnasium dedicated to the physical welfare of women students, is being erected.

When most of us were bound in swaddling clothes, countless throngs of slick-collared men and leg-of-mutton-sleeved maidens were raising their voluminous voices on old Cal Field in humble exultation of the Golden Bear, symbolic of California tradition. For it was in 1904 that the bleachers on California Field were erected, at a cost of $12,000.

An early issue of the Daily Californian of that year expressed the following ray of hope: "There need be no fear but that the new bleachers with a seating capacity of 16,000 will hold as large a crowd as will ever care to witness a football contest." How times have changed! John Galen Howard, then a struggling young architect, designed the plans. The Field was named in accordance with the wishes of the members of the California Club, an organization of prominent students.

The now historic field of battle was dedicated on November 4, 1904. "With speeches, songs and yells," said the Daily Californian, "California Field—the greatest football gridiron west of the Rocky Mountains—was formally dedicated. The rally took place on the northeast corner of the field, although there were enough people present to almost fill the entire side. The speakers of the occasion were Ezra Decoto, graduate manager; Professor Karl H. Schilling of the German department; Jim Force, Varsity tackle; Ox Albertson, captain of the 1902 football team, and President Wheeler, who responded after persistent cries for a speech."

But the first game played on the newly dedicated field was destined to be marred by a decisive Stanford victory. The boys from the Farm came up to Berkeley on that gala day and proudly carried home the palms of victory, for they had won easily by an 18-0 score. For four years thereafter the Cardinals continued to triumph. Evidently our sturdy Golden Bear had swallowed the Stanford Jonah. But the most sanguine hopes of the Bruin followers were raised when California sought to erase its defeats by three successive years of overwhelming victory.

THE LAST OF THE OLD BLEACHERS

It was in 1907, when the Bear emerged for his perennial contest with the sons of the Stanford Red, that a new song was born destined to be famous. The melody was "Hail to California," and it is still being sung wherever students gather.

And while we pause to meditate over days gone by on California Field, we should not forget those coaches who have labored there who have inculcated in their youthful charges that spirit of fair play for which our Alma Mater is famous.

Back in 1898, Garry Cochran, who was killed in the World War while serving as lieutenant of engineers, first came to the University. Other untiring workers were Percy Hall, Bill Knibbs, Jimmy Hopper, Doc Simpson, and Jimmy Schafer, the predecessor of Andy Smith. For a number of years, Walter Christie, in addition to his duties as track coach, served as trainer of the football squad. Sometimes winning, sometimes losing, these men have carried on with the same unfaltering spirit.

Among the players who have fought on California Field, who have voluntarily agreed to the subordination of self for the good of the team and the University, old-timers recall a few outstanding stars. There was Midge Jordan, one of the fastest heavy men who ever entered the University; Ovie Overall, whose prowess as a guard is yet remembered; Wrick Womble, an end who had no peer; Locomotive Smith; and Bart Thane. In more recent years, Pesky Sprott, Stew Beam, Brick Muller, and Babe Horrell are the athletes whose prowess is most often recalled.

The last few years have brought an increased interest in football, and with it an increase in the number of people who attend the games until it was impossible to seat the vast crowds who clamored for a chance to see California's sons battle on the field of honor; and so it was decreed that California Field must go. On the ground on which this historic field once stood, overlooking the games of old with their glorious victory and sometimes stinging defeat, is to be erected the Hearst Memorial which will perpetuate the California Spirit of old that was imbedded in the old structure which stood so well the test of time. To take the place of the once adequate California Field, the Stadium was erected, with a seating capacity of 75,000 people, which is expected to take care of all possible crowds—but who knows, may it not meet with the same end which befell its predecessor?

No matter what time may lapse, the memory of California Field will continue in the hearts of all true Californians, although now this famed spot where coaches and players have worked together, spurred on by the enthusiasm of devoted supporters, has fallen prey to the ravaging onslaught of diggers and carpenters. Now athletic history is being written on a bigger and better field dedicated to the heroism of those who sacrificed their lives that democracy might live. Truly, the old order changeth.

The Work of Destruction Nearing Completion

THE FRESHMAN SEASON

IN THE early-season tryouts thirty men qualified for the Freshman squad. These men in the interclass brought the Freshmen in a close second to the Juniors, who won the meet. Against the All Stars of the East Bay and Sacramento high schools, the Freshmen piled up a score of 155 to their opponents' 30. The star of this meet was "Irvie" Phillips, who was high-point man, making eighteen points for the Freshmen.

The meet with Modesto was a means of comparing the rival teams of the California and Stanford Freshmen. Both teams met and defeated Modesto by about the same score. Roehrig was the outstanding man in this meet and made fast times of 10.1 in the 100 and 22.6 in the 220.

The annual "Little Big Meet" was held on April 7, 1925, after being postponed from April 4 because of rain. The meet was held on California Oval, which was in poor condition due to rains and a change of its surface. The times were rather slow, and only one record was broken. "Irvie" Phillips, California's husky weight man, threw the discus 131 feet, setting a new record for the Freshman meets; and undoubtedly he will prove a valuable asset to the Varsity next season. One of the prettiest events of the day was the 440, in which Talbot, after being crowded off the track, came through with a first. Roehrig, the dimunitive captain, upheld his part of the day's events by coming through with two firsts in the sprints. VanTress got up from a sick bed to compete in the 800 and was another first-place winner. Phillips won both weight events and tied with Roehrig of California and Nichols of Stanford for high-point man of the day. Each one took two firsts, totaling ten points apiece.

One of the hardest-fought events of the day was the high jump, in which Fitz of California and King of Stanford repeatedly outdid each other at loftier heights, King finally winning at 6 feet 1 inch. Fitz made his best mark of the season, clearing 6 feet, and is future Varsity material. California's Freshmen split first place with the Stanford Freshmen, and it was the Stanford men who took second and third who won the meet for the Cards.

One of the finest examples of sportsmanship was the act of Smith, who had placed in the mile run and stopped before crossing the line in the two-mile in order that a team mate of his could make his numerals.

The meet showed that the California Freshmen had many individually good men, and were only prevented from winning the occasion because of ineligibilities. They lost out in the javelin, and, if Sterling had not been declared ineligible, he would have won that event, which would have made a considerable difference in the final score.

THE FRESHMAN SQUAD

BASEBALL

Coach Carl Zamloch

WITH the close of the 1925 season, Carl Zamloch has completed his tenth year as coach of the California baseball team. The success of the Varsity has been due mainly to his untiring efforts in developing his squad. He has shown the qualities of a successful leader and an able coach, as no point of the game is too little and no task too hard for Carl to tackle in order to make his team a smoothly running machine. As a consequence he has the respect and confidence of all those who turn out for baseball. Not only does he develop good college baseball players, but many of those who have had the benefit of his guidance have made excellent records in the game after leaving college.

The present season shows well the work of Coach Zamloch. During the whole season only one game was lost, and that to the St. Louis Cardinals. The team had the stiffest kind of competition this year, playing many professional and good college teams, but they were all vanquished by a well-developed team that showed the result of the fine efforts of Coach Carl Zamloch. We are sure that next season a similar accomplishment will prevail through the guidance of our efficient coach.

Varsity Baseball Squad

THE Varsity was captained throughout this season by Albert Sears, who is recognized as one of the best outfielders that California has ever had. At the end of the last season he was elected by a unanimous vote to be captain of this year's Varsity, and he has ably filled that position, captaining a winning team through a successful season. When the team was in a hole, Al was always there to restore the confidence that was needed by the team and to give them the spirit that enabled them to forge ahead and win the games.

He has always played in the outfield and has held his position successfully for the last three years. Along with his excellent outfielding, he is a consistent hitter, and his trusty bat has many times been responsible for a California victory.

Al has suggested changes in the lineup only when it was for the betterment of the team as a whole. His attractive personality has been another factor that has helped to make this season the great success that it has been. It is with regret that we see him go, because of the fear that the union of the team that has been furthered by the character of such a captain will be hard to maintain.

PRELIMINARY SEASON

THE baseball season at the University of California opened on February 16, when the Bears met the Broadway Merchants in the first game of the preliminary season. The game was featured by many errors due to the poor condition of the field, but California came out on the long end of a 6-1 score. After a week's layoff because of inclement weather, the Varsity met and conquered their next opponents, the Kenealy Seals, by an 11-3 score. Bob Minty pitched an excellent game against the Seals, and the performance of Jack Nounnan in the Broadway Merchants game forecasted an excellent season for him also. The wonderful playing of the Varsity infield helped Jack Nounnan to take the Olympic Club scalp to the tune of 9-0 in the Bears' next start.

On March 4 the California nine met the Santa Clara Broncos in the first intercollegiate game of the year. For the first half of the game the Bears were trailing the Broncos, but the California boys soon found their batting eye. Frank Thatcher started the ball rolling by hitting a long three-bagger, and Bud Morse, Smith, and Bert King followed with hits, earning California a 10-9 victory.

A 5-3 conquest was the result of the Bears' next game, with the St. Mary's team. The excellent coaching of Carl Zamloch could be clearly seen by the way the California boys hit in the pinches. Frank Thatcher played an excellent fielding game, as well as hitting a home run with the bases loaded to win the game for the Bears.

With a few days' interval the California Varsity played return games with the Santa Clara, St. Mary's, and Olympic Club nines, coming out victorious in all of these contests. The excellent hitting of Bud Morse, Frank Thatcher, Howard Rossell, and Bill Nicholas was the feature of these games.

Eleven straight victories was the record of the California nine until they met the St. Louis Cardinals in the Stadium on Charter Day. The big-leaguers were too much for Carl Zamloch's charges, and they went down to an 8-3 defeat. The game was marked by the fast fielding and clever bunching of hits by the St. Louis boys. The Cards started their whole first string, including many well-known players, such as Rogers Hornsby. The contest was an excellent practice game for the Bears, as it gave Coach Zamloch a fine opportunity to see his men in action against some real competition. Excellent fielding by Scotty Tait and Frank Thatcher, and a beautiful home run by Jimmie Dixon, were the high lights of California's play.

With a veteran team with which to start, Zamloch has turned out a team that shows excellent promise for the later games. These last few weeks before the Stanford series the coach is beginning to iron out the weaknesses in the Bear lineup. With Bob Minty and Jack Nounnan pitching great ball and Captain Al Sears, Frank Thatcher, Scotty Tait, Jimmie Dixon, Bert King, Howard Rossell, and Maylon Loynd all playing fine ball, the California team should make an excellent showing.

As the Stanford series drew closer it was evident that California would be victorious against the Cardinals because of the fine showing made against such strong competition as was given the Varsity in its preliminary games. Coach Zamlock deserved a great deal of credit for the way in which he rounded the team into such good shape for his first games.

The use of the Stadium as a baseball diamond was something new this season. With the tearing up of old California Field it was found necessary to move the baseball field, and the Stadium was the next best place. The work of converting the football turf into a ball park was accomplished through the hard work of the Sophomore and Junior baseball managers under the direction of Senior Manager "Brick" Templeton.

On the whole it has proved quite satisfactory, although the light background of the Stadium makes it hard for the fielders to judge their catches, and also the right field is short and makes it easy to hit home runs. In spite of these minor faults the new field has a very good feature in that it possesses training quarters on the grounds. In past years it was necessary to use Harmon Gymnasium as training quarters, which necessitated a trip of some little distance for the players to take in going to and from the lockers. This resulted in a loss of time and not a little bit of inconvenience which is done away with in their present situation. The new location contains all of the necessary conveniences and modern improvements which are so helpful in putting out a victorious team, and this, along with the fact that these quarters are situated at the actual playing field, makes the Stadium a very desirable place for any team to practice and play their games on.

HISTORY OF THE CALIFORNIA-STANFORD BASEBALL SERIES

THE first baseball series between California and Stanford was played in 1892 and was won by Stanford. The Cardinals succeeded in winning during the first five years of baseball competition and the Bears won their first series in 1897. Stanford won in 1898 and then followed a period of seven years of California victories. Last year the Cards took the odd game of a hectic series for their first triumph in five years.

STANFORD SERIES

THE California Varsity baseball team met the Stanford ball tossers in the first game of their annual series in the Stadium on University Day. The game proved to be a farce, ending in a 27-5 score in favor of California.

Ernie Nevers, the Stanford pitching ace and the star of last year's Stanford-California series, started the game on the mound for the Red Shirts. Ernie seemed to be unable to find the plate, and after walking four men in a row he was taken from the mound, and Oviatt, Stanford's second best man, took his place. Jimmy Dixon immediately proceeded to knock a home run, and in a few minutes Oviatt went to the showers. He was followed by Collins, and later by Reese, neither of whom proved effective. To make matters worse the Stanford infield made innumerable errors at inopportune times.

Jack Nounnan, on the mound for California, pitched his usual steady game, having but one weak inning, the second. The Cards accounted for three of their tallies in this round, the other two counters coming at the close of the game. The Bears played a superb fielding game, making but two errors.

The Bruins proved to have the hardest-hitting delegation in the history of the universities. Jimmy Dixon headed the list with two home runs, a two-bagger, and a single out of five times at bat. Frank Thatcher and George Smith also entered the home-run column with one circuit clout apiece.

The third and deciding game of the Stanford-California baseball series was held at Stanford University on April 22. An extraordinarily large crowd witnessed the game, which was held after the big meet. Coach Carl Zamloch started the same lineup against the Cards that proved so effective in the first game of the series.

Captain Al Sears, playing his last game for California, was the star of the outfield. Jimmy Dixon played his usual steady fielding game, as well as accounting for several tallies. Frank Thatcher played an exceptionally fast game at first. His hitting in pinches deserved commendation. M. Loynd played a real bang-up game behind the bat, and measured his throws to second with exceptional skill. The whole team functioned as a unit, and it was not through the sensational playing of these men alone, but it was through the efforts of the whole team working together, that the game proved to be the success that it was.

This game completed the best season that the Bears have had in several years and with the fine showing that the California team put up against Stanford the successful season was brought to a close. They redeemed themselves most nobly for the defeat that they suffered at the hands of the Red Shirts last year, thus showing that the California spirit is prevalent throughout all the college activities and never fails to come back.

Next year we expect to see California put out a winning team again, for although they are losing several of their best men, Coach Zamloch will still have much good material from which to mold a team that will be representative of California's greatness.

THE FRESHMAN SEASON

WHEN Coach Gerlach issued a call for Freshman baseball aspirants, the hopes for a successful baseball season looked very dubious. There was a decided lack of material, but he built out of his squad a fairly good team.

The preliminary season was spent in the development and the placing of men in their right positions. As a consequence the first games were played in poor fashion, but toward the end the Freshmen showed up well and won the majority of their last games. During all this time, Coach Gerlach's efforts were directed toward the Stanford series. During the week, four of his mainstops were declared ineligible. Thus the team was broken up. As a consequence, they lost the two closely contested Stanford games.

The first Stanford game was a slow one. Both the Stanford and Californian teams played very ragged baseball. The Stanford Babes got off to an early lead, and the Californian Freshmen could not overtake them.

Due to the excellent delivery of the Stanford pitcher, Phillipi, California's hits were obtained only at inopportune times. Maurice and Douthit took the batting honors for the day, each getting one homer and three other hits.

The box score:	R.	H.	E.
Stanford	10	12	3
California	4	10	4

The batteries for Stanford were Phillipi and Sypher, and for California, Newell and Briggs.

The second and last game with Stanford resulted in another victory for Stanford, and thus went the honors of the annual series. Phillipi again pitched good ball, and Sypher, as catcher, backed his team and played a good game.

The Bruin team had trouble in the box. Lefty Newell was hit off the mound in the second inning, and Abercrombie was sent in to take his place and finished the game. Briggs played a good game at the receiving end and urged his team on. Anderson, Captain Warner, and Douthit accounted for most of California's hits. They played right field, shortstop, and first base positions, respectively, and showed up well there. As a whole the team played a poor game.

The box score:	R.	H.	E.
Stanford	12	14	1
California	5	10	4

The batteries for Stanford were Phillipi, Sopiesky and Sypher, and for California, Newell, Abercrombie and Briggs, Gellet.

Freshman Baseball Squad

CREW

CARROLL "KY" EBRIGHT and Russell Nagler, California's Varsity and Freshman crew mentors, respectively, have just completed their first two years at this University. And completed successfully too.

In that time crew has developed twofold, and the crew men themselves have taken an added interest in the sport. With such natural-born leaders as Ky and Russ have proved themselves to be, there is no wonder that crew has made the advances that it has in the past two seasons.

Always interested in the aquatic sport, Ebright made good as the coxswain for the Washington Varsity eight from 1913 to 1917, under the tutelage of Hiram Conibear. Conibear originated and developed the famous Conibear system of rowing which is now used at California and which has twice won the national intercollegiate rowing title for Washington and the Olympic games title.

THE VARSITY CREW

CAPTAINING California's Varsity eight is one of the cleanest-cut athletes California has ever turned out, namely, Gordon ("Donk") Cranmer, who for three years has slid his feet beneath Varsity foot-straps in the Bruin shell.

Last season Cranmer, under Ky Ebright's careful guidance, took his first stroke under the Conibear system. It did not take him long to get on to the swing of things and since that time he has been one of the outstanding sweepsters under the new system.

He is a natural leader of men and his personality and fighting spirit has gained for him the respect and admiration of every man out for the aquatic sport. "Donk" has served well.

PRELIMINARY SEASON

CREW opened its official fall training season a few days after registration day with a rally held under the auspices of Coaches Ky Ebright and Russell Nagler. Due to the increased interest in crew a goodly number of candidates turned out for the initial workouts over the Oakland Estuary course.

The fall semester was spent in preliminary training for the Washington Regatta, which was held on April 11, 1925, on Oakland Estuary. The training period was light and most of the time was spent in acquainting the men thoroughly with the Conibear stroke, which was instituted for the first time by Coaches Ebright and Nagler, who came here last year from the Bruins' ancient water rival, Washington.

Spring training saw a more concentrated effort on the part of coaches and oarsmen alike. Long hours and tedious grinds over the estuary were the order of work every night throughout the college year. The shellmen gave unselfishly that California might better face Washington with some prospects of winning, which for seasons past had been an impossibility. California has the men, the coaches, a wonderful backing from the whole college behind them, everything but the necessary equipment. Now with the new crewsheds, the Bears are certain that they will not continue to be defeated by the Washington crewmen.

During the semester an added impetus was given crew when the training quarters were moved into a new $12,000 boathouse one and a half miles further up the estuary. For the first time in years, California's sweep-swingers had something to work for. Not only the honor of California's name, but the fact that a Bruin eight had but once crossed the line in the annual regatta ahead of Washington caused the shellmen to work, think, and sleep crew.

Instituting something new in the way of practice, Coach Ebright held several interclass races over the new course. With every one of these short impromptu affairs a steady improved rowing could be seen in the various shells. It was such things as this which made the Washington race a real battle this year.

The annual interclass regatta was won by the Freshmen much to the surprise of all. The Babes' closest rival was the hated Sophomore eight. Trailing close behind came the Junior shell. Whether the Seniors ever crossed the finish line intact has not been discovered as yet.

After the men had recovered from the interclass fracas, Ebright started in to find his real eight which was to face the Huskies on April 11. After many shifts a formidable combination was at last found and hours were concentrated on these few men, in order to develop a winning Bruin eight. For the first time in the history of crew, California and Washington were to row over a four-mile course, and this meant hard training to bring out the desired stamina. And Ebright brought it out! The men are certainly to be congratulated for the marvelous way that they have trained and have backed their coach. Crew training is the hardest that there is, but California has the men that are willing to do it for the sake of their Alma Mater.

THE WASHINGTON RACE

APRIL 11 at 11 o'clock in the morning found the Oakland Estuary lined with lovers of the aquatic sport. Bright colors were waving, with a predominance of blue and gold.

Those wearing the colors of California were hoping for a victory, but deep down in their hearts there was doubt. For California had but twice flashed their blue oars across the finish ahead of the Huskies—once in a triangular regatta with Stanford and Washington, in 1905, and again in 1921 against the Huskies.

This year crew seemed on a more sound basis and it gave the oarsmen and their supporters confidence for the first time since 1921. Californians even hoped for a victory, but fate ruled otherwise.

The California shell started off with a great spurt and was leading the Washington boat—hope flared up in the hearts of the thousands of Bear supporters who lined the shores and followed the course of the race in every kind of craft. For the first few hundred yards the "Berkeleyan" managed to keep its lead, slim as it was, but the "Harry Gowman" was fast forging ahead until at the half-mile mark the Huskies drew away from the Bruin shell and their lead steadily increased throughout the three-mile grind. At the finish the Huskies were leading by eight lengths and rowing in superb form. Not once did their shell waiver over the course.

But at that Californians were not entirely disappointed, for it was gratifying to know that Washington clipped the course record, covering the distance in 15:09, which time was twenty-four seconds under any previous time over the estuary course. And, besides, Washington was a good crew—national champions for two years! Certainly not a disgrace to lose by eight lengths to a shell of such experience.

The California shell had but few men in the boat who had rowed in a Varsity shell before and their inexperience could easily be seen. The men rowed with all their strength and determination, however, hoping to defeat their more experienced competitors. Several of the men in the "Berkeleyan" were almost entirely "out" at the close of the race.

After the race the shellmen got their heads together and elected the diminutive coxswain, Oxie Hotle, to the captaincy for next year. Hotle's election was a popular choice as he has won the confidence of every man out for crew in the three years that he has held the tiller ropes.

Under Hotle's guiding hand next year, a better type of Freshman crewmen to pick from for the Varsity boat, and the experience of Coaches Ky Ebright and Russ Nagler, California's crew should prove a real menace to any eight that is put on the water against the Blue and Gold.

With determination and spirit such as the oarsmen displayed this year there is no reason why the Bruins should not be able to be real contenders for the Coast title in 1926.

The lineup this year was: Stroke, Gordon Cranmer (C); 7, Moncure; 6, DeJonge; 5, Berlin; 4, Hutchinson; 3, Harbach; 2, Murphy; and bow, Locke. Hotle, coxswain.

Washington Leading Near the Finish of the Race

THE FRESHMAN SEASON

CALIFORNIA'S Freshmen turned out for crew with a will this year but Coach Russ Nagler did not find it as hard to select his eight men as he had expected. However, out of the seventy-five men that came out it was not an easy task.

After a year's concentrated effort, under Nagler's ever watchful eye, the Babe shellmen were selected one week before the Washington-California race over the Oakland estuary on April 11. The Babe shell never held a finer bunch of athletes than those eight men.

And they proved that last statement to be true when the hour for the race drew near. Entering the fracas with the odds in their favor the California babes rowed true to form and crossed the line three boat-lengths ahead of the Huskies.

Californians took confidence in that race, and already predictions for a Varsity victory next year are burning the atmosphere. "A perfect race" said Rusty Callow, the Washington mentor, and that just about expresses the kind of race the Babes rowed as they skimmed over the estuary course in the fast time of 10:23.

During the year two men stood out on the Freshman eight. These two were Moe at stroke, whose steady pull during the Husky race accounted for a good share of the victory, and Richardson, whose brainy work as coxswain has marked him as a Varsity contender for next year of the highest calibre.

The Freshmen have a good start and with their numerals safely tucked away should give the Varsity seats a good wearing next year. Coach Russ Nagler has been teaching his men the Conibear stroke which is used by Washington and which Coach Ky Ebright has been teaching to the Varsity eight. It has been difficult for Ebright to begin teaching the Varsity men this stroke and in so short a time expect to have them so well trained as to offer strong opposition to a more experienced crew. Next year with a year's experience with this stroke, this year's Freshman crew should form a nucleus about which Coach Ebright can use the Conibear stroke to the best advantage.

After that Washington race a strange scene took place in the shadows of the California boathouse. For the first time in years the California crew men donned the Washington sweaters—the spoils of victory—and marched to their dressing quarters the happiest lot of Bruin shellmen that ever trod that floor. And they claim they will win next year, "or know the reason why," as Richardson says.

THE FRESHMAN CREW

TENNIS

Howard Kinsey

HOWARD KINSEY volunteered to coach the Varsity tennis squad through the 1925 season. California has never before been so fortunate as to have the invaluable services of an expert tennis coach. He has worked up two of the most formidable doubles teams in American intercollegiate tennis. His valuable advice and guidance has been of great aid in enabling the Bruin racquet swingers to perfect their games. In commenting on his material, he stated that the strokes worked out by the first four men on the team were as good as those of the best players in the country, but their game showed room for improvement in the court generalship department. The secret of championship play not only demands perfect strokes but requires judgment in placing balls. Kinsey gave the Varsity the benefit of his wide experience in competition with the world's best tennis players. The advantage of Coach Kinsey's supervision has been reflected in the steady consistency and the brainy net work of the two Varsity doubles teams

Varsity Tennis Squad

CAPTAIN Bud Chandler has lead the Bruin Varsity through the most brilliant season in tennis history. He has demonstrated his ability as a Bear leader by his consistent number one ranking on the squad. Throughout the season he has played a steady hard game which his opponents have found invulnerable. Entering the season at top form he defeated Howard Kinsey, a member of the 1924 Davis Cup Team, in straight sets; and later he took a match from Peck Griffin, the former National Doubles Champion. He met with great success in the Inter-club series, coming through with an unbroken string of victories, which were an unfailing source of confidence to the team. His serious attention to the game and its details has been a great factor in building up an aggressive spirit among his team-mates, which has been of inestimable value in strengthening their offense. He has made the forceful personality which he possesses a big factor in maintaining the high morale of the squad. His great success has exemplified California leadership, and has stimulated the team to its best efforts, thus producing the co-operation so vital to a successful season.

THE PRELIMINARY SEASON

CALIFORNIA ushered in her greatest preliminary tennis season on March 7, when she defeated the Olympic Club in the first round of the inter-club play. The Varsity took five out of the nine matches. The Winged aggregation invaded the University courts with a formidable array of stars, but their morale was broken down when Howard Kinsey, of Davis Cup Team fame, met defeat at the hands of Bud Chandler.

Captain Chandler played an air-tight game, defeating Kinsey in straight sets 6-4, 6-4. "Gerry" Stratford smashed his way to victory over Mervin Griffin, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2. Deitrick of the Post Street club won two hotly contested sets from "Gerv" Hillis, 8-6, 8-6. The sets were spectacular throughout, exhibiting a stellar brand of tennis. Hyde of the Varsity obtained a draw out decision with Lowry, 6-0, 7-9, 6-3. Phil Bettens, the ex-Bruin Captain, lost a hard-fought match to Livingston, 8-6, 6-8, 6-1. Batkis defeated Stow, 6-4, 7-5. Deitrick and Kinsey scored a win over Chandler and Bettens, 6-1, 7-5. Hillis and Stratford proved to be too effective for Livingston and Griffin, sending them to defeat by 7-5, 6-1. Hyde and Olmstead walked away from Lowry and Batkins in the deciding match by a 6-3, 6-2 score.

On March 14, the Varsity dropped five out of nine matches to the California Club. Captain Chandler added to his string of victories by defeating Peck Griffin, former national doubles champion, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. "Phil" Bettens hit his stride and took Roberts down to defeat 6-2, 6-8, 6-2. "Gerv" Hillis trimmed Phil Neer, the former Cardinal captain, 6-4, 6-3. "Gerry" Stratford lost a well-fought match to Parker. The first set was a battle from start to finish, but the greater experience of Parker enabled him to come out on the long end of a 10-8 score. The second set went to Parker without much trouble. Levy, an ex-varsity man, took the measure of Stow, 6-3, 6-4. Brown shaded Hyde by a 7-5, 8-6 score. Chandler and Bettens exhibited a brilliant performance in defeating Parker and Neer 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. Griffin and Roberts displayed rare form in taking the measure of Hillis and Stratford by a 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 score. Brown and Levy had little trouble in winning from Stow and Hyde, 6-1, 6-2.

The Varsity journeyed to Sacramento March 22, and trounced the Sutter Tennis Club by taking seven out of nine matches. Hillis played as number one man of the Bruin squad, and played an air-tight game against Davis, taking the match by 6-1, 6-2. Chandler started fast against Chambers, but eased up in the second set, emerging with a 6-0, 7-5 score. Stratford played consistently at top form, trouncing Howard 6-0, 6-0. Bettens met with greater competition, but kept Oehler well in hand with an 8-6, 6-4 score. Stow dropped a hotly contested match to Sperry with the score of 6-8, 2-6. Hyde won a drawn-out decision over Stick, 7-5, 8-6. Mac Swain and Huechler succeeded in scoring the second win of the day for the Capital City Club by defeating Hyde and Stow by 8-6, 5-7, 6-2.

The Berkeley Tennis Club fell easy prey to the Bear net stars on March 28, when they dropped nine straight matches to the Bruin squad.

THE STANFORD SERIES

THE Stanford-California tennis matches will be played on April 18 on the Stanford courts. Though still a week off the respective teams seem to be fairly definitely selected. As to their comparative strengths, one has little out on which to base a forecast. They have not played the same teams, and Stanford has only one veteran, Overfelt, who played number one on last year's Varsity. Overfelt, rated as first man on the team, being a good defensive player, went to Australia with the team last year and is a man to be feared. The California team seems to be exceptionally strong this year, both in the singles and in the doubles. As it looks now, Stanford's team this season is stronger than last year's, but California is expected to win.

The probable California team will be made up of Chandler, Hillis, and Stratford in the singles, while in the doubles, Hillis will be paired with Stratford, and Phil Bettens with either Chandler or Stow. The best match is likely to be between Bud Chandler and Cranston Holman. Chandler has made a name for himself in the tennis world by defeating Kalins of the Australian Davis Cup team and as finalist in the National Junior singles. Holman, a runner-up in the National Junior Championship, was former National Municipal Champion, and now holds the San Jose and San Francisco championships. Thus he is expected to play his usual straight game efficient in all points. He has won from Suograss, who is eighth ranking player in the United States, and Peck Griffin, number ten. Providing that there will be no changes in the lineups, the first match should be a great exhibition of high, close tennis.

A THRILLING MOMENT ON THE UNIVERSITY COURTS

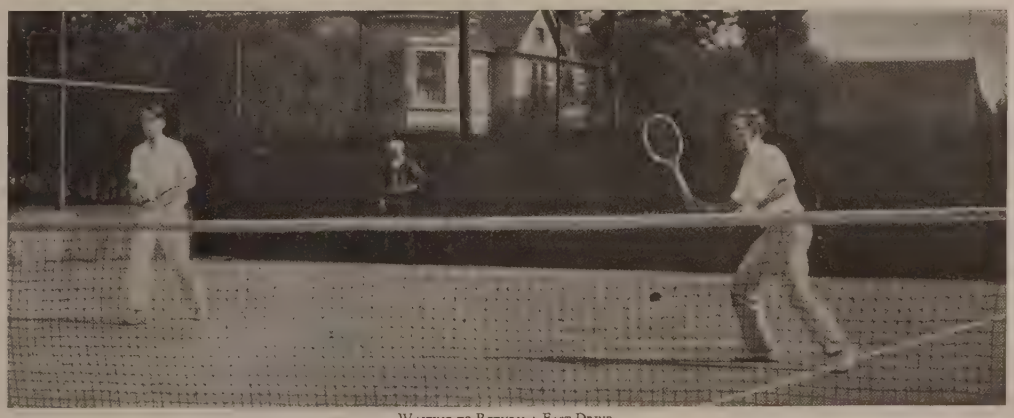
Gerv Hillis will meet Tubby Ogden in the second match. Hillis has a fine record as a coming tennis player, having won the Junior California State singles title in 1922, and finalist in the San Francisco championship this spring. Also, paired with Chandler, he won the Junior Doubles California State title in 1922, winning again with Stow in 1923. Ogden plays a good offensive game. He has a good service and follows his shots to the net quite well. Gerry Stratford will probably play Overfelt, captain, and a number one player on last year's Stanford team. Stratford had been playing a great hand of tennis this season. He defeated Westbrook, twelfth ranking player in the United States.

In the doubles, Phil Bettens, probably paired with Stow, will play Holman and Ogden, which will constitute a very strong combination. Phil Bettens is the holder of numerous titles as a singles and doubles player. His more important victories were the New England doubles titles in 1921, which he won while paired with Vincent Richards, and last year, the New York State doubles title when he was paired with L. White.

The second doubles match will be Hillis and Stratford of California against Fairchild and Overfelt of Stanford. This combination is not very strong because Paul Fairchild plays a better singles game than doubles. He plays a good back court game and is particularly good on the offensive but not at the net.

Phil Bettens and Gerv Hillis have been playing in fine style this year, and exhibiting great teamwork. The situations will stock up another victory for California although Stanford may get a few games.



Waiting to Return a Fast Drive

THE FRESHMAN SEASON

CALIFORNIA turned out a Freshman tennis team of unusual strength this year. They opened the preliminary season on February 27 by scoring a clean victory over Berkeley High School. The preliminary season extended to March 26, during which time the Babes had little difficulty in trimming Oakland, Piedmont, and Lowell high schools. They met their first competition when they scored a victory over the St. Mary's racquet swingers.

The Freshmen invaded the Stanford campus on April 11. They sent the Cardinal racqueters to defeat by winning three out of five matches. The Stanford Babes were strong as individuals, but they proved unable to meet the teamwork of the Bruin Babes in the doubles events.

Bradshaw Harrison of the Bruins, 1928 net man, led the invasion by taking the measure of Allan Herrington, the Card leader, in straight sets, six-one and six-two. Harrison has played as number one man on the Bear squad throughout the entire Freshman season. His game was too fast for Herrington, who succeeded in winning only three games during the entire match.

California did not fare so well in the remaining two singles matches. Heilbron put up a desperate fight in the first set, but succumbed in the second to the consistency of Thomas, the score being nine-seven and six-two. Rhodes also met defeat at the hands of McElvenny; the score was six-two and six-one. Heilbron redeemed himself in the doubles play. Paired with Harrison, the combination proved too effective for Herrington and Thomas. They won a well-earned decision by scores of seven-five, four-six, and six-three. Rhodes and Sisson hit their stride and trounced McElvenny and Castellanos by six-four and six-one.

The showing that was made this year by the Freshman racqueters, which was extremely good, gives promise of a strong Varsity for the next three years to come; and with the coaching of the new coach, Kinsey, much will be done toward making a wonderful Varsity team out of the Freshman material, so that tennis will more than pass the par which it has had in the past.

The Babes have suffered defeat in football, basket ball, baseball, and track, but the yearling tennis team broke the ice with a snappy victory.

All indications point toward many future victories for these men who have received such valuable experience in their first year of college tennis.

MINOR SPORTS

The 145-Pound Basket Ball Squad

145-POUND BASKET BALL

CALIFORNIA'S 145-pound basket ball team romped all over Stanford's weight team by defeating the Cardinals in two fast games. The first, played in Oakland Auditorium, resulted in an easy victory for the Bears as is shown by the score of 30-13. This contest took place on February 13. The second game of the series, played at Stanford on February 20, likewise resulted in an easy win for the Bruins by the score of 27-17. Both games were decidedly interesting and although the scores were one-sided, the team work held the attention of the crowd.

The squad also won the Pacific Amateur Athletic championship, by defeating the fast Italia Virtus team of San Francisco to the tune of 29-28. This is the first defeat received by that aggregation in three years. For this demonstration of ability, the members of the team received gold basket balls presented by the association.

On January 2, eight men left for the southern part of the state, where they met eight teams, including the Hollywood Athletic club, the State Teachers' College at Fresno, Modesto Junior College, Redlands University, and the Bakersfield Owls.

Many other preliminary games were played around the Bay region. The squad won all of these matches with the exception of one game played with the University of California Dental College which they lost.

Captain "Stubby" Labarthe played a good game throughout the season at running guard. Lifschiz and Potter starred in the Italia Virtus game.

Edgar H. Kay '24, coached the squad, and Donald M. Scott '25, was manager.

Men on the 145-pound squad were Deane Gibson, "Bob" Healy, "Jack" Killalee, "Herm" Lifschiz, "Earney" Meyer, "Stubby" Labarthe, "Tony" Magnesia, "Don" Potter, "Ted" Seely, and "Al" Werner.

A good turnout was noticeable this year. Fifty men turned out for this minor sport on November 1. Competition for places on the squad was keen, and it was only after a long process of elimination that the squad was finally selected. The men on the team were selected for their knowledge of the game, team work and interest. California should be proud to have an aggregation like this out for a minor sport.

The 130-Pound Basket Ball Squad

130-POUND BASKET BALL

THE 130-pound basket ball squad decisively defeated the Stanford weight team again this year. The initial game of the series was played on February 14 at Oakland Auditorium, with California leading at the final whistle of the referee with the score of 30-17. The second contest, staged at Palo Alto on February 21, won the series for the Bears when they emerged from the game on the long end of the 25-15 score.

Although sixty candidates for the squad turned out on the initial practice, held on November 1, Coach "Ned" Kay had a difficult time in selecting a winning combination, as most of the men on the team last year either graduated or were unable to weigh in at 130 pounds. On January 15 the final cut was made, thus reducing the squad to twelve men.

Captain-elect Kotta starred in the first game of the series by shooting six field goals. Captain Leith repeated this in the second game of the series by throwing six field goals in the last six minutes of play. These men were helped with splendid floor work and passing by the rest of the team, and it was through their co-operation that the series was so successful.

After the series, the annual banquet was held at the Clift Hotel in San Francisco. David Kotta '27 was elected captain for next year at this banquet, and it is hoped that his season will be as successful as that of Captain Leith.

Edward Barshell '25, as manager, was responsible for the efficient handling of equipment and the scheduling of preliminary games. It was largely through his work that the season could be rightly called the "successful one."

Men on the squad were: Captain Lloyd Leith '26, Captain-elect David Kotta '27, Simon D. Anixter '28, Raymond Bailey '28, Ernest F. Blackwelder '27, George Curtis '28, Gerald Levin '28, Lloyd Rasmussen '26, Edward Serafino '25, Wilburn Smith '27, and Alfonso Zirpoli '26. All of these men won circle "C" awards for participation in the Stanford series.

Varsity Boxing Team

BOXING

CALIFORNIA has always been represented by a strong aggregation of boxers, especially during the last few years. This season was no exception to the rule which had previously been laid. Although winning one match with Davis and losing the other, the Bear fighters made a fine showing.

Kenneth L. Gow '24, captain of the squad, performed admirably, winning both of his bouts. Sammy Gold '27 also set a fine pace by carrying off the honors in his matches.

In the first Aggies-California bouts, which were held February 28 in Harmon Gymnasium, the matches were marked by speedy blows and fast footwork. A large crowd was in attendance, and the bleachers built up around the ring were packed. California won this meet by the score of 4 to 3.

The second match with the Aggies did not turn out so well for the Bears. After a somewhat slower program of boxing, the Bruin squad emerged with the short end of the score, 3 to 4. This meet occurred at Davis Farm on March 21.

On April 4 the team met the Southern Branch at Los Angeles. The Grizzlies put up plenty of opposition and gave the Bear squad hard fights in every match. The entire California team put up excellent fights. The clever footwork and shifty punching of Captain Gow were a treat to the large audience of boxing fans that thronged the Southern Branch gymnasium. This was the last match to be held this year. The Varsity boxing team defeated the Southern Branch squad by the score of 6 to 2, thus proving that California had produced another successful team. Much credit is due Manager Barlow for the fine way in which the matches were arranged and for the splendid way that the men were taken care of on the trip to Los Angeles.

Stanley A. Jones coached the squad, and it is through "Stan" that it received its spirit and technique. He will have a fairly large squad back again next year, and with additions from the Freshman Class, California should have another excellent season.

The following is the personnel: Kenneth L. Gow '24, George Reed '24, Raymond Bowers '25, William Meadows '26, Lewis Lecara '26, Lester Rapheld '26, Robert Tobey '26, Glenn Cherry '27, and Samuel Gold '27.

Fred Barlow '25 was manager, and he was assisted by Charles O. Busick '26 and William Sesnon '26.

Cross-Country Team

THE CROSS-COUNTRY RUN

PRELIMINARY to California's track season comes the cross-country run. This minor sport serves as a means of training long-distance men as well as provides an incentive for hard and vigorous practice. Stanford was victorious in the annual run with California, which was held on December 4, defeating the Bruins by the score of 20 to 39. Schwobeda of California, however, carried off first place, and those of his team-mates who took places were Dunn and Campbell, who took seventh and eighth places, respectively.

The match was held over an exceedingly rough course, starting at the Big "C," circling Grizzly Peak, and returning to the Big "C," a distance of 4.8 miles. The contest provided plenty of thrills for both the spectators and the runners, and at no time was the outcome of the exciting race at all certain.

Captain Art Jensen '25 proved an able leader. Howard Murphy '25, track manager, was extremely active in arranging the meet as well as in handling equipment.

Walter Christie, veteran track mentor, coached the team. This work enabled him to obtain a perspective of the material from which the distance men on the track may probably be selected. Much is due "Walt" for the generous devotion of his time to this sport.

The turnout for the cross-country season has always been well marked, and this year was no exception. In fact, a larger turnout than ever before took place. This showed that a marked interest is being taken in the cross-country run, and also what a large number of supporters it has.

Leslie H. Schwobeda '27 was elected captain of next year's team. Those receiving circle "C" awards were Schwobeda, Dunn, and Campbell. A cross-country race is one of the most gruelling races there are, and although the distance of the California-Stanford run was not as great as many Eastern runs, it was sufficient to give the long-distance runners from both universities a good work-out.

The Stanford race was the only race in which a California cross-country team took part this year. Next year, with several other meets in view, California should have a much more experienced team than ever before.

The California Fencing Team

FENCING

FENCING has been well represented among the minor sports of the University. Although only few men have composed the squad, popularity of this sport has been growing until a large number of students have become interested in this activity.

California's fencing team defeated Stanford this year by the score of 13-12. The matches were marked by the display of good swordsmanship, and it was superiority in technique alone that enabled the Bruin fencers to carry the day.

In the meet with the Italian Club of San Francisco, the California fencers also won by the score of 13-12. This match, like that with Stanford, was one in which excellent technique was observed.

The fencing squad gave several exhibitions at various athletic contests during the season. These were held between halves of contests held in Harmon Gymnasium, and members of the team likewise participated in exhibition matches at the Smoker Rallies. These exhibitions helped to arouse interest in the sport, and also to give the men on the squad some excellent practice.

Coach Blesse was a considerable factor in producing a winning team. In this sport, as in swimming, individuality plays a predominant part, and teamwork is a negative factor. However, Blesse is responsible for the training of the fencers and it was through his efforts that technique was acquired. His personality also played a predominate part in making this year a success. He was well liked by all the men on the squad, and so he had the support of the team.

Victor Eppstein '26 was manager of the squad. Gordon W. Heid '25 was captain of the team, and won all of his matches throughout the season.

Members of the squad were Robert Ball, Henry Kraagmes, and George Rosenberg. Heid and Kraagmes were awarded circle "C's" for their work on the squad.

A larger turnout of fencing candidates is expected next year in view of the added popularity of the sport. Matches are at present being scheduled for the coming season, and everything is being done to insure a successful season. This sport is now taking its rightful place on the campus.

The Varsity Golf Team

GOLF

GOLF again assumed the center of the stage among minor sports this season when the California golfers defeated Stanford by winning seven out of the eight matches played. Loren Upson won the intercollegiate championship at the tournament played at Del Monte. A four-man team represented the Bears in this event.

The Stanford matches, played on the Burlingame course, demonstrated the California squad's superiority. While a few of the matches were hotly contested, the majority of them were easily won by the Bruin representatives.

In this meeting between Stanford and California, Bray, Dalziel, Haight, Nounan, Stephens, and Tait won their matches. Captain-elect Upson did not play in this series. Tait and Nounan turned in the lowest scores in the play.

Stanton Haight '25, both captain and manager, arranged the matches and was active in scheduling regular practices.

Jack Nounan '26 was selected as manager, and Loren Upson '26 was selected captain, at the annual dinner following the Cardinal contest.

Nibs Price, Varsity basket ball mentor, coached the team and was successful in developing his material into a winning aggregation.

Those receiving the circle "C" awards for participation in the major matches were Stanton R. Haight '25, George C. Bray '26, Jack L. Nounan '26, Robert E. Stephens '26, John P. Tait '26, Jack A. Dalziel '27, and Lloyd L. Thomas '27.

Golf as a college sport has gained more and more prominence until it is the belief of many that it will some day be a major sport. California has always had an excellent golf team and this year is no exception, as can be seen from the above record. Next year every man from this successful team will return with the exception of Stanton Haight. With the addition of several excellent golfers from this year's Freshman team, California should have another successful season.

Several members of the team made excellent reputations for themselves in competition in the East last summer. The practice of the University of California golfers going East for matches not only advertises the University, but also improves their style a great deal. It also strengthens the bond of friendship between the East and the West.

Gym Team

GYMNASTICS

THE Bruin gymnasts decisively defeated Stanford this year by the score of 49 to 5. The match was held in Harmon Gymnasium on the night of March 13, before a large and enthusiastic crowd. Hansen of California, intercollegiate champion, stood out well in the meet and was responsible for many of the points which were scored.

Men on the Bear team were chosen from the Gym Club, an organization sponsoring gymnastics in the University. During the year this association was called upon seven times to give exhibitions around the Bay regions, a fact in itself indicating the growing popularity of tumbling matches.

Each year the team takes a trip away from home to compete with the teams of the various universities on the Coast. This year the team is going south to the Amateur Athletic Union matches in May, when it will compete against the Los Angeles Athletic Club, the Olympic Club, Stanford, U. S. C., and the Southern Branch.

Officers of the club are: Nemo Debley '26, president; Christie Budech '27, secretary; and W. L. Montgomery '26, manager. Those winning circle "C" awards for their work in the matches were: Victor R. Burgin '25, Evander S. Dixon '25, Nemo Debley '26, Emile W. Hansen '26, William W. Meyers '26, Dariel E. Miller '26, Bernard McGowan '26, and Antonio J. Samaniego '26.

Coach Pease was instrumental for the continuance of Californian victories, and his enthusiasm has shown itself in the squad's matches. Captain Auger's work was also noticeable.

Exhibitions were well attended, and the events brought considerable applause from the spectators. The gymnastic team has always been willing to lend its assistance toward entertainment at the various functions held on the campus and has shown a fine attitude in carrying out its part of the program.

The Gymnastic Club is composed of any men who are interested in the various events, and in order to become a member of the gymnastic team the members of the club must compete among themselves and pass certain tests. Gymnastics is one of the most popular minor sports in the University, as can be seen from the large membership of the Gymnastic Club as well as by the attendance at the various matches and exhibitions.

Soccer Team

SOCCER

ALTHOUGH dividing honors in the two matches played, California's soccer team showed decided improvement over last year's squad. In the first match, played at Palo Alto on November 11, after a hard fight, the Cardinals came out on the long end of the 4 to 1 score. In the second match, which took place on Hilgard Field on November 22, the Bears entirely outclassed the invaders by defeating the Red-Shirts 2 to 0.

Crowds in general were good at the six matches played. Besides the Stanford series, the team played the Marin County Athletic Club, the Olympic Club, the Barbarians, and the Bank of Italy. Over one thou sand people witnessed the last Stanford game.

Much of California's success may be justly attributed to the ever patient work of Coach Carl Zamloch, baseball mentor. Manager Sikora was responsible for the numerous matches, and Vivanco as captain, although laid up most of the season with injuries, was an added incentive to the squad.

Those receiving circle "C" awards were: G. L. Nikolashin '25, C. W. Nauman '25, L. J. Vivanco '25, A. Sikora '25, R. Dowling '26, L. Freer '26, P. Thiebaut '26, L. J. Chiappino '27, R. Hager '27, L. Hornstein '27, H. Jensen '27, J. Kwong '27, A. DeRomana '27, T. O'Sullivan '27, and A. Tootelian '27.

At the first of the season Coach Zamloch was faced with a difficult situation; the squad lacked veterans and he was forced to build a team from inexperienced material.

Soccer has in the past few years risen from a minor sport of little importance to one receiving considerable attention. As each season rolls around, the popularity of this activity increases and with it a considerably larger turnout of men.

There is considerable roughness in a soccer game and California's team was fortunate in receiving very few injuries. There was no outstanding star on the team, and it was the excellent co-operation and teamwork between the men that made the season so successful this year. Both the California and the Stanford teams are to be complimented on the good sportsmanship which was displayed in the annual contests. It is only through such annual meets that the desired spirit between Stanford and California is gained.

Swimming Team

SWIMMING

NOTWITHSTANDING defeat at the hands of Stanford's mermen, California's Varsity swimming team, severely handicapped by the lack of an adequate place to practice on the campus, furnished their opponents plenty of opposition. Prior to the Cardinal contest, the Bear swimmers were forced to travel to San Francisco every night in order to secure proper training at the Olympic Club pool, which was most generously offered.

The meet with Stanford on March 7 at Palo Alto was marked by competition despite the score of 56 to 12. Two records were broken, the plunge and the relay. Clifton Mayne '27 was the only Californian to take a first place. Captain Deferrari captured second position in the diving events. The Freshman squad was defeated by the Card babes by the score of 34 to 33.

Much credit is due Coach Jack Robertson for the improvement of this year's squad over the one of last year. Robertson, a former Varsity swimmer and also a member of the Olympic Games team, volunteered his services as coach.

Manager H. B. Sackett '25 is to be complimented for his work in scheduling preliminary matches which were of ultimate value to the team.

At the banquet held at the Hotel Cardinal, following the meet, Clifton P. Mayne '27 was elected captain of next year's Varsity, and Frank Worthington '26 was named as manager.

Those receiving circle "C" awards were: Douglas V. C. Castleman '25, Charles O'Brien '25, Al Deferrari '26, William F. Barbat '26, Clifton P. Mayne '27, Leil E. McVey '27, and Paul H. Keane '27.

Deserving mention for their work in the relay, which was lost to Stanford by less than a yard, are Leslie C. Seaborn '26 and H. Ivan Sullivan '26. Next year's season, under Captain-elect Clifton Mayne, promises to be a very successful year with so much good material which was found in the Freshman squad this year. This team gave the Cardinal first-year men such a close battle that it is evident that the success of the team next year will depend largely upon whether or not it will have a convenient pool in which to practice. Our future teams and games will thus depend upon our success in obtaining a pool.

Water Polo Team

WATER POLO

CALIFORNIA'S water polo season was marked distinctly with hard-fought matches. Although the Bear squad was defeated by Stanford by the narrow score of 4 to 2 on February 28 at the Olympic Club tank, the contest was one in which skill played a predominant part. Flashy playing on the part of the Bruin poloists staved off a severe defeat in more than one instance.

The individual playing on the part of the team members was excellent, but a lack of well-oiled teamwork was particularly noticeable. This was due in the main to the handicaps which the team underwent.

With no place of sufficient size on the campus in which practice could be secured, the team was put under the hardship of journeying to San Francisco twice each week in order to work out in the Olympic Club tank, the use of which the team was extremely fortunate in securing.

Lack of an adequate indoor pool on the campus is lamentable. It may be said safely that until such a pool is provided, California teams will never enter a meet without a major handicap to overcome. Certainly the time and energy spent in going and coming from practice in off-campus tanks saps a team's vitality and often proves so disadvantageous as to spell defeat.

At the annual banquet of the Varsity swimming and water polo teams, which was held this year on March 7 at Hotel Cardinal, Palo Alto, Paul Keane '27 was elected captain of next year's squad and Frank Worthington '26 selected as manager.

Eight men were awarded circle "C" letters for participation in the Stanford-California contest. Those winning awards are: Douglas V. C. Castleman '25, Hanford B. Sackett '25, Charles O'Brien '25, Howard Harrington, Jr. '25, Frederick D. Leuschner '26, Charles N. Mell '26, Leslie O. Seaborn '26, and Paul H. Keane '27.

Coach Jack Robertson is to be congratulated on his work with the poloists, and was responsible for the squad's fighting spirit. The close score of 4-2 indicates that the team was practically as strong as the Cards and by smoothing out the rough spots in the teamwork it should expect to pull through with a winning next year.

Varsity Wrestlers

WRESTLING

WRESTLING, as a minor sport, has been usually more or less handicapped because of a great scarcity of available matches. This year the Bear mat men have had more matches than they have had for several years, and with a better organized managerial system the wrestling team should have a very active season again next year.

On March 21 the Bruin Mat team journeyed to Seattle, where they met the Husky team in some exceptionally good and fast bouts. Notwithstanding its defeat, the California squad made a very fine showing against the University of Washington's representatives. At that institution, wrestling is a major sport, and therefore receives more attention.

In the meet with the Olympic Club of San Francisco, the Bears won two matches and the club one. The California team won all of the matches scheduled with the Young Men's Institute.

Coach Charles Andrews had several of the prominent wrestlers of the Pacific Coast tangle in practice matches with various members of the squad. Much credit is due Andrews for his work with the mat team, and it was due to his constant efforts that the Bears were able to make a good showing.

William A. Giddings '25, 158 pounds; Henry A. Stone '25, 145 pounds; James E. Johnson '27, 175 pounds; Bernard Rocca '27, 126 pounds; and Samuel C. Jackson '28, 135 pounds, were the members of the team.

On April 4 these men met the Southern Branch team. Speedy matches marked the meet. Captain Stone showed exceptional skill, and the way he handled his man was a treat to the Southern Branch fans who filled the bleachers in the combined wrestling and boxing matches with that institution. That wrestling is becoming a more and more popular minor sport can be seen by the large amount of money that the A. S. U. C. allowed that sport for taking trips to Seattle and Los Angeles. Each man showed up well in his bout, and everything points to a most successful season next year.

Wrestling received a good initial turnout this season, and strong competition was waged among the aspirants for places on the team. The managerial department of this minor sport could easily stand more material, and in this phase of the sport there is room for active individuals.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

THE year 1924-25 was one of the most prosperous in the history of intramural sports. During the past twelve months a system entirely new was put into operation to promote sports on the campus and to take care of the ever increasing demand for participation in the activities.

The organization, as it now stands, was adopted in the spring of 1924, and created a student manager, a supervisor, and an Intramural Sports Council.

From the Junior managers of the six major sports who did not receive their Senior appointments in their respective sports was picked the student manager. At the time of his appointment the award he was to receive had not been decided, but later the Big "C" Society decided to award a manager "C" for his services. The supervisor was appointed by the Physical Education Department, and the council was composed of all the Senior managers of major and minor sports.

Under this regime intramural sports have assumed an important position among the activities of the campus. Their scope has been increased to include many new sports besides the older ones of past years. A new basis of competition was arranged, and a new system of awards was also devised.

A new trophy policy has been put into force, which provides permanent cups for all inter-fraternity competition, perpetual cups for inter-class and inter-college competition, and gold medals for all non-organization and open competitions.

One of the bases of competition that proved to be successful on first trial was the competition entered into by the different colleges on the campus. Competition in track, basket ball, and baseball were all provided for and proved to be very successful. The stirring up of interest among non-organization men in intramural sports was undertaken, and the contests arranged for non-organization men were greeted with much enthusiasm by them.

There have been approximately three thousand men who competed in contests in the fifteen different sports that were offered.

Although this has been a very successful year, intramural sports are only in their infancy in our University, and give promise of far surpassing the past year in their scope and activity. Because of the wonderful climatic conditions there is no reason why every man in the University of California should not take part in some athletic activity.

Lambda Chi Alpha Inter-Fraternity Baseball Team

BASEBALL

INTER-FRATERNITY baseball has experienced a remarkably successful year. The season started with fifty-three organizations entered. In the first round the weaker teams were quickly eliminated and some of the stronger teams began to stand out. Most of the aggregations depended on their pitchers to carry them through, and as a result most of the games turned out to be pitching duels which were very interesting to watch. A few of the men were able to handle the bat well, while others made their presence known in the field. The two semi-final games, between Lambda Chi Alpha and Chi Phi in the upper half, and Del Rey and Sigma Phi Epsilon in the lower half, were fitting preliminaries to the final game. Del Rey defeated Sigma Phi Epsilon by a score of three to one, while Lambda Chi Alpha defeated Chi Phi four to one. The playing in these two games was such as to arouse a great deal of interest in the final game.

This game, which was an exciting and hard-fought contest, was a fourteen-inning affair won by Lambda Chi Alpha, two to one. It was one of the best and most thrilling games ever witnessed on the campus. The bright lights of the two teams were Hall Jacobs '26, pitching for Lambda Chi Alpha, and Lloyd Kemp '25, pitching for Del Rey. George Hersey '26, of Lambda Chi Alpha, drove in the winning run in the fourteenth inning after Kemp had been touched for a two-base hit. This exceedingly tight game was a fitting climax to a most successful season for inter-fraternity baseball, which started with the largest number of entries in the history of the activity.

Inter-college baseball had a most successful season. This was the first time that the different colleges had ever been brought together on the diamond. Those entered were Civil Engineers, Mechanics, Commerce, Agriculture, and Mining.

Indoor baseball proved itself to be a particularly popular sport as was shown by the twenty-eight organizations which were playing for the Intramural Baseball Cup. This is a new sport on our campus, and according to its initial popularity, is here to stay. At one time Phi Kappa Psi seemed to have the strongest team, due largely to the ability of their twirler. They gradually crawled to the top and handily defeated Phi Beta Delta and Phi Kappa Sigma. A noon league for those eating lunch on the campus has been established. This league meets at noon and the members take part in indoor baseball. This offers an opportunity for commuters to spend part of their hour in athletic competition. This sport should serve as a means of keeping more of the non-organization men closer to the campus in their leisure hours as well as being a fine means of keeping fit.

Junior Inter-Class Track Team

TRACK occupied a prominent position on the Intramural Sports schedule for both the fall and spring semesters. In the fall, inter-fraternity, non-organization, and novice meets were held on California Oval, and in the spring, the open, inter-class, and inter-college meets were held.

The inter-class track meet was won by the Juniors. Competition was very keen because of the fact that Varsity men were eligible for competition, and the meet was much closer than the score indicates.

The first meet of the spring semester was an open meet held on February 28. There was an exceedingly large number of entries. This was the first opportunity that Varsity Coach Walter Christie had to look over the prospects for the coming season.

The colleges of the campus were brought together for the first time on March 17 and 24 in track, with the Civil Engineers winning and the Miners following in second place.

This meet was a huge success considering that this was the first time such a meet has ever been held. There were approximately seventy-five men entered in the various events. All the distances were shortened, however. In the past such activities have proved to be very successful, and they should continue to be so in the future, just as track, as a major sport, continues to get more and more followers.

Theta Chi Inter-Fraternity Track Team

THE INTER-FRATERNITY TRACK MEET

THETA CHI annexed the inter-fraternity track championship with thirty-four points, followed by Alpha Chi Rho with twenty-eight points, and Del Rey with twenty-four points. There were twenty-three organizations entered with one hundred men competing.

In order to bring together men of ordinary track ability, a novice meet was held for all men who had not placed in any meet in their lives. Twenty-one men were entered in this meet. Medals were given the first-place winners in each event. Much good material was unearthed in this meet, and men who thought themselves novices looked to be of Varsity calibre.

Non-organization students were given a chance to compete in the non-organization meet held November 17 and 19. Medals were given to the men winning first place in each of the events. Non-organization men proved that they were interested in intramural sports by their participation in this activity. There were thirty-three men competing in the various events. In the past, intramural sports have been taken part in by only a comparatively small number of men, but due to the new basis on which intramural sports are being conducted, meets between the various colleges, fraternities, and non-organization men will be held, enabling more men to take part in this friendly sort of rivalry. Coach Walter Christie has found these meets an excellent means of unearthing new talent.

HANDBALL CHAMPIONS

G. HILLIS

G. E. GRAHAM

INTRAMURAL TENNIS AND HANDBALL

ORGANIZATIONS were brought together in two tennis tournaments during the year. In the inter-fraternity singles tournament held in the fall of 1924, Gervis Hillis '26, of Phi Kappa Psi, managed to humble all his opponents and win the tournament. The runner up was Dreiskie, of Alpha Kappa Lambda. There was considerable interest in the tournament as is shown by the fact that thirty-one organizations were entered.

The inter-fraternity doubles tournament rapidly progressed. There were seventeen houses entered and Delta Tau Delta appeared to have one of the strongest doubles combinations. Tennis is by far the best represented of inter-organization sports as well as the one in which most interest is shown by the spectators.

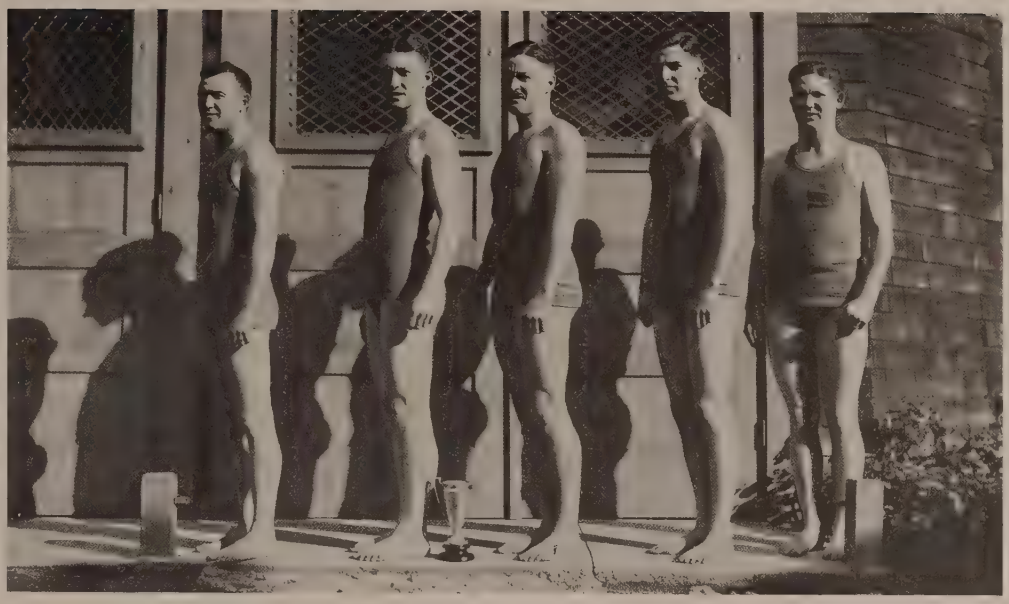
In the non-organization tournament F. E. Graham won the final match, defeating his opponent 6-3, 6-2. He was awarded a gold medal.

The finals of the inter-class open boxing and wrestling competition were held in Harmon Gymnasium before an audience of five hundred persons. Willie Ritchie, retired lightweight champion of the world, officiated, adding color to the extremely good card of bouts. The feature bout of the evening was Emil Schuster '28 vs. Norman Curreri '28, fighting at 119 pounds. The bout went to Curreri by decision after four rounds of fierce fighting. The class of '26 won the boxing championship, while the inter-class wrestling cup went into the hands of the class of '27.

William Parry annexed the open handball title by defeating Eugene Wrixon in the final match. Parry was awarded a gold intramural medal as open handball champion. This was the first tournament of its kind held on the campus and proved to be very popular with an entry list numbering twenty-seven men.

In the open doubles handball competition Eugene Wrixon and Carl Ekoos defeated A. Brill and H. Noveshen in the final match. The two winners were awarded intramural medals. There were ten doubles teams entered in the tournament.

The inter-fraternity handball tournament took its place in full swing, with twenty-eight houses entered. Davies, of Kappa Alpha, appeared to be the strong contender though he had difficulty in eliminating Eugene Wrixon and Albert Schlessinger, who had displayed good form in their initial contests. Handball is ever increasing in popularity as can be seen from the fact that it is now among the popular intramural sports.



Del Rey Swimming Team

INTER-CLASS SWIMMING

IN the inter-class swimming meet the Freshmen annexed the title with forty-two points. With four first places and enough seconds and thirds, they easily defeated their nearest contenders, the Juniors, who had to be contented with ten points. The Freshman captain, Sid Glasson, was the individual star of the day. He took first in both the 100- and 220-yard events.

Del Rey won the inter-fraternity swimming meet with twenty-five points. Delta Chi was second with sixteen, and Sigma Pi took third place with thirteen points. It was the largest turnout of swimmers in four years. Thirteen organizations entered, with approximately one hundred men competing. Von Till was the star of the meet, obtaining every one of the thirteen points with which the Sigma Pi's were credited. Procter, of the Del Rey's, shared the honors of the day by also obtaining thirteen points.

In the inter-class and the open fencing tournaments, J. H. Kraaymes won the open championship by defeating his opponents with ease. The class championship went to the Class of '26. There were fifteen entries, which is a good indication of the growing interest in fencing.

The activities of classes in athletics were extended to include, amongst other sports, soccer. The teams were extremely evenly matched, and only after three tie games had been played between the Juniors and the Sophomores did the latter finally emerge the victors by a score of four to three. The games were very fast and well played and the series was a fitting preliminary to the Varsity season.

The inter-fraternity basket ball tournament was typical of good competition. Forty-seven houses were entered, and a large number of games scheduled. Of these, four have been played. Pi Kappa Alpha defeated the Pi Kappa Phi five by a score of forty to eleven. On the same day Lambda Chi Alpha won from the Delta Chi's, fifteen to nine. Both results were decisive victories. From the way that the Pi Kappa Alpha men performed on the court, they were indeed strong contenders for the title. In the other two games the Alpha Tau Omega's lost to the Theta Xi's by a score of twenty-nine to twenty-seven, and the Timbran team defeated the Phi Delta Theta men with twenty-nine points to seventeen. This sport has always been a most popular inter-fraternity sport, but it has gained greatly in its prominence, as can be seen by the large number of entries. Many more games have yet to be played and who the winner is to be is far from assured at this time, and it is evident that whoever it is will have to work to the utmost to win.

Inter-fraternity basketball receives more support than any other intramural sport. Because of the large number of games much interest is shown, and a large crowd attends each game. These games furnish a fine medium of expression for California Spirit, and also for promoting good-fellowship among the houses.

Civil Engineers' Basket Ball Team

INTER-COLLEGE BASKET BALL

THE inter-college basket ball title was won by the Civil Engineers when they defeated the Miners in the final contest by a score of 22 to 18. Five colleges were entered, namely: Chemistry, Civil Engineering, Mechanics, Mining, and Agriculture.

By defeating the Freshmen, the Seniors won the inter-class cup by a score of 20 to 16. The Freshmen entered the contest the favorites, and contrary to all expectations, the Seniors proved superior. But not without putting up a hard battle did the Class of '25 win the title.

After being held to a scoreless tie in their first game, the Freshman football team met the Juniors for the second time on October 4th to decide the class championship.

The final game was a hotly contested affair. The teams were evenly matched, and neither one was able to run up a large score.

The first score came in the second quarter when the Juniors crossed the Freshman goal line, but they failed to convert. A few minutes later the first-year men garnered the seven points that decided the contest after a run of 45 yards to a touchdown and a convert, which proved to be the winning point. The defeat of the Juniors by the Freshmen was really a pleasant surprise in that the campus is assured of some winning material for the Varsity for the next few years.

At the close of the fall crew practice, the personnel of the Varsity and Freshman shells was broken up and put into boats representing various sections of Berkeley. The men were classed according to the district in which they lived. In the race, the Hearst Avenue boat defeated the other boats, winning by two lengths.

In the annual inter-class crew regetta the Freshman oarsmen proved their superiority by winning the two races on March 12th. The first race was over the new two-mile course and resulted in the Freshman initial shell defeating the Seniors by a length. In the second contest, which was shortened to a mile, the Babe second boat won from the third Freshman shell by over two lengths. It was the first opportunity the Freshmen had had to display their ability. These victories served to give an idea of the relative strength of the Babe oarsmen and stamped them as a strong contender for honors against Washington. The number of lovers of shell racing who witnessed these races became very much enthused by the showing which the various crews made. The Freshman first boat is rapidly showing better form and greater speed, which will no doubt enable them to give the Washington babes a great race.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

BASKET BALL

THE 1925 basket ball season has been one of the most successful. The sport was inaugurated by an unusually large sign-up of two hundred and fifty women. On account of rainy weather the loss of many practice days resulted, but this, however, did not decrease interest in the sport. Good material was found in all the classes, especially in the Freshman Class.

No intercollegiate meets were scheduled during the season, in accordance with the policy expressed at the last A. C. A. C. W. meeting. In place of this, many interclass games were played in order to keep up the interest and enthusiasm, and it was with great difficulty that the class championship was decided. Although numerous preliminary games were played, the final class teams were not chosen until the end of March, and even at that late time it was difficult to decide who should constitute the players on each team.

Despite the fact that there are no intercollegiate matches, these class teams have worked and practiced to gain the best possible form. This proves that the girls are interested in the game as a sport, and that they are not taking part in it only for the individual glory it might bring to each player on the team.

Miss Josephine Guion, coach, and May O'Connell '25, general manager, are responsible for the well-organized program for both the first and second class teams, and it was through their whole-hearted efforts that the girls received the training and progress which made the season the success that it was.

Two exhibition games were played on March 7, at Mills College, where the annual California-Mills Play Day was held. The wonderful showing that the women's team made at Mills Play Day would never have been possible without the early preparation. California Spirit had been instilled in the heart of each member on the team, which assured success for California. Those chosen to participate in the games were those girls who, throughout the year, had been the most consistent in coming out for practices, and who had shown not only individual skill, but also excellent teamwork, speed, and form. The following girls were chosen to represent California at the Mills College meet: Gaile Curtis '24, Alice Wiesendanger '24, May O'Connell '25, Katherine Ebinger '25, May Ellen Fisher '25, Marianne Friend '25, Marcella Murdock '25, Audrey Treichler '25, Gertrude Turner '25, Clareda Allen '26, Rosa Bloxham '26, Helen Gardiner '26, Ruth Glives '26, Nell Hollinger '26, Fay Quisenberry '26, Ruth Robinson '26, Margaret Smith '26.

CANOEING

CANOEING is one of the most interesting sports of the fall semester, and there is always a large turnout for it. The interest in this sport during the last few years has increased remarkably. This sport is an unusual one because it offers a field for display of individual skill rather than emphasizing teamwork. It is the individual skill that must be brought into play, and not the training which is necessary for a well-rounded team.

For the first time since the introduction of the sport, coaching was given to an advanced class during the fall semester. This opened up an entirely new field of activity, and many girls entered it with much enthusiasm. The main object of the coaching course was to teach perfect form in paddling and ways of attaining the greatest possible speed. This, of course, insured better individual skill to carry on the sport. Instruction in the advanced class is given under the able direction of Miss Violet Marshall. During the past season the girls were able to practice twice a week on Lake Merritt. It is also due to the interest and untiring effort of the canoeing managers that this sport is so rapidly becoming more popular. Managers for the past fall semester were as follows: General manager, Helen Crane, '26; class managers, Jo McDowell, '25; Helen Johnson, '26; Marjorie Crouch, '27; Louise Yeazell, '28.

The annual Regatta held on Lake Merritt ended the sport for the semester. An exhibition of form was given by two members of the class which brought out much of the true value which is obtained from canoeing. The Sophomores proved to be most proficient in the races by winning the Regatta Cup which is awarded for the greatest number of points received for placing in the various events. The Juniors, however, came a close second by capturing the cup awarded for the best form.

The All-Star team was composed of Jo McDowell '25, Helen Crane '26, Amy Hegelsberg '26, Kathleen Mitchell '27, and Martha Kate Powers '27. Participation in canoeing is very valuable training for any girl, and the fact that the girls appreciate this can be seen from the increasing number who are taking part in the sport. There is no better exercise for the developing of strength, wind, and endurance, and furthermore it is a wonderful body builder. Beyond all this, canoeing is universally known as one of the pleasantest out-of-door exercises in existence. To participate in canoeing it is necessary to be able to dive, swim at least sixty yards, and to float at least one minute. Thus every precaution is taken to make canoeing a safe yet interesting sport.

HOCKEY

THE fall semester hockey season proved to be one of the most successful of the W. A. A. sports. This season differed from previous seasons inasmuch as no interclass games were played with either Mills College or Stanford University, but the regular teams of these universities played and the results were very close, showing that hockey is fast becoming a sport of importance for women and requires a great amount of practice in order to put out a winning team.

Interclass games were played frequently, but only between color teams, since the regular class teams were not selected until the Field Day. In spite of this, the interest in the sport was retained, and the idea of choosing the class teams at a later date enabled players to develop a faster and a more definite form of teamwork, aside from a great amount of individual technique which was especially predominant during the season. Miss Sarah Davis and her assistant, Miss Elizabeth Beall, handled the coaching of the teams and carried the sport through with an unusual amount of success. Marcella Murdock '25 held the position of general manager for the sport.

An interesting feature of the season was that the Senior Class captured for the third successive time the interclass hockey championship cup, and due to this victory retain possession of it permanently.

After a long season of perhaps the closest competition ever witnessed in the W. A. A. sports, the coaches named the all-star hockey team, made up of the following players:

Grace Burwell '25, Marion Friend '25, Phyllis Harroun '25, Alice Kelley '25, Eleanor Luper '25, Fill McDowell '25, May O'Connell '25, Mary Parham '25, Audrey Treichler '25, Mabel Wiesendanger '25, and Nell Hollinger '26.

The fact that this team is made up largely of Seniors does not mean that the sport will be weakened in any way next year. There is an abundance of material from the three other classes, and next fall the coaches and managers are hopeful of having an equally successful season and are planning for a large sign-up among the women students. The sign-up in this sport has rapidly been increasing from year to year. One of the main reasons for this is that hockey is becoming more and more popular with high schools, and the advantage of high school training is clearly shown. As a result, by the time the girls have reached their Senior year wonderful teams and individual playing have reached the highest possible peak. The spirit displayed in these games by both sides was very great, and in its intenseness equaled that displayed in any other sport.

The California-Mills College Meet

SWIMMING

SWIMMING in the fall semester, although a minor team sport, was carried on with great enthusiasm, which was shown especially in the Life Saving classes, and in the Swimming Club, S. O. S. Regular Red Cross Life Saving certificates were given to the fifteen girls who had completed the course and successfully passed the required tests. Nine girls received S. O. S. emblems.

On November 8 the S. O. S. Club and Life Saving Class combined to give an exhibition swimming meet for the High School Girls' Athletic Association, whose members were invited guests of the W. A. A. that day. A similar exhibition was given at the Field Day exercises, which were held on the morning of the Stanford-California football game, and which were under the direction of Miss Henze, Miss Bartlett, and the various swimming managers. The programs were composed of speed events, stunt races, life-saving carries and breaks, diving and relay racing. The Sophomore Class captured the Friend Life-Saving Cup, because they had the greatest number that passed the Red Cross tests.

This year several more meets were held than ever before, thus showing that swimming as an inter-collegiate sport is beginning to be appreciated. In the past swimming at California has been largely inter-class rather than intercollegiate. In the new Hearst Gymnasium a fine swimming pool is to be installed, and more girls than ever should take an active interest in swimming. This year many inconveniences were suffered in the temporary outdoor pool.

The spring semester of 1925 saw swimming gaining much progress as a team sport. Miss Henze and Miss Bartlett, the coaches, devoted most of their time in teaching the swimmers racing starts and turns, form of speed in the crawl, back crawl, breast stroke, and various forms of diving.

On March 7 the four classes competed in an exhibition at Mills College, where California and Mills met for Play Day, which is a newly inaugurated meet. Stunt races, speed events in the crawl and back crawl, distance in the crawl and breast stroke, diving and relay events made up the program for the day.

Live saving was also given as a separate sport in the spring semester. Until a year ago it was open only to members of the swimming club, but during the years 1924-1925 others besides club members were allowed to participate in the sport. At the end of the season, tests were given for Life Saving emblems and certificates.

Such events do much to arouse interest in college and in collegiate sports among high school students, and such progressive events are among the best sanctioned by the W. A. A. A great deal of interest was shown by the high school visitors and there is no doubt that they were benefited greatly by the events.

The Start of the 100-Yard Dash

TENNIS

MAY, 1925, marked the close of another successful season for tennis as a sport under W. A. A. The season was divided into two parts: inter-organization competition for advanced players, and inter-class competitions for intermediate players. Forty organizations were represented in the advanced competition.

Tennis tournaments were played as part of the Field Day program, held the morning of the Stanford-California game. Miss Helen Wills '27, national women's tennis champion, played an exhibition match, and inter-organization finals were played. Elizabeth Powell '24, representing the Prytanean honor society, defeated Vivian Osborne '24, the Beta Phi Alpha representative.

Under the constant supervision of Miss Elizabeth Beall, coach, and Vera Wallstrum '25, general manager, assisted by the various class managers, tennis has developed into a first rank major sport.

Eight class teams, a first and second for each class, were chosen, and after a period of voluntary training and practice, these teams competed for final honors on the Spring Field Day. Round Robin tournaments were carried on outside of the coaching hours for those who wished to participate in them.

Five hundred and forty-eight students signed for the sport, which forms an interesting phase of women's activity life. This large turnout on the part of the women students shows that the California spirit is always present and that the women are anxious to do their part for the University. Many women received points for voluntary training, and the fact that the season proved to be such a success was due to the unusual interest and participation shown by the women students of the University. Though greatly handicapped by the lack of courts, the interest in the sport has in no way been diminished. It can not be denied, however, that more courts are needed to satisfy the demand of classes, coaching, and those playing for pleasure. The tennis sign-up, even though it is large, would be still larger if there were adequate equipment.

Tennis enthusiasts hope to make this one of the major sports for women by having all the organizations participate in the various tournaments and by staging on Field Day not only organization matches but exhibition matches among various all-star players who have not only captured college titles but also various cups and honors from tennis tournaments throughout the United States.

OUTING CLUB

THE Outing Club is the most inclusive unit of the W. A. A. The Hiking Club, S. O. S. Swimming Club, Crop and Saddle, and Rifle Clubs are all listed under this head. The Outing Club is of special interest in that it has among its wide variety of sports at least one sport that will satisfy the desire for activity of those students who are unable to participate in major sports. The fact that it offers points in W. A. A. makes it doubly advantageous.

Crop and Saddle offers regular progressive coaching for beginners, intermediate and advanced riders during both the spring and fall semesters. Beginners are taught the fundamentals of horsemanship in the ring at the Piedmont Riding Academy, where the classes are held. On becoming somewhat experienced they are taken out for long rides in the hills back of Berkeley and Oakland. Four one-hour classes meet regularly under the direction of Catherine Dunn '25, who is the coach as well as the president of the club. Other officers are Marie Caire '25, who is vice president and treasurer, and Hazel George '25, who is secretary.

The Rifle Club, which also is included under this general head, has the following officers: Hazel George '25, president; Helen Laurens '25, vice president and treasurer; and Mabel Wiesendanger '25, secretary.

Hiking Club, which was also included under the head, has been discontinued during the latter part of the fall and spring semesters, on account of an insufficient number of participants.

The S. O. S. Swimming Club, which also belonged to this general class, was taken over in the spring semester by the Swimming Club.

The Outing Club was originally formed to bring these sports under the W. A. A., and thereby make them point-giving activities.

The general chairman of the club, Rosa Bloxham '25, represents all the clubs at the W. A. A. executive committee meetings. Each individual manager is responsible to the general manager, and in this way the affiliation is brought about in a satisfactory manner.

Due to the elimination of the Hiking Club and S. O. S. Swimming Club, the membership decreased considerably at the beginning of the fall semester, but it is again growing steadily through increasing interest in the other sports.

The Beginning of an Enjoyable Day

RIFLE CLUB

SINCE the Rifle Club has been incorporated under the W. A. A. it promises to be a very popular women's sport. The telegraphic service has opened a new field for the sport, and several intercollegiate matches were held. The initial match was in the fall with the Davis Branch of the University of California. In the spring semester three of the state matches were carried on through the telegraphic service, with the Delaware Women's College, University of Nevada, and the University of Kansas.

Beginning, intermediate, and advanced instruction is given by range officers under the supervision of Lieutenant B. F. Manning, and invaluable aid has been given the sport by the Department of Military Science and Tactics in furnishing the range and part of the range supplies. The range officers consist of the women who have shown the most marked ability as experts along this line of activity.

Points in W. A. A. are given those women who attain the proficiency of sharpshooters, marksmen, or expert riflemen. Eventually the riflewomen aim to make this one of the most successful of women's sports. For a newly introduced sport, it had such a large sign-up that it was necessary to divide the participants in this activity into thirteen separate groups.

Next semester it is hoped that telegraphic meets will be scheduled with many of the Eastern colleges who have introduced this sport into women's athletics. Schedules for the meets are now being arranged. This activity now holds a very prominent place in women's activities in the Eastern colleges, and although this was its introductory season on the Pacific Coast, from the way that it was received we may be assured that it will take its place among the most popular sports for women students.

Range officers who conducted the sections during the past semester were the best marksmen and had an excellent knowledge of this sport. The following girls were chosen as range officers:

Marcia Church '25, Virginia Hunt '25, Helen Laurens '25, Laura May Linsley '25, Mabel Wiesendanger '25, Elva Allen '25, Rosa Bloxham '26, Florence Bullard '26, Evelyn Corey '27, Elizabeth Rockwood '27, Helen Watson '27.

No teams were chosen from the various classes, and the sport was merely carried on by individuals, but judging from the turnout this past year we feel certain that if it were ever possible to organize class teams for this sport, Rifle Club would take the place it rightfully should have in the W. A. A. athletic program. The fact that matches were held with outside teams made the season one of special interest. The members of the club showed up well in all these matches and it is hoped that they can be continued in the future and with such marked success.

HEARST HALL

THE actual work on the new Hearst Hall was begun toward the end of February, 1925, and thus the many hopes of the women students for a new gymnasium are to be realized. Old California Field is now being torn up for our new building. The many battles which have been played there will not be forgotten but will make the new building consist of many memories. Mr. William Randolph Hearst is giving us the new Hearst Hall, which is to be a memorial to the late Mrs. Phoebe Hearst.

Hearst Hall will be a beautiful structure. Mr. J. R. Maybeck, the architect for the exterior, and Miss Julia Morgan, the interior decorator, have combined their ideas into a plan which will produce one of the finest buildings on the campus.

There are to be five gymnasiums, of which the three large ones will be used for all sorts of activities and the two smaller ones for games and gymnastics. There is to be adequate locker and dressing room space on the central floor with a central control shower system. In addition to this there are to be rest rooms, lecture rooms, and offices for the instructors and administrators.

There is to be a special memorial to Mrs. Hearst in a very beautiful club room for the women students. The portrait of Mrs. Hearst, which is now in the Women's Club rooms in Stephens Union, will be placed over the fireplace. Adjoining this beautiful room will be kitchens fully equipped so that luncheons and teas can be prepared with the least inconvenience. The new Hearst Hall will be a place where the women will be allowed to hold dances and other social activities under the auspices of the Women's Athletic Association.

Three swimming pools are to be provided which will supply facilities for instruction as well as pleasureable swimming. In the past the women were obliged to suffer many inconveniences due to the outdoor pool, crowded conditions, and makeshift dressing rooms. In the new building these inconveniences will be abolished and thus swimming will be able to hold its own in the realm of women's sports.

The grounds around the building are to be very beautiful. A part of the grounds are to be devoted to bowling greens, archery ranges, and athletic fields. The rest of the grounds will consist of beautiful gardens which will rival the Busch Gardens in Pasadena in beauty and design.

Now there will be an opportunity for as many students as desire to engage in any particular sport in which they are interested. There will be facilities for each and every sport so that in the future students may go out for the sport in which they either care to major or simply to amuse themselves.

Bird's-eye View of Campus and Hearst Memorial Hall

Miss Ruth Elliot, the head of the Physical Education Department, traveled throughout the East during the last Christmas holidays. This trip was wholly for the purpose of visiting many Eastern colleges in order to get a large variety of good ideas for the new Hearst Hall. She held conferences with the directors of each college and discussed the points of interest which would help her in her plans. Thus she was able to place these points based on the best qualities of each university before the architects. For example, the art work which is to be used in the front squares was taken directly from a college in the East. In this way many architectural parts of various buildings have been reproduced.

Mr. Maybeck was designer of the former building, destroyed by fire in 1922. It was thought that he would be better fitted to understand the type of building necessary because of this previous experience. He also had designed several of the structures at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

The interior decorator, Miss Julia Morgan, has obtained her fame through her architectural ability and her distinctive interior decorating. She is noted especially for her feminine touch in decorating, which always appears in her choice and combinations of color.

As a result of all the new ideas brought back from the East by Miss Elliot and the planning of Miss Morgan and Mr. Maybeck, the new Hearst Hall will be one of the best of its kind in the country.

The building is expected to cost approximately $500,000 and promises to be one of the finest on our campus because nothing will be spared in the proper fittings throughout.

The location of the new Hearst Hall will be to a great advantage, old California Field being an ideal place for a large gymnasium. It is well placed near the entrance to the campus and is easily accessible to the women students of the University.

Although this beautiful structure is to be the show spot of the University campus, we must always think of the sentiment which William Randolph Hearst bore his mother when we point it out and admire its architectural beauty. Mrs. Phoebe Hearst was greatly interested in the University of California. This interest was caused by a tour of the campus on which Mrs. Hearst met and talked with professors on the subject of college activities. The Greek Theatre was among her many gifts to the University of California. She also started a fund for students who are unable to finance themselves through college, besides giving many scholarships. Of all the memorials that Mr. Hearst could have given his mother, not one other could have shown a more wonderful sentiment than a woman's gymnasium which symbolizes Mrs. Hearst's great interest in the activities on our campus. Thus Mr. Hearst's purpose, the lasting memory of his mother, is to be fulfilled in a most appropriate way.

Due to the fact that when this new edifice is completed there will be many more courses given because the department then will have sufficient equipment and adequate room, much better results are assured.

THE CALIFORNIA MANAGERIAL SYSTEM

INAUGURATED in 1921, California's Managerial System has steadily gained power and prestige, until today, in 1925, it is recognized as one of the outstanding campus activities. The managerial work is in reality a composition of three separate phases of endeavor. In the last year it is mainly concerned with arrangements and schedules for the various games, while the first two are taken up in the handling of equipment and the putting of the playing fields in condition. The organization is simple; each sport having its Senior manager, who is over six Juniors, who, in turn, direct the efforts of a varying number of Sophomores. All work in every sport is under the guidance and leadership of the Graduate Manager of Athletics, Raymond W. Cortelyou. Appointments are made on a merit basis at the end of each year.

The growth of this student activity has been so great during the last few years, and its popularity with the men students as an activity so wide, that the system at the present time bids fair to be the leading campus activity.

SENIOR MANAGERS

As the culmination of two years of strenuous work and planning, Senior managers are selected each year for the six major sports. Each man is considered the best, both in ability and personality, of a large group who started with him in his Sophomore year, and good indeed is the man who can stand the grind of the hardest competition and win in the end.

W. W. Wiggins was manager of California's 1924 football team, and few managers have been more successful. H. Noack has the distinction of managing the second Varsity basket ball team which has taken Pacific Coast honors for two successive years. C. Templeton is managing a baseball team which has won nine straight games and looks like a winner in Coast competition. Howard Murphy is manager of the 1925 track team; Wayne Thomas of crew; and "Bud" Rea is handling the destinies of the tennis team.

All together these six managers have seen to it that their respective teams were always at their best in every game or contest they entered. A great deal of credit for the many victories may be attributed to these managers.

The Junior Football Managers

FOOTBALL MANAGERS

CHEERS and yells are the thanks and praise that players on the team receive for their work on the field at the many games played during a season. That is their reward for work. Yet the football managers work just as hard and as long as the players themselves do, in spite of the fact that they have no campus recognition accorded them for work that is well done.

It is the task of the managers to keep the field in order and in proper condition for practice and games; it is their duty to care for the varied football regalia, to keep prying spectators away from daily practices, to assist in making arrangements for games, and to help the men on the squad in any manner that they can.

No one but the Junior and Sophomore managers knows all the work that has been done previous to every game and practice, and no one but these managers knows the work that must be done after every game and practice.

Football is "the sport" at the University, and being such, means all the more work that has to be placed upon the shoulders of the Junior and Sophomore managers, but again, as always, they have done their work well.

Sophomore Football Managers

The Junior Basket Ball Managers

BASKET BALL MANAGERS

UPON the shoulders of the Junior members of the managerial staff of each sport falls the burden of detailed work and the execution of every order emanating from the office of the Graduate manager. It is the little things that count when it comes time for the selection of the chosen few, and for this reason nothing can be too small to escape the all-seeing eyes of the Junior managers.

Relieved of the rolling of the playing field or the sorting of sweaty athletic uniforms, to them falls the task of host to visiting teams and coaches. Two Junior managers accompany each team on any away-from-home trips and to them are entrusted all arrangements for the needs and comfort of members of the team while on the tour. The teams may stay upon the field or floor until a late hour, but it is the Junior managers who are there an hour after all the rest have gone, making ready for the next day. It is the Junior managers who care for the equipment of the men, who see to it that all the practices run off smoothly, and who do every possible little thing necessary for the making of a championship team.

TRACK MANAGERS

THERE are not many meets held on the track during a season, probably five or six in all, including the one big meet with Stanford. But the men on the team, and those trying out for the squad, practice daily for at least from two to three months before this one meet. And the Sophomore and the Junior managers must see to it that the field is in proper condition, that the proper facilities are provided for, and that everything else is in shipshape form for every practice. And at the time of a meet, their work assumes double proportions, for a track can either make or ruin a meet.

These managers have cared for the track and all the facilities this year in wonderful style. Difficulties and extra work were encountered because of the partial destruction of the track, but just the same their hard work succeeded in smoothing out these troubles easily.

Especially in early season the managers encountered numerous difficulties, but because of their faithful work the men out for the squad were able, in spite of handicaps, to get in their share of daily practice.

The Junior Baseball Managers

BASEBALL MANAGERS

THE baseball managers were confronted with the difficult task of transforming the football field in the Stadium into a baseball diamond when the various nines were forced to seek a new playground upon the destruction of the old California Field.

And although this job was given to them when their shoulders were already burdened with a long list of ordinary and seasonal duties, the Juniors and the Sophomores soon succeeded in transforming a corner of that Stadium into a neat little diamond where all the games of the season were played. Their work provided for a good diamond.

Routine work of caring for the new field to that of chasing stray fly balls was all included in their category of tasks. Work consisted in looking after equipment, arranging practice games, keeping scores, and every other little thing that has to be done sometime and somehow before there can be a baseball team, or game, or field.

It can be truly said that the baseball managers looked after their end of the game in fine style, and saw to it that the team and the field were always cared for in the proper manner.

Sophomore Baseball Managers

Junior Crew Managers

CREW MANAGERS

CALIFORNIA'S Junior and Sophomore crew managers probably had more fun during the last year with their managerial work than did any other group of managers. This was largely due to the fact that they had the pleasure of being instrumental in putting that sport "on the map," as they say.

They early set out to put the sport on a firm basis, and to make it known on the campus. Bean-guessing contests, toothpick-guessing contests, and a crew informal were some of the things they did to raise money.

In February their activities culminated in a gigantic Crew Day celebration with a dedication of the new sheds on the Oakland estuary. Crew has its proper place now because of the work of these managers.

It was not all fun, but plenty of work—work that started early in the season and continued every night of the week for many months. But now that the year and the season is over these managers can look back and say that crew has attained the position and rank that has been due it for a long time. These managers worked for that end.

The Junior Tennis Managers

TENNIS MANAGERS

TENNIS, witnessed from the sidelines of the court, looks to be a game where all the work is done by the players on the different teams. It seems to be a sport in which there is not much managerial work of any kind to do.

But appearances in this case are deceiving, for the Sophomore and Junior tennis managers have been able to keep themselves busy during the entire season because there is plenty of managerial work to be done when the University tennis teams boast some of the best players of their rank. The small number of courts and other facilities have made their work doubly difficult.

The work of the managerial staff consists largely in arranging for matches, looking after the tennis equipment, caring for the courts, and umpiring the different sets played. But all work during the past year has been splendidly carried on by a group of capable managers. The various matches were played without a hitch, and the tournaments that were held were always a success managerially.

The Women's Athletic Managers

WOMEN'S MANAGERIAL SYSTEM

WOMEN'S athletics are organized under the managerial system. At the head of each sport there is a general manager, who is elected by the members of the Women's Athletic Association at large. Under these general managers there are four class managers and a graduate manager, who are elected by the members of their class in each sport. The general manager has complete charge of her respective sport and serves on the Women's Athletic Council.

The class managers carry on the duties of each individual sport within the class. These serve as captains and assistant managers. They make arrangements with the general managers for the teams, and have charge of the various details which are necessary. Also, they take attendance and see that all of the girls keep training rules. In short, they manage equipment and arrange for all of the games. A meeting is held once a week for the class managers, the general manager, and the coach, in order to discuss all the questions and problems concerning the sport they represent. At these meetings plans are made for the coming week. By means of these meetings the efficiency of the managerial system is brought out.

The Athletic Council is composed of the general managers and the officers. This council constitutes the governing body and makes all of the rules and regulations.

The Policy Committee, which consists of a faculty advisor, chairman, and six members, is the advisory board. It takes up problems and has more time to work them out than has the council. Thus it constitutes the advisory board. This board has settled many of the problems which have arisen in the past.

This managerial system has worked extremely well. It follows entirely different lines from those of the men's managerial system. The women do not work for their appointments, but are elected by their fellow students in each particular sport. In fact, a captain is elected for each sport one semester, and automatically becomes manager the next. This system makes for good organization in women's sports. The girls are brought into contact with one another and unified.

The Eligibility Council should be mentioned here. It sees that the girls are physically fit for the sports that they choose to go out for, and prohibits them from participating if physically unfit.

Due to the managerial system as a whole, more women have been induced to take active interest in sports. They have been taught by the dictates of such an efficient system as this to regard punctuality as an essential characteristic and to regard training rules as beneficial to their health as well as necessary in order that they may maintain good places in women's activities.

Sketches

FROM THE HILLS

The fog comes tumbling in over the sea,
Great grey elephants from China-way.
The waves coil under their feet like long snake-whips.
The elephants move restlessly and rub their sides against each other.

THE BLEACHERS

Don't go near there—spiders will fall on you!
Awkward black spiders will come crawling down
The long thin stairways of the air—
And all the walls will fall angrily in on you—
Don't go near there!

BY THE LIBRARY

On slim tall trees
Two white lilac flowers sway
Like gracious ladies
Inviting the fuzzy gold bees to tea.

UNIVERSITY Y. M. C. A.

THE International Department of the University Y. M. C. A. is a venture in human brotherhood. Under its auspices students of the forty-five nations and races represented on our campus meet and work together as friends. An effort is made to interpret to the community the spirit and ideals of these nations, thus clearing up misunderstandings and emphasizing the unity of all peoples. Socials, luncheons, banquets, deputations, discussion groups, forums, participation in conferences, personal service, and other activities constitute its yearly program.

Sunrise

The velvet pall of night lifts slowly in
The east. A morning star gleams fainter, fainter
Still, and fades before the advancing day.
The sky is powdered with the silver dust
Of dawn which filters down upon the world.
A sleepy bird awakes and greets the light,
As Phoebus' rosy scarf is flung across
The golden dawn. From off the earth the shadows
Lift, and trail their misty purple veils
Into the west. A path of light, the herald
Of the morn, leaps up into the deep
Blue of the morning sky, and spreads a silver
Carpet for the sun, whose golden beams are Scattered as they fall, and laugh for joy
In the new-born day. The sun casts off his downy
Robes, the lavender and saffron clouds,
And, paling with his splendor the rosy sky,
Begins his daily journey to the west.

Sunset

The shadow of the wings of night enfolds
The dark'ning earth. The sun drops down into His nightly couch, and sinks from sight into
The sea, o'er which he casts a shower of gold.
Blue-black against the saffron sky a sea-gull
Floats, then wheels and dips into the path
Of light that quivers on the glassy surface
Of the bay. The flaming clouds reflect
The glory of their hidden lord, and lend
A rosy radiance to the sky above.
It darkens. Purple shadows lie upon
The fiery mountains of the mist, and as They deepen grow in bold relief against
The clear green luminous union of the sea
And sky. Gently it fades, and night's dull shadow
Wraps the world in sleep. A weird, unearthly
Radiance glimmers forth and dies. One star
Shines out. The day is dead.

The Inter-Fraternity Council Executive Board

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

THE long-felt need for an organization to handle fraternity problems found expression this spring in the formation of an Inter-Fraternity Council. The pioneers in the movement were J. P. Davis, J. E. Fanning, J. K. Faulkner, B. A. King, J. W. Olmstead, W.D. Spencer, and one or two others, who, at an informal meeting last fall, decided that some system was necessary to promote the welfare of the fraternities of the campus.

J. W. Olmstead was chosen to preside at the first meeting of fraternity representatives, and continued in that capacity at subsequent meetings. The response was encouraging and a committee consisting of H. R. Murphy, J. W. Olmstead, and G. M. Wright was appointed to draw up a constitution. After considerable investigation concerning fraternity relations at other universities, these men drafted a proposed constitution, which was presented at a meeting early this spring.

The powers granted to the proposed council were, however, felt to be too general and the method of electing officers met with criticism. A new committee, consisting of E. A. Howard, F. D. Leuschner, and W. B. Putnam, therefore, drew up an alternative plan, which proved acceptable. When ratified by twenty-seven houses, the Inter-Fraternity Council officially came into being on the night of March 12. During the ensuing week eighteen more ratified, bringing the total of charter members up to forty-five. Only two eligible fraternities failed to join.

Membership in the council is open to any social fraternity or house club of at least four years' standing on the campus. Officers are selected by a group plan, the fraternities being arranged in order of their local age and divided into seven groups, each group selecting one member of the executive board of the council. The choice of the president, vice president and secretary-treasurer rotates among the several groups.

Delegates to the Pan Hellenic Council

THE PAN HELLENIC ASSOCIATION

PAN HELLENIC is one of the oldest and best-organized units connected with college life and with college interests. It is certainly undeniable that sororities wield a great deal of influence on the campus. This influence is felt in every line of college activity, in academic work, in social work, and in college activities. It can readily be seen that it is absolutely necessary that such a powerful influence be guided in the right direction, checked if necessary, and used only for the betterment of college life. In Pan Hellenic this tremendous task is successfully accomplished.

The biggest and most important object of Pan Hellenic, however, is to bring about a closer unity and deeper confidence among the many sororities on the campus. There are so many sororities on a campus of the size of one at the University of California, and these various sororities are so diversified, and of so many types, that a close union between them is absolutely essential if they are to be of any benefit to the campus at large. And since the big aim of sororities is more and more coming to be one of aid for the whole campus and not merely to further and assist the members of each particular organization, the confidence among the various houses, which is being worked for untiringly by Pan Hellenic, is a thing to be highly prized.

Scholarship is one of the things stressed especially and sponsored by Pan Hellenic. Pushing ahead for better and more sincere scholarship has always been one of Pan Hellenic's most outstanding policies. One of the biggest honors that a house can receive is to win the beautiful cup offered each semester to the house having the highest scholarship. It has been a wonderful thing in that it is a big incentive for better grades.

Pan Hellenic, at present, is carrying on a rigorous and extensive campaign for the betterment of campus conditions. It has been realized that an organization as powerful as Pan Hellenic can do much to help to do away with questionable conditions such as seem to be prevalent on the campus now, if a definite stand is taken by all its members. By taking a definite stand in such matters and by recognizing only the highest ideals from the campus public, Pan Hellenic is rapidly becoming one of the most influential of college organizations.

There have been two rather important changes in the organization of Pan Hellenic this year. One is that Pan Hellenic should include all local sororities and house clubs. Previous to this year all local organizations have been allowed to come to Pan Hellenic meetings but have had no vote. It is felt that this new change will create a very fine democratic spirit among all organizations. The other change came about as the result of a suggestion from the Dean of Women's office, namely, that Pan Hellenic should have a faculty adviser. Mrs. Emily Noble of the Social Economics Department has been chosen for this responsible position and with her help Pan Hellenic is looking forward to a successful year.

The "Y" Boys

THE Y. M. C. A.

SERVICE to the University and interest in the welfare work of the community are the two lines of activity that have been particularly stressed by the Y. M. C. A. in the work it has carried on during the past year.

During the year the association was instrumental in bringing to the campus Sherwood Eddy, nationally famous lecturer, who spoke to numerous student audiences on moral questions having to do with a university life. Francis Miller, student national secretary, was also secured by the association to speak to students about problems and topics of the day.

In addition to bringing speakers of prominence to the campus the "Y" has provided the student backing and support for a series of lectures which were given under the direction of the President's office. Also the association took a leading part in the establishment of a number of discussion groups on the campus which have been led by the deans of the different colleges.

As in former years the "Y" took a leading part in the Asilomar conference, sending 109 delegates to participate in the activities of the gathering.

One of the principal tasks of the year was the carrying through of the Student Friendship (Roy Service) Drive which was held in the spring semester. The drive was one of the most important factors in inculcating a spirit of community service into the mind of the college man.

The regular "Y" discussion groups have continued this year, meeting once a week to discuss campus problems. The general work of the association has consisted in serving the men students in lines of employment, dinners, meeting places, and the like.

The officers for the past year were:

Stanley H. Truman, '25	President
Wayne Wright, '25	Vice President
William D. Spencer, '25	Secretary
Clair Munsey, '27	Treasurer

The "Y" Girls

THE Y. W. C. A.

BETWEEN 1200 and 1400 young women of the University have participated in the work of the University Y. W. C. A. in all its many and varied activities of the past year. In the association building, just a few steps from Sather Gate, the women students have gathered for meetings, discussions, welfare work, and numerous other activities that have had to do with the life of the woman student on the campus.

The most important bit of work that the association carried on last year was the finance drive. In this campaign the desired quota of $4500 was generously oversubscribed due to the fine co-operative work on the part of the members of the association.

On every Tuesday night for the past year open discussion meetings have been held at the clubhouse, at which the problems of the University, especially those dealing with the life of the woman student, have been discussed. These discussions have been attended every time by a large representation of the association members, there often being an attendance of two hundred or more.

By means of a Freshman department, which has been emphasized more than ever this past year, the association has tried to bring the entering student into closer relations with the older women on the campus and the activities of the University. This work of acquainting the new student with the campus has been carried on under the auspices of the Sophomore department.

The community service work of the Y. W. C. A. during the past year has been even more successful than it has been in previous years. Under the direction of Helen Lavers '25, centers have been established in many parts of the city where social work is being carried on.

The officers for the year are:

Elizabeth Geen, '25	President
Florence Nichols, '25	Vice President
Ruth McCullogh, '25	Secretary
Ethel Trask, '25	Treasurer
Marjory Bridge, '25	Undergraduate Representative

University Mothers' Club

UNIVERSITY MOTHERS' CLUB

EVER since its organization on November 15, 1916, the University Mothers' Club has continued to serve the University and its students in many lines of social and welfare work. During the past year the good work of the organization has been particularly in evidence.

The purpose of the club has, since its organization, been twofold: to care for the particular and practical needs of the students on the campus, and to provide social entertainment for strange mothers who accompany their sons and daughters to Berkeley.

During the past year the club has taken every means and advantage possible of furthering the students in all their activities. They have helped the men students by serving lunches, dinners, and banquets at the Y. M. C. A. During the holidays the members of the club have provided homes for the students who were unable to return home. A visiting committee of the club has recently been organized to provide cheer and comforts for students who are ill in the infirmary.

Regular meetings of the club are held every week in rooms provided for them by the University. At these meetings programs are usually provided by members of the faculty. Various studies of campus conditions are always made at these meetings, and also inquiries as to the life of the student off the campus.

The officers of the club are:

Mrs. Kimball G. Easton	President
Mrs. R. G. Gettell	First Vice President
Mrs. L. B. McCord	Second Vice President

NEWMAN CLUB

NEWMAN HALL and the Newman Club together have gone far toward uniting the religious and social interests of Catholic students at this University. The club itself serves in uniting and acquainting the students through its social and religious activities and philanthropic work.

There is little doubt that the success of the organization during the past college year has been due largely to the character of the social affairs carried on.

The club's activities during the fall of 1924 included a series of teas held on alternate Tuesday afternoons, the traditional Freshman Reception, and the Carnival and Dance. These affairs are particularly indicative of the way in which the organization has endeavored to realize its aim of making new and old students acquainted. The Carnival and Dance was the outstanding social event conducted by the club last fall.

On Friday afternoon, January 16, 1925, the Women's Tea was held, and on February 13, 1925, the annual Newman Club Formal was held in Stephens Union. This is the second year the affair has been given on the campus and it is planned to continue the practice in the future in order to establish the dance as one of the annual campus formals.

Much credit is due to the Rev. J. P. Towey and the Rev. C. E. Woodman for the high character of their work on the behalf of the students associated with them in the club, and for their guidance and instruction in spiritual matters.

A large part of the responsibility for the affairs of the club has rested on the shoulders of its officers, and to them in a large degree is due the credit for the successful way in which these activities have been conducted. The officers are:

President	Edward Mulhardt, '25
Men's Vice President	Howard Thompson, '26
Women's Vice President	Eileen Grosjean, '26
Corresponding Secretary	Dorris Callaghan, '27

UNIVERSITY PLAYERS CLUB

Founded at the University of California

THE University Players Club is a local honorary society composed of prominent students in the field of drama. The organization is very small, and therefore each member must have proven himself highly capable in the eyes of Professor Charles Von Neumayer, as well as to the members, to be eligible for membership in the organization.

Each year this organization of prominent dramatists presents a play for the campus as well as the outside public, under the tutelage of Professor Von Neumayer. As in the past, the play for this year, "She Stoops to Conquer," was one of the best of the season. Those who saw the play are agreed that it was an excellent piece of work. The cast included:

The Chess Club, one of the oldest organizations on the campus, was formed January 19, 1897. This semester it was found necessary to draw up a new constitution in order to take care of this noble and most ancient of games.

This has been a most successful term for the club. The Varsity team defeated Stanford by the decisive score of six to one, thereby winning the Rice Cup for the third consecutive time.

Two men of the Varsity team will graduate, but the strong Freshman and second teams make the prospects for next year very promising.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

CHRISTIAN Science Society of the University of California was organized in 1907 under article XXLII, section VIII of the Manual of the Mother Church. The object is to unite members of the University interested in Christian Science in closer bonds of Christian fellowship and to fulfill the University motto, "Let there be light," by living practical Christianity on the campus, as explained in the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, and as embodied in the life and works of Christ Jesus, the Wayshower.

In order that the object be attained, regular weekly meetings are held at the First Church of Christ Scientist in Berkeley, corner Dwight Way and Bowditch Street. At these meetings passages from the Bible and "Science and Health" are read, and testimonies of healings, experiences, and remarks on Christian Science are given.

A reading room is maintained in El Granada Apartments, 2500 Bancroft Way, which affords a quiet place for the study of the Bible, Mrs. Eddy's writings, and the Christian Science periodicals.

The University Library contains the complete works of Mrs. Eddy and all the authorized Christian Science literature.

Each semester a member of the Board of Lectureship gives a lecture, stating the pure principle of Christian Science whereby any erroneous impressions regarding Christian Science may be corrected.

The society maintains an accommodation committee to aid students in obtaining work and to help them to locate in suitable houses.

At the beginning of each semester, a welcoming reception is held for the new students where the bonds of friendship are formed among those who are actively interested in Christian Science.

"The term Science, properly understood, refers to the laws of God, and to His government of the universe, inclusive of man. From this it follows that business men and cultured scholars have found that Christian Science enhances their endurance and mental powers, enlarges their perception of character, gives them acuteness and comprehensiveness and an ability to exceed their ordinary capacity."

These few words express accurately and completely the ideas which are the keynote of Christian Science. They embody its underlying principles, which were the stimuli for the organization of the society in the University. It is the hope of this society to do its utmost for students interested in Christian Science.

WOMEN'S DORMITORY ASSOCIATION

Organized 1922

THE Dormitory Association is an organization composed of the presidents of boarding houses, and is an outgrowth of the California Club, which was organized in 1914. The purpose is to discuss common problems, arrive at uniform rules and standards, and acquaint the girls in the different houses with the activities and plans on the campus. It is still in a period of readjustment, but it is hoped that it will soon take as big a place on the campus as such a representative body should have.

The name "Dormitory Association" is applied because it is hoped that this organization will be the nucleus around which dormitories will later be built. Concerning these much-looked-for buildings, Mr. Robert Sibley, of the Alumni Association, encourages us periodically, and we expect to see our hopes fulfilled in the near future.

PRE-MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

With the furtherance of fellowship among the Pre-Medical students of the University of California as its aim, the Pre-Medical Association can well be said to have had a successful year. At the meetings held throughout the college year, in addition to lectures by members of the faculty and prominent men of the medical profession, a program and a dance were held. The crowning achievement of the year was the Annual Pre-Medical Informal Dance held under the direction of the organization.

Executive Committee for Roy Service Drive

ROY SERVICE DRIVE

WITH a goal of $7000, the general committee, headed by E. C. ("Babe") Horrell '25, conducted an intensive campaign in the interests of the Roy Service Fund the week of March 30-April 4. Over two hundred men made up the committee, which nearly reached the goal set for the campaign.

Under the original plan, the funds to be collected were to be divided as follows: $4000 for the maintenance of Roy Service in his work in China, $2000 for the local Y. M. C. A. work among the foreign students, and $1000 for the Student Friendship Fund. Because of the fact that the goal was not quite reached, it was not possible to appropriate these funds as was planned, but in the division, the original appropriation was carried out.

A personal-canvass method was used in getting the subscriptions. Each team member selected a group of men whom he saw personally, thus insuring a more effective presentation of the matter. The inter-fraternity division, under the leadership of B. A. King '25, made the best showing during the drive.

Dedication

You have now come to the ninth section of the "Blue and Gold," it being a section of humor. Throughout its pages will be found the enjoyable pictures and witty remarks of those who have, in the past year, made themselves conspicuous. As the old saying goes, "The college student's joke is composed of three elements: Wine, Women, and Song." In our few pages of fun we have tried to keep within the bounds of the first two elements.

Great space has been devoted to those who are nearing the tie of life, that is, the joining of man and woman in the bonds of the wedding band, but little is ever said of the man who has power enough to control himself and is never fascinated by the Fair Sex. Therefore, we dedicate this section to the "submoron" of a man who is so unfortunate as not to have a fair young lady whom he can call his own. May he study each page and each case which is here portrayed, and our sincere hope is that he may profit by these examples, and so in later life he may also join the ranks of the conscious or unconscious "Chain Gang," as they appeared to us through the eyes of true humorists.

The Editor.

The DAILY CALIFORNIAN

PUBLISHED DURING THE COLLEGE YEAR BY THE STUDENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

TODAY IN DETAIL

BEFORE a roaring fire that almost cracked the concrete in the Greek Theatre the Senior Week committees were announced last night following a ninth-inning rally in which more than several thousand young women of the University witnessed the 1925 Parthenia, "Threads of the Loom."

In a formal statement given out late yesterday Art Matthews, about '25, gleefully announced that the Welfare Council would begin the publication of a new handbook as soon as Hearst Hall is completed. The DAILY CALIFORNIAN staffs will meet tomorrow afternoon some place.

"Contact?" questioned Miss Gertrude Turner when the subject was broached by the inquiring reporter. "Why, no. I believe that skirts will be shorter this year for the aspiring co-ed."

"Ha, ha!" then laughed Adam Carl Beyer as he entered the Stadium to spectate at the Little Theatre's production of "The Cuckoo" last night before an audience that rose as a body to cheer David P. Barrows, head of the political science department, as the Bruin relay team forged ahead and broke the tape, winning the day for the Golden Bears.

The women on the staff of the DAILY CALIFORNIAN will hold a mass meeting today, at which time Ben H. Lehman, author of "Wild Marriage," will hold a sign-up rally for all new crew aspirants in the women's clubrooms in Stephens Union.

Nevertheless, in spite of the fact of numerous rumors to the contrary, the Executive Committee is inclined to believe that the professors who will teach here during the summer session are very wise in their own way.

The OCCIDENT

It was raining
but that didn't matter especially when one was eating cold macaroni on a cracked plate.
"Jesu, but the sky smells blue!"
exclaimed Babe Horrell as he came down stairs.

"I'm a hooligan,
but thank the Lord,
wee bit critter,
wee bit bunny in the grass,
I'm not in the funny paper yet."
BELLEROPHON IS FALLEN, FALLEN FROM THE SUN, AND FALLEN IS ICARUS, FALLEN IN THE SEA.
And that's what a guy gets when he drinks that kind of stuff Said William D. Spencer in indirect quotes as he blew the blue horn of morning
and strode out into the dimness and darkness of the night.

SINGED WINGS

A PLAYLET

SCENE: The interior of the Pelican office. It is raining outside.
TIME: It is raining outside.
CHARACTERS: All of them are.
CONTRIBUTOR: Hello, Mr. Avery. I've got a drawing here.
AVERY (the editor): Yeh! Leave it here.
CONTRIBUTOR: Don't you want to look at it?
AVERY: All right. Let me see it.
CONTRIBUTOR: Here it is.

LADY: What sort of a new movie actor would there be if Mary Pickford married Santa Claus?
ANOTHER LADY: I don't know.
LADY: No kind of new movie actor.
ANOTHER LADY: Why is that?
LADY: Because there ain't no Santa Claus.

CURTAIN

SCENE TWO

Avery at Telephone and Tschudy printing more Pelicans in the next office.
TSCHUDY: Say, Dean, they're selling like ice in Hades.
AVERY (at telephone): Shut up, Tschudy. Cal Hall is speaking. (Avery turns pale and then red.)
TSCHUDY: Whassamatter, Dean.
AVERY: (Hangs up slowly and thoughtfully.)
TSCHUDY: Whassamatter, Dean? (Continues to look at Avery.)
AVERY: (Silent.)
TSCHUDY: (Silent.)
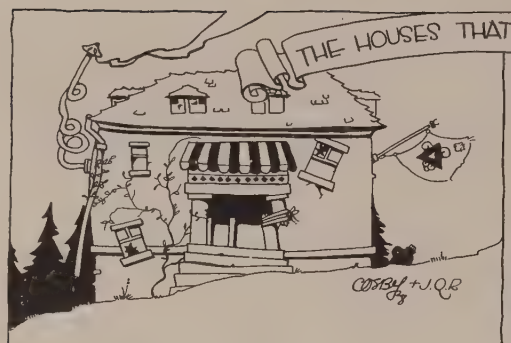
AVERY: Yyeh, Dean . . . . . dean . . . . . dean . . . . .
AVERY AND TSCHUDY (silent and exit slowly to the left and the taproom muttering to themselves): The dean . . the dean . . the dean . . the dean . .

A Black Curtain.



AT THE TOP OF THE DEAN'S LIST THEY STAND, WITH PAST GLORIES IN ONE HAND ——
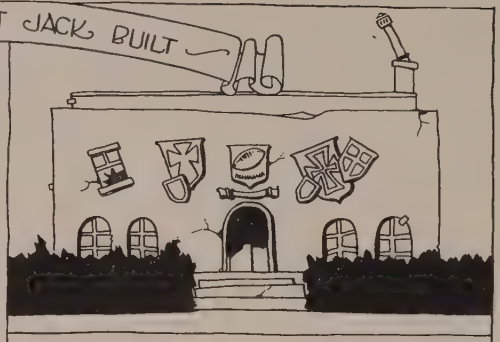
WHAT'S THE USE OF SAYING MORE?
(IT WOULD BE A TERRIBLE BORE!)



"THE HOUSE OF A HUNDRED TYPES"
THE SIGMA CHI ALUMNUS PIPES ——
THEY LOOK IN HELL & THEY APPEAL TO Ye GODS
FOR MEN THAT BELONG TO FOOTBALL SQUADS.

THEY'RE LOOKING FOR KNOWLEDGE, PAYING OFF THE MORTGAGE ——
NO USE MAKING ANY MORE DIGS
AT THE HAPPY & WEALTHY PHI SIGS.

"WELL, WELL," SAY THE ALPHA CHI RHOS
"WE'VE GOT OUR LITTLE TALE OF WOES
IF THERE'RE ANY THINGS WRONG WE'VE GOT 'EM.
WE ONLY STAND FOURTH FROM THE BOTTOM."

A GURGLING, SIPPING, ROLLICKING BUNCH,
AND SOME OF US HAVE A HUNCH
THAT IF PROHIBITION REIGNED THE SEAS,
THEN THE SEAS WOULD NEVER SEE THE FIJIS

A LUCKY BUNCH ARE THE PHI KAPS,
LUCK FALLS INTO THEIR VERY LAPS,
THEIR ACTIVITY MEN COME OUT ON TOP
SOME DAY THEY'LL TAKE AN AWFUL FLOP!

PHI DELTS WERE FOR ACTIVITY
IN ALL THINGS IN CAPTIVITY ——
BUT TIS A SAD TALE WE HAVE TO TELL,
THEY BARELY FAILED TO HIT THE BELL

"WINDY" PUTNAM'S A FINE SAMPLE OF THE CHI PHI'S FLIGHTY EXAMPLE.
SEVEN STORIES HE FELL LIKE A REED
AND TACKED ON MORE GLORIES BY GETTING UP SPEED

THE ALPHA DELTS, WITH EXCLUSIVE AIR,
SEEK TO RIVAL "VANITY FAIR."
THEIR ACCOMPLISHMENTS ARE VERY FEW.
SO WHAT THE HELL ARE THEY GOING TO DO?

THE PHI PSIS SEEM TO BE LOSING THEIR ☆'S
ITS TIME TO TAKE A TRIP TO MARS
AND HUNT UP OTHER MEN OF FAME—
TO KEEP UP THEIR ILLUSTRIOUS NAME

NEVER REALLY MAKING THE GRADE—,
THE SIGMA NUS ARE IN NEED OF AID
OF A TRACTOR OR SOME NEW INVENTION
TO HELP IN THEIR STRUGGLE FOR ASCENSION.

THE D.K.E.S TURN DOWN ALL BOOZE.
ROY SERVICE, IT SEEMS WAS THEIR EXCUSE
AND SOME BECAME REAL LUNATICS
FOLLOWING CAMPUS POLITICS.

A STUDENT HANDBOOK

Having spent four years in college we feel that this little parcel of advice will be better understood than the little book we received upon first entering the Portals. Some things may be new even so.

Message from the President

It is with regret that we must report the absence of the President. An eclipse has been reported as incipient in the eastern part of Oakland.

Student Self-Government

We suggest an immediate interview with A. C. Beyer, who will give first-hand information if he is not too busy with the figuring of stress and strain on the roof of the C. E. Building.

The Associated Students

Have you your A. S. U. C. card? If you have you need know nothing more. For ten dollars you have received all the advice necessary on this subject.

Campus Activities

If you are one of those people who need sleep, then we can give no advice except that you try a bed. If you do not need sleep, then there is no use giving any advice. It will come naturally.

Men's Activities

Not limited to the campus. Advise participation in the six major sports: (1) date books, (2) dates, (3) co-eds, (4) sororities, (5) Berkeley hills, (6) open to own discretion.

Women's Activities

Substitute for (3) men and (4) fraternities.

Stephens Union

The center of student life. If you don't think so, then buy an A. S. U. C. card and see for yourself.

The Coop

A place of soda-fountains, books, and bean-guessing contests. Sometimes varied with toothpicks and raffles. Original home of the blue-book.

Barber Shop

Once originally used by the male of the species. Now sports copies of Ladies' Home Journal.

The Stadium

Beautiful by moonlight and hard on one's nerves if you've paid five dollars for a seat. Football contests are held here.

CAMPUS TRADITIONS

Hazing

Seniors are always busy looking up the one and only of the semester before. We advise Freshmen to carry several sets of brass knuckles.

Rallies

If you are going into the barbecue business or are preparing for life after death, be sure and attend these little functions. They are the delight and the balm of Gilead to all cold-blooded animals of either gender.

Senior Bench

You will find that a front seat in the Follies is a mere bagatelle as compared with this parking space. Wheeler Hall steps take care of the overflow. Advise use in spring only.

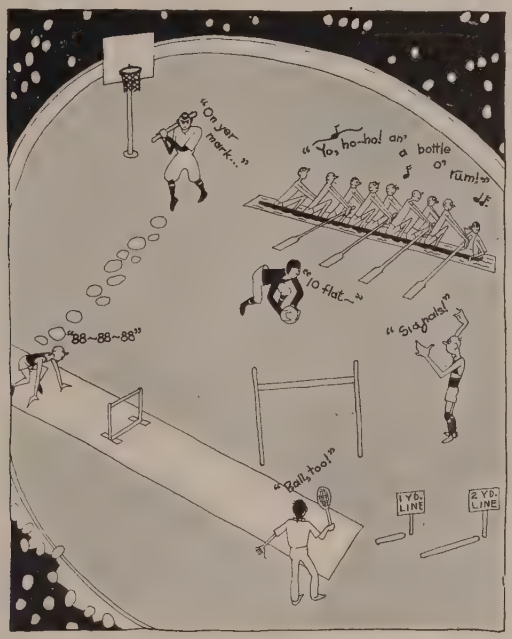
University Meetings

The hour between 11 and 12 o'clock Friday mornings is reserved for student meetings. These are usually held in the Reserve book room of the Doe Library.

All Hail

At the end of four years you will undoubtedly have absorbed the first verse. Be sure and get "cling" and "fling" reversed in the second verse.

OUR SUPER-STADIUM, SUPER-ATHLETIC CLASSIC



—Drawn by Jack Cook

NOW that we have a fairly good-sized Stadium, why can't we plan something really big? Our artist has drawn this very simple and edifying picture. On being approached, Dean Avery, L. Stanley Quackenbush, Ettore Firenze, and Art Herberger, all of them, decided that this would be too difficult a thing to envisage. The great mind of our artist-philosopher and DKE member decided that this would be extremely simple to do, so with his usual grace he condescended to let all posterity see his masterpiece. Would it not be noble to hold one grand University Day in one grand stadium? We should hope to lisp so.

No explanation is necessary, for the drawing explains itself. The empty basket in the upper left hand corner typifies the Stanford goal. Directly in front we have the redoubtable King ready to start on a cross-country bat. (The bat is already at hand.) To the right we have the great rowing classic. Captain Cranmer is not in the picture, for he is busy brushing the pebbles from the course. Hotle is cussing, but the acoustics are so bad that no one hears him.

In the center we have the undefeated Horrell giving instructions (signals) in a flat voice which, however, is very resonant and shy.

Directly in front of him is the great Belasco, who is wigwagging signals towards Ladar, who is out of the picture.

In the lowest part of the picture we find the great Stratford making a racket on the one-yard line and the great Aggeler (runner extraordinary) is preparing for a forward pass over the hurdles.

Now what else could be wrong with this picture?

GIDDAP! WE'VE GOT TO GET THE MONEY IN

WELL, by cracky, that looks like a perty fine picture up there. Say, young feller, kin you tell me who that driver is? You don't say so! And he drives all those fellers? And don't they say nothing? They don't? You mean to say, young feller, that grown up youngsters take all that lip from a blond, pale guy like this feller Nichols? You don't say so! Well who is this A. S. U. C. firm he drives for? I see the name on the wagon. The boys own the firm? Is that right? And they let him drive the way he does? Now that ain't right, is it? It is?

And what do they work for? For glory? What's glory? And for brass? Not for gold? Just for ordinary brass? Gosh, young feller, that's a funny idea. You don't say so. Football and baseball and basket ball and all the magazines and the little news sheet they put out every day. What do they call it? The Daily Californian? By cracky, I think my son is working on something like that. He says he has to work like a horse. And you say that guy sitting up on the wagon runs all this and nobody says nothin'? Well, that's perty funny. That's perty funny . . .

Still, I guess they like it, otherwise they wouldn't do it. They do like it? You don't say so! They fight over the job of being driven by the driver?

Well, well. It's perty funny. I guess I better take a chaw before I die laughin'. An' say, who is the little fellow hitching on behind? Sneakin' a ride while the other boys don't see him, huh? Gosh, it's too funny for me to understand. I guess I'll go back to the farm and tell all the boys about it. They'll get as big a kick out of it as they do out of the cider down in the cellar?

Good-by, young feller, and thanks for explainin' it to me. Gosh, it's funny, so you'll excuse my laughin'.

PURE! UNSULLIED AND UNSMIRCHED!

Pure, our campus must be pure!
They speak in accents mild.
We've got to tame the campus
And all its creatures wild.

We'll sweep it up
And clean it up
Says sweet little A. C. Beyer.
We'll lift the thoughts
From out the mud,
Brush off the dust and mire.

White-wash is the stuff to use,
Kennedy loves our welfare,
The campus is going to the dogs
And's headed toward hell for fair.

Let's sing a song,
A quiet song—
All sing in one accord.
We'll purify the hoi-poloi—
The low down bourgeois horde.

We're the keepers and the sweepers,
We're the twin sob-boys and weepers—
So go to sleep, dear boys and girls,
As we croon a lullaby.
Papa's gone a hunting
For dear old Rock and Rye.

THE PLAY'S THE THING

A single play in the same amount of acts.

SCENE: A dramatic heaven sometime in the future.

CHARACTERS: The Recording Machine.
Bob Ross, Don Blanchard, Elma Auze, Ding Hogberg, Art Matthews, Dave Forrest, Juanita Gates, Ed Pellegrin, Hube Kenny, Helene Lacombe, Audrey Treichler, Mary Daniels, Frank Dempsey, Katherine Sweeney, Irving Hamilton and other false alarms.

A huge tin ear is center stage. Everything else is dark. A long bench finds all the characters sitting expectantly or disdainfully or any way they are built.

AUZE: Well, Don, why don't you say something?

BLANCHARD: But, Elma, what can I say?

ROSS: Don't you remember some lines out of Outward Bound?

BLANCHARD: Say listen, Bob, when did I ever remember any lines.

HOGBERG (very like a Viking): I say, people, we must tell this recorder something. Now we've all done something in the way of amusing the dear campus public and we must tell just what we have done. This tin ear hears everything.

DEMPSEY: Yep! I've got the inside dope on it. Old Peter has a special tin ear for all people of dramatic ability. He can sleep while they rave about their performances and abilities.

AUZE: My, my, my.

LACOMBE: Why am I here, then?

KENNY: And I?

SWEENEY: And me, too.

ROSS: Now people, don't get excited. Don and myself will show you just how it is done and then you can all follow. We've broadcasted before this. Blanchard, you start off.

BLANCHARD (takes his stance before the tin ear and starts): I'm an actor, dear St. Peter, and as such I seek admittance. I have done everything possible to make a name for myself and have succeeded, I am afraid. The Little Theatre would have been half as big had I not joined my voice to its cast . . .

ROSS (interrupts): That's plenty, that's plenty, I'll tell him the rest.

AUZE: No, no, I wanna tell the pretty man how good I can spread bad news. Lemme tell him, lemme tell him, you people don't know anything about publicity.

FORREST: Too bad about you, Elma. What do you think I went to Europe for?

MATTHEWS: That's right, Dave, you tell her. And what about me . . .

HAMILTON: Say, who wrote the music for the Senior Extravaganza anyway?

PELLEGRIN: And who's taking the leading part?

GATES: And me, too. Who took the lead in the "Frogs" and "She Stoops to Conquer" and "Universities, Incorporated."

TREICHLER: That's right, Juanita, you tell him who "Mimi, the Model" is.

SWEENEY: And you tell him about the Partheneia, Mary.

DANIELS: You bet I will . . . .

ROSS (seeing that his bunch is outnumbered): Quiet, now. I am the director of the Little Theatre. All your Partheneias and Extravaganzas don't mean a thing. Especially the Extravaganza.

BLANCHARD: That's right, Bob. We didn't have the leads you know.

FORREST: My, my, ain't that too bad?

ROSS: Now, I will go on and tell St. Peter about myself.

AUZE: No, no, Bob, let me.

HOGBERG: Let Bob go first, Elma. He's next to me in importance and I ain't sayin' anything.

ROSS: See, smarty, me first . . . .

DEMPSEY (stage manager propensities persist in coming out): Wait a minute, I've been snoopin' around and find that this tin ear is disconnected, there ain't no wires and I guess we have to wait till the heavenly electrician comes around.

ROSS: I'll not wait. Where is that property man? Who jumped the cue? I'm going down below, who's going with me?

(Mr. Alarum and Mr. Hautboy and the Noise Offstage family make their way into the receiving room and take seats.)

A purple fog hides the melee which ensues and darkness falls as a slow curtain descends.

Oh, I do say old dear.

Well, what is it? Can I be of any assistance?

Oh, no! None that I know of.

Well, then, pray tell me something.

Well, what is it?

Tell me, didn't I see you walking down the avenue the other day with an apple in your hand?

Yes, you did see me walking down the street with an apple in my hand.

Well, where were you going?

No place, my dear, I was only going to call on the dear old Doctor's wife.

One could see by the clippings in the Daily Californian that Contact had been shorn.

Cross (in econ): I take great pleasure in giving you 87 on your paper.

Matthews: Aw, make it a hundred and have a good time.

Oh, no, darling, he's a water lawyer.

Whatdayamean?

Oh, he's taking cases off of ships.

STORY! STORY!

Just the other day while sitting on Senior Bench the following was heard: A senior wearing the good old sombrero, was attending a reception given by someone or some other and among the guests there happened to be present our Prexy, Dr. Campbell.

During the course of the evening the said senior in his peregrinations around the room happened to pass Prexy and a friend of the senior's engaged in light converse. "Hello, Tom, how's everything?" said our original senior. He didn't give Prexy a tumble. "Listen, Mike, come over here and let me introduce the President of your university. Dr. Campbell this is W. Dorst." The senior shook hands and then with his wits about him asked this very illuminating question: "Pardon me, but what was the name, sir?"

A STUCK-UP PROPOSITION

Steve: An awful lot of girls are stuck on me.

Brooks: Yeh, they must be an awful lot.

I'm going to change my tactics.

Good! You've had that pair ever since I've known you.

PUT YOUR FAVORITE NAME ON THE DOTTED LINE

. . . . . our favorite Prof.

Poor man, he lives in a big illusion. He thinks that the co-eds cry loudly to hear his every word. He thinks the men talk nothing but himself at the talky-talk sessions. He thinks he's a favorite because his classes are jammed, but he doesn't know that it is because he gives no final. He knows two jokes well and each one entertained the class of '88. There is a rumor that he has given up garters, but it has been disproved by an interview which appeared in the Daily Californian.

. . . . . the cute co-ed.

She hands out a line that would snarl a whale to every professor. She sits in the front row and doesn't bother to fix her dress. She never really has a thing to wear on Saturday night dates at the Frantic. Sometimes it's only too true. My! my! Why didn't you ask me about three weeks ago? I'm quite full. She is. Blah! Blah!

Tom Cox: What did Adam say when Eve handed him the apple?

Bud Coburn: I'll bite . . .

Freshman in Cal Hall turns to Senior advisor: "And pray tell me, when will we see the red tape?"

Betty: You've been wearing a rather strange expression lately.

Jean: Oh, yes, I've been trying to resemble my photograph in the Blue and Gold.

He takes great delight in boasting that he has rolled twice and is on his way to do it again. The Freshmen are impressed by his total disregard of everything scholastic and his father by the size of his expense account. He is always to be found in front of Barney's or at Telegraph and Bancroft. His favorite topic is running down the profs who failed to recognize his latent and hidden abilities. With the girls he believes that he is a wow and the new ones think that he is real brilliant and murmur to each other "My, isn't he Terrible?"

It is to be conceded that he is.

And did you go to the Claremont last night?
Sure, we went to the Claremont last night.
And did you get home all right?
Sure, I got home all right.
Then how is it you are here?
Of course, but what for?
We will now end the rally with a whispering Oski.

DIDJA EVER HEAR IT?

"With its sun-drenched beautiful buildings, its glorious traditions, its high ideals . . ."

"I told that reader that I knew it but he wouldn't believe that I had . . ."

"However, it has been proven . . ."

"Not that I like Senior bench less but I like the lawn mower . . ."

"FELLOW CALIFORNIANS! . . "

"Have you done anything about the election? Now there are two men running and I would like . . ."

"Please call at the Dean's office . . ."

TAKING WAYS

This one is told under the trees in Faculty glade: It seems that one of Zeta Psi boys went out into the cwool, cwool, world and wanted to get a job. Now what sort of a job could he get? Well, it seems that a good job was open for a good man to collect eggs on a farm in Petaluma.

"I hear you have a position open here."

"That's right, young feller, but do you think that I can trust you to collect all the eggs and bring them all in?"

"I should say you can, Mister, I went to lectures for four years and never took a single note."

GAW! GAW! HIS LINE.

(Copyright by the International Society of Yell-leaders)

"All right, fellers, we're goin' to get out into those bleachers tomorrow and when that team comes on the field we're goin' to give that yell and MAKE THEM HEAR IT. They're out there givin' all they got for . . . . . and we know that they'll come through with the same old fightin' spirit shown by all . . . . . teams. C'mon, fellers, let's have the old cheer for the old team and MAKE THEM HEAR IT."

What do you think of the dean?
Oh, she's all right but she knows too much.

END

The weak kind when you expect to have a real party and find that something went wrong at the last minute.

The snapping of all the binders and binderettes in Wheeler Hall ten minutes before the Philosophy lecture is over.

When the Sophomore Vigilance committee caught you without your Frosh lid Friday morning at 11 as you were headed toward the reserve book room.

Where you have been on every registration day since you first came to college.

When you first asked her to the Formal. It was the beginning of the . . .

SWAN SONG!

We're of the show, we know it all,
We've gathered erudition;
We now take our last curtain call
And give our last rendition
Of all the songs we hum so well.
We feel moist about the eyes,
Under our breath we mutter "Hell"
In vain try to disguise
That we've a lump up in our throats
And a sorrowful aching heart,
When we realize we've spoke our piece
And played our final part,
With a dumbish line or a witty one—
A smile—a laugh—a grin!
Clear the stage! Bring new puppets on!
Let another play begin!

The Close of Day

Night on the city and plain below—
Lady Moon's soft light on the hill—
My pilgrim on his way—and lo!
With a heart of cheer, and a will.

The closing day, the lovely Night
Thus have sooth'd his weary soul;
"The fire of Time yet burneth bright,
Silent the Past—the Future still doth toll.

"Then in sleep, not death, doth lie the day,
A night—and another morn will reign;
And that sun, now sunk beneath the Bay,
Will tomorrow rise again."

John Bridges, '26.

A Word of Appreciation

THE end of the year is near and the first volume of the BLUE AND GOLD as an A. S. U. C. publication has made its appearance. This volume, I hope, will be received with the words, "It is a success," but this hope could not lodge in my mind if it were not for the service and kindness which it has been mine to receive.

The book was planned in a general way, but carrying out such a plan has rested, in a large sense, on the loyalty and thoughtfulness of many persons. The Student Body has appreciated my efforts, and I feel that they can justly say, "It is our book and gives a picture of our college life." I have attempted to make such changes which I felt would help to place California's annual in its rightful place.

For the efforts of the manager, Marian Winchester, the Junior Managers and the Sophomore staff, I wish to show my appreciation. These persons have given all, and I am indebted to them for their co-operation during the past year. The Junior editors and Sophomore staff members have shown their interest and trust in the book, and they have worked untiringly to help make it a thing which will long be held dear. Another large group of persons who have given time and effort to this volume is the section editors. These persons have co-operated exceptionally well with the copy editor and indeed deserve thanks for their suggestions and work.

Aside from college assistants, I needed help from persons who not only could give professional advice, but who would also take a personal, friendly interest in "Our Book." The printing for this edition has been handled in a professional, yet friendly manner by H. S. Crocker Company, Inc. Aside from the help of all members, I wish particularly to show my gratitude to Frederick Keast, Francis McCarthy, and Jack Hogan. Many helpful suggestions have been offered by John O'Neil, and he has certainly managed the printing in a friendly way.

The book would be a colorless piece of work without pictures, and this important branch of the publication was handled by the Commercial Art and Engraving Company. Mr. Hale Luff, and his assistant, Mr. V. M. Angelo, have entirely satisfied me with all engraving work. At times it was necessary to rush BLUE AND GOLD work, and I always found them willing to assist me in any manner.

This year I take great pride in the color section of the book and it was entirely through the efforts of Mr. Joseph Thulen that such an unsurpassed array of college scenes could be brought before you on printed pages. Also Mr. Thulen took all organization pictures as well as many athletic events. Nothing was either too small or too large for Mr. Thulen to do, and he has co-operated with me in every sense of the word. Mrs. Mott, who is in charge of the Hartsook Studio, has given me all the help possible. She is ever willing to follow suggestions and offer any that would be of any assistance to me. Mr. George P. Gibson from the Shaw Studio has taken all the group pictures of the different teams. He has also photographed all of the houses of the organization section.

This list of helpers could hardly be called adequate, and were space available I could continue to show my appreciation of the many unmentioned assistants and friends. But suffice it to say that in every field of endeavor that this publication has touched, all persons who have taken part in any of its organization have met with extreme courtesy, and it is therefore indeed true that we can all say that this year's BLUE AND GOLD is an A. S. U. C. publication, and also that everyone has had an important part in planning Volume Fifty-two of the BLUE AND GOLD.

CAMPANILE

Forgetting every ringing daytime tune,
Piercing the once bright sky that darkness mars,
This Campanile towers to the stars
As pale and naked as a marble moon.
Serene and still, and silvered by a light,
A light that seems to cast a sacred spell,
The narrow tower stands as sentinel
Above the withered winds of each dim night.

The days go by like many rumbling drums
And all our hopes are gone, and all our fears
Except the messengers of memory.
And with the going of the days there comes
A pang of pain, a pain that perseveres
On knowing prose has turned to poetry.

—EDWIN DUERR
